Textile dyers and finishers from this section will be at Duby's grove, near Providence, Saturday for an annual outing and dinner.

Program arrangements have been completed for this year's series of Chautauqua entertainments in Danielson. The programs will extend through four days, early in July.

A number of Danielson people were in Willimantic today to observe the features arranged in connection with this week's special reunion activities in that city.

In the town court this morning Garette Linton, a sailor assigned to one of the United States vessels now at New London, was fined $1.00 and actual costs for operating a motor vehicle without having a license.

Against stiff competition at Springfield Monday evening Rene Peloquin won another bout with a knockout, in the third round, winning over a capable battler from Holyoke.

Danielson persons catering to "overnight" tourists report that business is good and that the prospects are for a profitable season.

A group of state officers from the Danielson barracks will assist other state officers in highway patrol work at New London Friday, boat race day.

Harold A. Roberts of L'Homme street is recovering at the Jane Brown hospital in Providence after undergoing a successful operation for appendicitis.

Mrs. S. S. Russell will entertain the members of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R., at a picnic at her home on L'Homme street Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Marjorie Waller, Mrs. Deborah Atwood, Jack Waller and Robert Marland have gone to Cape Cod to remain until the first of the month.

Though Danielson has no regulated playground system, hundreds of the borough's children now enjoying the first week of the long summer vacation are getting along very nicely, many of them playing in groups in various parts of the borough.

Henry C. Beausoliel, a resident here many years ago, now of Fall River, is in town visiting with old acquaintances. He finds Danielson much changed after an absence of 20 years.

Many of Danielson's people plan to be at New London Friday to witness the annual Yale-Harvard boat race. The majority of local people will park their cars where views of the course are good.

Scores of young people and adults will get away Thursday morning for Danielson's union church picnic at Bates' grove at Webster lake. The Congregational, Baptist, Methodist Episcopal and Episcopal churches will be represented. If Thursday does not prove fair the outing will be postponed until the following day.

Plans were made for the coming year. Reports of the delegates to the Windham County council at Plainfield were heard, and there were interesting remarks by Edward Lovell, chairman of the school board. Carwin Tracy was the winner of the spelling match, and received a book as a prize.

PUTNAM

CLASS NIGHT PROGRAMME AT PUTNAM HIGH SCHOOL

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 18.—The Class of 1930 of Putnam high school, members of which glide into the ranks of the alumni Thursday evening, held its class night program Tuesday evening at the school auditorium. Despite the inclement weather a capacity house of relatives and friends of the graduating pupils greeted the class as it assembled on the stage. Each member wore the traditional cap and gown of gray. The program was opened with a march selection, "The Leader" played by the Putnam high school orchestra under the direction of Nelson Frink. The class president, John Stuart Sabin, son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Sabin of Sschool street, delivered the address of welcome.

The class history, a collection of facts and incidents occurring during the four years of academic life of the students, was interestingly revealed by Miss Edna I. Kent and John C. Greene, historians.

Melody and rhythm was inserted into the program with the singing of the selections "Fairy Voices" and "A Winter Carol" by the girls' glee club. The characteristics of the various students were revealed by Rose C. Bove and George E. Connell, and served to provoke considerable laughter from the audience. The class statistics were compiled and read by Norma A. Sherlock.

Koch's "Danse Espagnole" and Cyrill's "My Beautiful Lady" were selections played by Miss Stella Kubaska, violinist, who was accompanied at the piano by Miss Helen Varbedian.

Manuel G. Anas and Ellis K. Haines executed the class will. The future of the class was foretold by Anna M. Shippee, Rita A. Stone and Dorothy Whitehouse, the prophetesses. The gifts were presented in verse by Winifred Lepire and Eleanor L. Richardson. Donald S. MacLearn gave a recitation of the class poem, which was followed by the charge to the juniors delivered by Arthur S. Kaminsky. The program continued with the rendering of additional violin solos by Miss Kubaska and was followed with the presentation of the gift of the class to the school which was a beautiful electrically operated clock. The presentation was made by President Sabin. The time-piece is encased in mahogany and occupies a conspicuous spot on the south wall of the auditorium. An engraved silver plate below the dial identifies the clock with its donors. Class night exercises came to a close with the singing, "On, On, O, Putnam," and "Auld Lang Syne."

ATTY. PATRON WELL KNOWN IN PUTNAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, June 18.—A petition accompanied by charges of malpractice, asking for the disbarment of Attorney William Jennings Patron, prominent Boston lawyer, was filed yesterday in Suffolk superior court by the Boston Bar association, a Boston dispatch said today.

Thirty years ago, when a young man, Attorney Patron lived with his parents on Lee street in this city. He attended Putnam high school and following his graduation worked his way through law school. He was an excellent athlete and majored at baseball. Many of the old timers today recalled the diamond tactics of Patron performed by him when a member of the team of the old Putnam A. A. Joseph A. P. Gagne, a local druggist, this morning recalled the days a quarter of a century ago when he was associated with Patron in the baseball squad.

Patron went to Massachusetts after completing his law training and was admitted to the Boston bar in 1909. He enjoyed a fruitful practice and has been held in high esteem by the fellow members of his profession.

The petition filed cited several instances where Patron is alleged to have violated the bar association's code of legal ethics. Eight charges of malpractice are brought against the former Putnam ball player, alleged to have been committed at intervals over a period of one year. The counts in most instances grew out of improper engineering of law suits on Patron's part.

Since establishing himself in Boston legal circles, Patron has not been in Putnam but he is remembered by scores of Putnam residents of the last generation who admired him as a young man.

Northampton dispatches today told of the transferring of Harold R. "Dick" Newcomb, widely known conductor of the popular dance orchestra bearing his name, from the Hampshire county jail in Northampton to the Massachusetts state prison at Charleston, where he was sentenced early this week on charges of larceny of funds from the Hampshire County Trust company where he was manager of the savings department. Newcomb was well known to dance lovers in Putnam.

Alchemist, a three-year-old, owned by Charles Van Brunt Cushman of the Eastlands stables of Pomfret and Belmont park, was the only horse to score a double in the opening day's races at the Brookline Country club grand annual steeplechase. Alchemist brought the Cushman or Eastlands colors to victory when he eclipsed the Groton, a six furlong sprint which opened the closing races of the day.

Raspberry, a four-year-old, brought honors home for Mrs. Charles Van Brunt, owner of the horse. Mrs. Cushman, an enthusiastic horsewoman, was awarded a beautiful trophy when her horse took fourth place in the Eastern Dog club steeplechase handicap for four-year-olds.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 18.—One hundred and fifty members of the Putnam High School Alumni association gathered in the high school gymnasium at eight o'clock this evening for the annual alumni banquet which was one of the most successful gatherings in the history of the association.

The delightful menu served consisted of fruit cup, patte chicken a la king, string beans, rolls, raspberry sherbet, cake, coffee and mints.

The tables were tastefully decorated with flowers and colored papers. Roses were placed at each plate as favors. The graduating class of this school was heartily received by the alumni members, escorted to places at the various tables and before many minutes had slipped by, became part of the organization of the old grads. Besides the members of the class of 1930, members of the Putnam high school faculty were present as guests of the association.

The reunion address was delivered by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Congregational church of New London. Rev. Mr. Danforth's talk was along the lines of enhancing the alumni spirit and the value of the Alumni association in the promoting of civic interest in the community and in keeping alive the friendships of school days. Interesting among the subjects covered by Rev. Mr. Danforth, was his view of the fostering and supporting by the Alumni association of educational facilities. His address was most inspiring and warmly received.

Fish stories of big ones and small ones and the ones that leaped off the hook before the anglers got around to get out the basket, were related today at the social session of the weekly meeting of the Putnam Rotary club held today at the Putnam inn. Arthur E. Smith, cashier of the Citizens National bank and Fred A. Maryott of Seward street, returned this week from a two weeks' fishing trip to Maine. During the luncheon both of the Rotarian followers of the rod and reel told of having caught their limits of salmon and lake trout.

Mr. Smith related the hair raising tale of a big bear paying visits to their camp and doing considerable damage to the food supply. The animal was later trapped and shot and just to prove their experience the sportsmen returned with quarters of their unwelcome visitor, which later became their prize and next week will serve their fellow Rotarians with a menu, the chief item of which will be bear steak. The adventures of Rotarians Smith and Maryott made a favorable impression upon their interested group of listeners who are eagerly awaiting the savory odors of the roasting black bear.

Visitors at today's luncheon were Clarence Pierce, Putnam; George Hicks and A. D. Briggs of Pomfret; Morton Reynolds of Torrington; Erwin Davis, Richard Bannigan and Gordon Gale of Danielson.

Next week's Rotary gathering will be the last session at which the present slate of officers will preside. President Alexander Gilman and staff, elected at a recent meeting of the club, will be installed at the following meeting, succeeding Subbo Nikoloff as head of the organization.

William E. Shann, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Shann of Pleasant street, has soared to a new height in educational fields. Shann was graduated Friday from Rutgers Preparatory school at Brunswick, N. J., taking with him the school's greatest honor—the Dorr prize. The money, a purse of $50 to the student receiving the votes of his schoolmates and teachers as being the boy in the graduating class who combines in greatest degree the qualities of high academic standing, moral leadership, athletic ability and school loyalty.

Since entering Rutgers, Shann played a prominent role in school affairs. He was a varsity three-letter man in sports, being awarded his major "R" in football, basketball and baseball. At Putnam high school Shann captained the 1929 edition of the Noyesmen which won the football championship of eastern Connecticut.

JEWETT CITY

MT. VERNON LODGE TO OBSERVE ST. JOHN'S DAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, June 18.—Mt. Vernon lodge, No. 15, F. and A. M., will observe St. John's day Sunday, June 22, by attending the morning service at the Methodist church. The sermon will be by Rev. J. W. Carter, the chaplain of Mt. Vernon.

The churches of Jewett City were well represented at the Six-Church conference in Newent on Wednesday. It was attended by Rev. G. F. Goodenough, Mrs. F. E. Robinson, Miss M. A. Burdick, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, Mrs. J. G. Howard, Mrs. E. A. Faust, Dr. and Mrs. G. H. Jennings, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Ross, Miss Helen Hull, Mrs. E. F. Cheney, Mrs. Solomon Pacquette and children, Mr. and Mrs. John MacLean and daughter Doris, Rev. A. H. Clement, Everett Thornton, Mrs. Ella Geer, Miss S. K. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. F. I. Ray.

Have your eyes examined by Dr. D. A. Spear, optometrist; hours 7 to 9 Friday evening, Anthony block.—adv.

Jewett City is very proud of the record of local pupils at Norwich Free Academy. Walter Sura, a graduate this year, is an honor student, standing fifth in the list of 12 honor students. He was awarded the Mary R. Evarts Memorial prize of $20, for excellence in English (by examination); the Rennsalaer Polytechnic Institute medal, given to that scientific student who has stood highest for four years in mathematics and science; the Lathrop scholarship of $40, to that member of the graduating class who seems most deserving in character, needs health and scholarship, to be awarded one month after entering college. Frederick Albertine received honorable mention in English history, and Raymond Zagranski in English and history. The graduates this year are Walter Sura, William Stebbins, Natalie Malek and Jean Rousseau.

Mrs. G. H. Prior has been in Hartford on Tuesday, attending a board meeting, and in Durham Wednesday, at the Middlesex county convention.

Chautauqua, Ashland Park, July 1-8-7-8; $1.50 and $1.—adv.

Health Officer Dr. Jennings reports a number of scarlet fever cases in town. He has seen eight cases, and as the children have all been in the stage of what is termed "peeling," he has pronounced the trouble to be scarlet fever. Although several children have been only slightly ill, one boy was practically unconscious for three days. Louisa Shea was sent immediately to a New London hospital, where the case was pronounced scarlet fever at once.

Mr. and Mrs. John Potter entertained one day last week at their beautiful home in Griswold, on the Glasgo road. Second to no other part of the pleasureable incidents connected with the visit, the Jewett City party were taken on a trip over the 160-acre farm. Outstanding among the many items of interest, was to be seen the 75 or more acres of woodland, which comprised a fine stand of comparatively young timber. That which was first noted, was the fact that all through this great area, the underbrush growth has been cut, removed and burned, giving the big wood lots more the appearance of a well-kept park system, than of ordinary farm timber lands. Following the chestnut blight of several years ago, Mr. Potter, with much labor and expense, went through all his wooded land, clearing it of the unsightly dead chestnut stumps. As the result of this attention unnumbered thousands of feet of the finest oak and hickory timbers are growing at their best. At one point, in a lower section, several acres of swamp maple, once cut off, are now nearing value again. The host pointed with pride, to several great piles, hundreds of loads of rocks and stones, that had been removed from the orchards and mowing lots. Running water is furnished in the house and barns from a pond, fed by perennial springs, which is elevated to a tank by means of a hydraulic ram, which operates automatically, year after year, with little or no attention for long periods.

The original house on this site was built in pre-Revolutionary times by John B. Tyler, whose grandson, Henry B. Brown, was an associate justice of the United States supreme court. Mr. Potter, in the late '90s, razed the old house, and built the present modern home. In its extended view off to the west, with Ray mountain, Brown mountain and the famous Rixtown mountain with its Indian relics, rising above the southern horizon, Mr. Potter's home possesses beauties unsurpassed.

The party was delighted, not to say astonished, at the wonderful old furniture which the hostess found pleasure in showing to her guest. Many pieces, absolutely priceless, the handicraft of the workmen of other centuries, were giving present-day service in their original dress. When all the points of interest had been visited, and the party had seen the mile long rows of elm, hickory and ash trees, now grown to considerable size, that Mr. Potter had planted along the Glasgo road, then there came the dinner, served in the open, on the broad western porch.

WESTMINSTER

At the graduation exercises held Friday evening at the Congregational church on the Green, in which all the town schools took part, four graduates from Westminster school received diplomas: Louise Soderburg, Victor Macleod, Nicholas Vitlaz and Edward Newton, the latter 11 years old. All expect to enter high school in the fall.

The children of Westminster Hill school, Mrs. Happie Tracy, teacher, had their annual picnic Thursday afternoon on the school lawn. A shower made it necessary to take refuge in the schoolhouse, but with plenty of cake and ice cream no one cared for the rain.

The play, The Voice of Authority, presented by the Girls' club, at the Westminster Congregational church Thursday evening, was thoroughly enjoyed by those present. In the cast were: Misses Clara Green and Alice Bingham, of Westminster; Marion Safford, Dorothy Hart, Mabel Carpenter, Bernice Williams and Mrs. Dorothy Bennett, of Canterbury Green.

Everett Moulton lost three valuable cows recently from lead poisoning. The cows gained access to a building where paint had been stored.

The recent rains have improved the outlook for a hay crop in this section.

Miss Nellie Colburn, who has been at her home here for several days, has returned to East Greenwich, R. I., where she is employed.

POETRY

In Passing

A little house where roses grow
And honeysuckle vine;
Two tots are playing happily
Beneath an apple tree;
A mother in a gingham gown
Hang rompers on a line
There is a brood of downy chicks,
A puppy wild with glee;
A car rolls by, the costly kind,
All cushioned luxury,
The mother sighs, "To be that rich,
Oh, wouldn't it be fine?"

The woman looking from the car
On fields all fair with May,
Has hands that bear no scars of toil
And richly is she dressed;
And yet, within her empty heart
Has longing come to stay.
She knows no babe of her will lay
Its head upon her breast.
To her that humble home appears
As Paradise the blest;
She sighs, "To be as rich as that I'd give my wealth away."

—Maud Frazer Jackson, in the Philadelphia Bulletin

I'm Going Back

I must go
Away,
To my mountain side,
To pines that sway
And rivers that glide,
My mountain is vast,
My pines are tall,
And a brook sings by
My cabin wall.

I must go back
To my mountain high,
My cabin lone
And the pines that sigh;
To a waterfall
That sprays the ferns
At the water's edge—
Where the path turns.

I must go
Home,
To my mountain where
The ancient pines
Scent the clear, rare air—
Where the stars at night
Wink through the black
Lace of the pine trees—
I'm going back!

—Mary Majur in the Detroit News.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

In an American marriage service recently only one word was used. It's easy to guess who had it.—Exchange.

"Do you give a guarantee with this hair-restorer?"

"Guarantee? Why we give a comb."—Boston Transcript.

Yom Kippur—They have no piano, no summer home, no fur coats, no victrola, no washing machine, no automobiles, no radio.

Kabitzer—Gee, they must have money.—The Pathfinder.

"But surely," cried Jean, "you didn't tell him straight out that you loved him?"

"Goodness, no," Mildred said calmly. "He had to squeeze it out of me."—Buffalo News.

A teacher was giving his class a lecture on charity.

"Willie," he said, "if I saw a boy beating a donkey, and stopped him from doing so, what virtue would I be showing?"

Willie (promptly)—Brotherly love!—Exchange.

Jones (staggering to registrar): "I want to register twins, gentlemen."

Registrar: "But why do you say 'Gentlemen' when I am alone here?"

Jones: "Heavens! I had better go home and see if it is only one child after all."—Lustige Zeitung.

Trial Judge Advocate: "Here is the private you stabbed fourteen times with your knife, and who was still able to come to court to accuse you. What have you to say?"

Prisoner: "I say he must have a marvelous constitution.—Army and Navy Journal.

Weary Willie, who was out of a job, as usual, rapped timidly at Mrs. Murphy's kitchen door. The lady, angry at being interrupted at her washing, flung open the door, and glowered at him. "Did you wish to see me?" she bellowed.

Weary Willy backed down the steps and said meekly, "Well, if I did, I got my wish, thank you."—Lewiston Journal.

After the First Twenty-five Thousand Miles

THE VALUE of sound design, good materials and careful craftsmanship is especially apparent in the new Ford after the first twenty-five thousand miles. Long, continuous service emphasizes its mechanical reliability and economy of operation and up-keep.

As you drive the Ford through many months and years you will develop an increasing pride in its appearance and a growing respect for the substantial worth that has been built into it. From every standpoint—in everything that goes to make a good automobile—you will know that you have made a far-seeing, satisfactory purchase.

Wherever you go, you hear enthusiastic praise of the car and this significant, oft-repeated phrase—"I'm glad I bought a Ford."

A FORD owner in New York tells of a 13,000-mile trip across the United States and back in sixty days and says "the car was extremely economical to operate, comfortable and speedy." A grateful father tells how the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield saved his wife and children from serious injury in an automobile collision.

To test tires, a large company drove a new Ford day and night, for an average of 500 miles every twenty-four hours. It was still giving satisfactory service after 105,000 miles.

A Ford car that had fallen into Fernan Lake was submerged for twelve days before being raised. After a new battery and carburetor bowl were installed, it was driven back to Spokane under its own power.

Many police departments have written of the special advantages of the Ford in crowded traffic because of its alert speed, acceleration and ease of control. An increasing number of fleet owners are also purchasing the Ford because their cost figures have given conclusive proof of its economy of operation and up-keep.

In addition to important triumphs in Germany, France and Italy, the Ford won six out of seven leading places in a contest in Finland, first and second in the Rafaela races in Argentina, first and second in the run from Copenhagen-to-Paris-to-Copenhagen, three gold medals in England, first ranking in the durability test over the tortuous Amancaes road in Peru, and first place in the 1930 reliability run conducted by the Royal Automobile Club of Sweden.

This contest was an exceptionally severe test of endurance and sturdy construction because it was held in the dead of winter and covered 600 miles of steady running over snow-covered country roads and mountainous hills.

DURKIN WINS JURY VERDICT OF $642.30

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, June 18.—A verdict for the plaintiff, Jimmy Durkin, of $642.30 was returned in Washington county superior court today at 2:30 p. m., after the jury had been out about 20 minutes. Foreman Milton M. Cranston, of Narragansett, in reporting the jury finding announced $600, the award on the principal, and the balance as interest on Durkin's loan to Stanley Dreczko and wife, Mary Dreczko, the respondents, on April 15, 1929. Following the jury's return, they were paid off and discharged. Court adjourned to meet at Kingston Thursday morning when the trial of a contested divorce case, already partly heard, will be resumed. On the conclusion of this case the court will return to the Westerly courthouse for the hearing of a number of equity cases.

When court resumed its Wednesday morning session the defendant, Dreczko, continued on the stand in direct examination followed by cross-examination. At 11:10 a. m., Attorney Liebchansky, of New London, rested the defendant's case. Attorney Dunn for the plaintiff then placed Assistant Manager Lewis Stanton of the Westerly branch of the Industrial Trust Co. on the stand and he identified the $600 check cashed for Durkin. A handwriting expert, Joseph H. Clark, of Pawtucket, R. I., testified as to the handwriting of Dreczko being the same on all the papers filed in the case, the receipt and check cashed. Durkin was returned to the stand to declare the $600 a loan and not a "gift" under extenuating circumstances as claimed by the defendants. The plaintiff's case rested at 11:45 a. m., and in the afternoon came the plaintiff's plea and the charge by Associate Justice Leonidas Pouliot, Jr., to the jury.

Recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk appear the following transfers:

June 17.—James J. Casey to Arthur E. Fraser and Agnes T. Fraser, a certain lot of land, being Lot No. 17, Building Sites Plat of Frederick P. Babcock. Albert L. Saunders, of West Medway, Mass., and Miss Carrie L. Saunders, of Westerly, to Eva C. Rogers, of Stonington, tract of land on easterly side of Railroad avenue, Misquamicut. Lease for one year: Aniello Matarese to Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., store at corner of High and Oak streets, Westerly. Werilla Land Co., Inc., a certain parcel of land, Lots Nos. 20 and 21, Fairview Park, to Raffaele DeSimone and wife, Anna L. DeSimone.

The committee on the observance of St. John's Day by Narragansett commandery, No. 27, Knights Templar of Westerly, Fred W. Harvey, captain-general, chairman, which includes degree work, chicken dinner at the Methodist church and street parade, on Wednesday evening, June 25, held a meeting on Wednesday evening following a rehearsal of the commandery officers at Masonic hall. At the time reports of progress were made by a number of sub-committees.

MAKING PROGRESS ON WEST BROAD STREET

Much progress was made on West Broad street on Wednesday, despite rainy weather in the cutting off some two feet of the width of the north sidewalk and the re-setting of the street curbing on the newly established sidewalk line. A number of new five-inch Darling fire hydrants have already been set and the ornamental metal bases for the pilasters which are to hold the new flaming arc lamps when the old wooden poles are removed, as the wires have been placed underground.

Probate Judge Edward M. Burke held a special session of Westerly probate court on Wednesday morning in the office of the probate clerk, when the following case was taken up.

Estate of William M. Green. Petition received for the probate of a foreign will. Will proved with witnesses, Fannie T. Pierce Holt, of West Mystic, and Edward B. Coy, appearing to testify. Will and codicil continued nisi.

Other probate court business that has been disposed of was the following:

Estate of Martha A. Mitchell. Petition for the probate of a will on which Louise E. Thoumaine appeared as a witness received and continued to July 1.

Estate of Annie E. Burdick. Petition received for the appointment of a guardian of the estate and Lillian J. Hood was so appointed, with bond $2,500. Thomas P. Nichols was named appraiser.

Estate of Grace E. Burgoyne. First and final account received, examined and ordered recorded and order of distribution entered.

Estate of Susan I. Greene. First an final account received, examined allowed and ordered recorded.

Estate of James Rae. Inventory received, examined, allowed and ordered recorded.

Estate of Lewis S. McNeil. Petition received and granted for the set-off of furniture.

Estate of B. Frank Clark. Inventory received, examined, allowed and ordered recorded.

Estate of William A. Moss. Petition received for leave to file an exemplified copy of a foreign will and continued to July 1 with order of notice.

On Wednesday the Third district courtroom on Union street was crowded with applicants when, for the first time this season, representatives of the state board of public roads under Henry A. Kane, met for the purpose of giving examinations and receiving applications for registration.

An additional fee of $1 was charged for the examination given. The fee is charged only on the first examination for a license and if the applicant does not pass he is obliged to pay $1 each time he takes the examination. The regular fee of $2 for the license is charged after the applicant has passed the examination. Therefore, if the applicant passes on the first test, he must pay $3.

ALARMING BREAK IN STOCK PRICES WAS CHECKED IN THE LAST HOUR

NEW YORK, June 18.—(AP)— The storm clouds that gather in times of drastic economic readjustment broke solidly over the country's financial markets today, loosing a torrent of liquidation that swept stocks and commodities to new lows for the year before support was effective.

Selling of the nation's seasoned investment shares, as well as the more speculative equities, proceeded at a rather alarming rate until the final hour when the decline was checked and a moderate rally reduced extreme losses of 5 to 10 points in high grade stocks. Net losses of 2 to 8 points, however, were numerous and the composite price of 90 leading shares touched a new 1930 low for the second time this week. Three hundred and eighty three stocks recorded new 1930 minimums.

It was the second largest day of the year on the New York stock exchange. Until the liquidation withered in the face of supporting orders, the volume seemed headed for 8,000,000 shares, but turnover in the last fifty minutes fell below 1,000,000 shares and the total for the strenuous five hour session was 6,425,600.

When the market reached bottom early in the afternoon the price index stood about 15 points above the figure for November 13, which marked the culmination of the fall panic. The rally resulted in an improvement of about 2 points from the day's minimum, and the closing average showed a net loss of 5.7 points from yesterday's final.

The course of stocks was closely paralleled by the grains. In Chicago wheat broke about 4 cents a bushel to new lows for the season, but the decline was subsequently reduced to around two cents. Corn, also extremely weak, was able to cut its losses to around a cent. All the active cotton months broke into new low ground, but recovered so consistently that final prices represented net advances of 9 to 16 points. July sugar sold at its lowest for all time and the other positions made new lows for the movement. The close was off 3 to 4 points.

Sentiment in the stock market seemed to represent the cumulative effect of the business depression, the protracted heaviness of the commodities, and also the apparent absence of concerted banking support. The opinion was expressed, however, that the large banking interests seemed to prefer to allow the decline to take its course so long as it was orderly. There was no lack of buying orders today, but a large share of this support came from the so-called bargain hunters whose small purchases were not sufficient to offset the selling. Investment trusts, some of which have been liquidating stocks in recent weeks, were said to be buying on a scale-down.

The decline of the early hours was interrupted shortly after noon by a feeble rally as the market bounded off a cushion of support. This improvement was short-lived, however, and the day's best advance did not come until the final dealings when some of the short lines were covered.

There was nothing in the day's news to indicate a radical change in the current outlook. Iron Age reported that a sharp drop in steel orders from automobile manufacturers and an increasingly general tendency by other leading takers of steel toward retrenchment were too substantial to be offset by the business in pipe and structural material. The production rate was placed at 65 per cent of rated capacity, off 4 per cent from last week. One of the financial news agencies carried an analysis of the steel situation which said that diminished earnings were in prospect because the reduction in operations this summer might run below the normal seasonal curtailment.

Shares to which the market normally looks for leadership were weakest today. U. S. Steel got down to 155, or within 5 points of its low in the panic. American Telephone broke to 201 1-4, American Can to 113 1-2, Consolidated Gas to 102 1-2, General Motors to 39 1-4, Radio to 33 1-8 and Standard Oil of New Jersey to 60 3-8. Can closed at 115 1-4, or 7 3-4 points net lower for the largest loss in the group.

Maximum losses of 15 to 30 points came out in Allied Chemical, Case, American Machine & Foundry, and Eastman Kodak. Such stocks as Worthington Pump, American Tobacco, Houston Oil, Diamond Match, Western Union and Westinghouse dropped 10 to 13 before recovering.

Foreign exchange were mostly steady. The Spanish peseta recovered a few points. Sterling was slightly higher.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, June 18.—(AP)— Bond prices dropped sharply today as selling pressure on the stock market extended to fixed income bearing securities. The reactionary trend set in markedly during the afternoon to raise the volume of sales above $13,971,000 and to carry more than 25 issues to the lowest point of the year.

The averages showed the drop was the sharpest in several months and was ascribed to nervous selling and forced liquidation of bonds by speculators in equity issues. Losses ranged from a small fraction to nine points, and the number of bonds which weathered the day without any loss in price were comparatively few.

Some prime issues held steady or gained a small fraction but others in the gilt edged class yielded to the pressure and lost 1-4 to nearly a point.

The trend among convertibles was uniformly downward and the turnover large. Those which ended the day in new low ground for the year included St. Paul 5s, Rock Island 4 1-2s, Atchison 4 1-2s, Baltimore and Ohio 4 1-2s, Dodge Bros. 6s, General Theatres 6s, Warner Brothers 6s, and American International 5 1-2s.

The weakness of most of the bond market accentuated the strength of the issues with high ratings. Such lien issues as those of American Telephone, Atchison, Canadian National, Rock Island, Chesapeake and Ohio, Pennsylvania, and New York Central, Consolidated Gas, Columbia Gas and Electric and Montana Power were unchanged or up fractionally in active trading.

In the domestic list, a noticeable feature was the appearance of many issues which generally are inactive and they sold mostly at lower prices for the year. Declines of one and two points were common. At new 1930 lows were Seaboard issues, Canadian Pacific 5s of 54, Chicago and Eastern Illinois 5s, Erie 5s of '67, New York, Ontario and Western 4s, International Hydro-Electric 6s, Chile Copper 5s, Fisk Rubber 8s, Hudson Coal 5s, National Dairy 5 1-4s, and Pure Oil 5 1-2s. National Dairy, which is one of the most active industrials lost 7-8 of a point. Texas Corporation 5s in which trading has been extensive, gained 1-4 of a point.

Liquidation in foreign bonds lent a decidedly easier tone to the group. Bolivian 7s dropped nine points to a new low for the year, and Berlin City 6s, Belgium 8s and Mexico 5s were also in new low ground. European governments, such as British, French and German showed mixed gains and losses of small proportions. Losses in United States governments were the most extensive in several weeks and averaged about 1-8 of a point, with treasury issues yielding most. Liberty 4th 4 1-4s found the strongest support and gained 2-32nds.

Offerings tomorrow will include $2,000,000 City of St. Paul, Minn. 4 1-4 per cent bonds, and $200,000 East Providence, R. I. 4 1-4 bonds.

California, Oregon and Washington indicate a combined expenditure of $121,590,000 for highways for the year, a survey shows.

Science Has Solved The Laxative Problem

Banish Constipation this easy way.

All you need is a little box of pleasant-tasting pieces of chewing gum, called "Feen-a-mint"—the modern chewing gum laxative. For Feen-a-mint has solved the laxative problem in millions of homes. The secret of Feen-a-mint's success is uniform "internal distribution" which scientists now know is essential to real efficiency in any laxative.

Because you chew Feen-a-mint it is effective in milder doses than ordinary laxatives. For the effectives of a laxative is not so much dependent upon the quantity swallowed as upon the thoroughness of its distribution throughout the alimentary tract.

While you chew this delicious bit of gum the tasteless laxative it contains is gradually released and mixed with the saliva. Thus it is carried to the intestinal tract smoothly, evenly without shock to the system or the distressing after-effects so common with old-fashioned laxatives. Each particle of the laxative in Feen-a-mint works with utmost efficiency, gently encouraging the intestinal muscles to resume the activity so necessary for healthful elimination.

The action of Feen-a-mint is thorough, gentle, dependable. With the proper dosage, it is not necessary to increase the amount of Feen-a-mint you take nor to switch to another laxative for a change. Feen-a-mint is harmless and contains no habit-forming drugs. Truly the health laxative. Ask for a package at any drug store.

They're buying Goodyear Tires in greater volume than ever before.

The reasons why Goodyear Tires give utmost value are not hard to state.

In both the two main parts of a tire, Goodyears are definitely superior.

The Goodyear All-Weather Tread is superior in traction.

The Goodyear Supertwist Carcass is superior in vitality and long life.

If you think these are merely advertising claims demand to see the proof.

Any Goodyear Dealer will be glad to demonstrate the facts.

The facts certainly are: Goodyear Tires do give extra value.

That's why more new motor cars leave the factories on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind!

That's why more transcontinental, urban and interurban buses and coaches operate on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind!

That's why more truck tonnage is hauled on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind!

That's why, throughout the world, year after year, more people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind!

No mistake about it, this season is the chance of a lifetime to take full advantage of low tire prices and high Goodyear value.

Therefore: now is the time to get yours!

Now is the time to get YOURS

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

The peak!—our beloved William Powell reached it in the sensational dramatic epic "Shadow of the Law," playing at the cool Broadway today and tomorrow. Never losing his grip, even though in prison, the young convict, deftly portrayed by the master of character, Powell, engineers a daring jail-break, gets safely away, and rehabilitates himself in a southern town, winning the confidence of the business men and the love of a beautiful girl, which he daren't accept because of the always threatening "shadow of the law." His Nemesis catches up with him, he is suspected, and in a last desperate gamble with fate, he risks all in a message disclosing his whereabouts to the woman whose lying testimony convicted him. With the jail doors yawning, he devises another coup, this time successfully, and is restored to freedom and honor by the very detective who had hounded him. Natalie Moorhead is the blonde menace. Marian Schilling, the demure southron who wins the hunted man and Fredric Burt, a new type of detective, all combining with Powell in the most thrilling dramatic event of the closing season. The surrounding featurettes are all hilarious, including "Actions Speak Louder Than Words," a ridiculous slapstick affair, "La Paloma," a comical screen song, "A Perfect Match," a Pathe dialect comedy, and "Toys," a clever revuette with the Ormonde Sisters and a large company, and the latest Fox movietone news.

Palace Theatre

Entertainment that is unsurpassed, acting that could not be better, and a variety of program are only a few of the special things to be noted on the double-feature program now playing at the Palace theatre where it will be shown today and tomorrow for the last times. "Song of the Flame," a stupendous offering starring Bernice Claire and Alexander Gray and "Personality" which is a hilarious comedy with Sally Starr and Johnny Arthur are the two pictures which comprise the bill.

MARIE DRESSLER and POLLY MORAN in "CAUGHT SHORT"

"The Song of the Flame" is based on the Russian revolution and the music, much of which was composed by George Gershwin, as well as the scenes, are in the spirit of the story. The production has been filmed in technicolor and the native costumes and court scenes are greatly enhanced by this.

Everyone is familiar with the covers on Liberty magazine and the adventures of Lil and Sandy. "Personality" has been adapted for the screen from this series of sketches and the result is a hilarious comedy. Of course there is a mother-in-law in the story and as no home is complete without one all those who suffer from too much of it will enjoy seeing Lil and Sandy in the same boat.

The management of the Palace theatre is doing its best to keep Norwich play-goers in the best of spirits and for the attraction to be shown on Saturday "Caught Short," with Marie Dressler and Polly Moran, has been chosen. "Caught Short," needless to say, is a comedy based on the losses of two boarding house mistresses who get it in the stock market crash. A fine cast has been selected to play with the leads and each character produces more and funnier comedy. Don't forget the double-feature bill today and tomorrow and be sure to plan to see "Caught Short" when it comes to the Palace on Saturday.

Breed Theatre

The Breed theatre will present an attraction quite out of the ordinary when "White Cargo" opens there today. This is the all-talking picture based on the sensational stage play of the same name, and it comes here after a long run at the George M. Cohan theatre in New York. Like the play, the picture version recounts the torrid love story of the beautiful, primitive girl of the tropics, Tondeleyo, and young Langford, the superintendent of a rubber plantation.

All the realistic dialogue, the tense drama, the colorful background and rapid action which made the play the most discussed offering of a few seasons back, have been kept in the entirety in the picture version. It was the faithfulness of the film transcription which won the plaudits of the New York critics when it was given its premiere.

The role of Tondeleyo is portrayed by the attractive and mysterious Gypsy Rhouma, who is said to be an American girl in spite of her exotic beauty. The cast of the picture version of "White Cargo" has been pronounced in every way superior to that which presented it behind the footlights, according to those who have seen both companies.

"White Cargo" will remain at the Breed for a run of three days.

NORWICH TOWN

JOHN MASON CLUB HOLDS LADIES' NIGHT

The first Ladies' night held by the John Mason Community club was declared by all who attended to be an unqualified success. The meeting of the club was held in the vestry of the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church Monday evening. Lewis A. Aldrich was elected temporary chairman of business session. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Rev. George Warren Potter, and approved. The treasurer, Stanton W. Brown, gave a report that showed a substantial balance in the treasury. Wellington Miner was appointed a member of the refreshment committee for the July meeting and LeRoy Miner was appointed a member of the entertainment committee for the same month. It was voted to leave the arrangements for the next meeting in the hands of the two committees. They will decide whether it is to be an outdoor meeting and they will select the place.

Following the short business session, the meeting was turned over to the entertainment committee, Lewis E Aldrich and Harry Cripps. The opening number was a piano solo by Virginia Ward. The chairman then called upon the pastor to introduce the speaker of the evening, Dr. John F. O'Brien, superintendent of the Seaside sanatorium at Niantic, in the introduction, Rev. Mr. Potter spoke very high words of praise for the wonderful work being carried on and directed by Dr. O'Brien among the tubercular children at Niantic. He spoke of his pleasant association with the doctor during his pastorate of three years in that town. He said he believed that Dr. O'Brien, in the spirit of the living Christ, was carrying out His work of healing. Taking the crippled boys and girls from all over the state and restoring to normal health their bodies thereby giving them not only the blessing of a good clean body but also putting new courage into their lives. Rev. Mr. Potter said no one could see the work carried on by Dr. O'Brien without a feeling of love and respect for him.

In replying, Dr. O'Brien said the feeling of love and respect was reciprocated by him toward Rev. Mr. Potter because of the religious work and Scout work carried on by the minister during his pastorate at Niantic. Rev. Mr. Potter carried on a weekly school of religious education for Protestant children, a weekly school of religious education for Jewish children and a Boy Scout troop. He visited the Seaside several times a week to carry on this work. Dr. O'Brien told of one particular case where the minister had been able, through his religious training, to change the life and action of one of the boys in such a manner that he became a most helpful patient when formerly he was incorrigible. He said he felt when the minister left the town for a new field not only the church but the Seaside suffered a great loss.

Dr. O'Brien gave a most interesting talk on the subject, "Heliotherapy," the method of treating tuberculosis by exposing the body to the sun. He said that if exposure to the sun was beneficial to sick bodies it was also helpful to healthy bodies, and he advised the audience to dress their children with as few clothes as possible, especially during the summer. He told them to never, even in the most severe winter, wear woolen underclothes because the skin needed a free circulation of fresh air to keep the body well. He told how the children at the Seaside go almost naked summer and winter, yet during the time he has been in charge, which is over ten years, there has never been a case of pneumonia among the patients. He explained the salt-free diet that is being carried out at the Seaside among the doctors and nurses as well as the patients. He spoke of the amount of uncooked vegetables that are served and explained that many of the helpful qualities are lost by the cooking process. He said that exposure of the entire body to the sun during both summer and winter not only does not cause colds, but actually is a most effective means of prevention. It is generally acknowledged today that those ailments are the result of faulty elimination of heat, a condition best brought about by covering the body with a heavy layer of clothing. He advised the adults as well as children to cultivate a chilly feeling in winter, thereby insuring a healthy circulation.

The doctor said that most of the children on entrance to the Seaside are suffering from active disease and complaining of intense pain; it is most unusual for them to have any pain after they have had the sun treatment for ten days.

One boy of rather unusual intelligence, who could give a fairly accurate description of his symptoms before admission, stated that for a year and a half he had been in constant pain day and night. After ten days of exposure to the sun, his pain completely disappeared and has not since recurred. You are all familiar with the pale, under-nourished child, with anxious expression, the irritable disposition, the result of long nights of disturbed rest and constant pain. After ten days of sun treatment there is noticed a surprising change. The appetite has improved, the skin has taken on the glow of health, the expression is happy and contented, the disposition is no longer irritable and fretful and the sleep is long and undisturbed.

Following his talk, Dr. O'Brien answered a number of questions. To the question as to how many of the children were cured, he said that 40 per cent were actually cured and all were greatly improved. George Wargo, the doctor's secretary, exhibited about a thousand feet of moving pictures showing the life and activities at the sanatorium, both in the winter and summer. The doctor explained the pictures were the daily life of the children and were not some especially posed for the public.

Virginia Ward played another piano solo which was appreciated by all. The refreshment committee, A. D. Zabriskie, Robert Brown and Stanton W. Brown, assisted by Lewis Aldrich and Woodruff T. Sullivan, served ice cream and fancy cookies.

Former Norwich Town residents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. George of Bristol, where Mr. George is manager of a popular automobile sales place, were cordially greeted Sunday evening when calling briefly on their former neighbors on Town street. Mr. and Mrs. George had motored from their home accompanied by friends, to New London and Ocean beach, stopping en route to call on friends at Gales Ferry, also to visit the family of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie George of Washington street.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

INSPECT VEGETABLE FIELDS FOR EUROPEAN CORN BORER

Field inspection of certain vegetables grown within the sections of Connecticut quarantined on account of the European corn borer, now underway, is the first stage in the summer operation of the quarantine maintained by the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station and the United States department of agriculture. After July 1 the road patrol of automobiles leaving the restricted area will be stationed.

Growers who wish to ship celery, green beans in the pod, beets with tops and rhubarb across the line of restriction must have their fields regularly inspected for the borer. At this time of year the borer is in the small larval stages and appears as a dirty white worm not an inch long.

The quarantine line on the two-generation borer runs from Woodstock on the Massachusetts border to Branford on Long Island Sound and includes Meriden and Berlin. All territory eastward is under restriction. Salisbury, North Canaan, Enfield and Somers are under regulation for the one-generation borer.

SET OUT PEPPER PLANTS

The pepper likes hot weather and a generous supply of moisture. See that it does not suffer for water and you will be assured of a liberal crop. It is also a plant that relishes a sprinkling upon its foliage, something not so good for other vegetables.

There is little demand for hot peppers except as they are needed for mixed pickles and other condiments in the fall so a very few hot pepper plants will suffice. The main crop for general use is the sweet pepper, the flesh of which is mild and sweet and has no hot qualities. It is safest to plant the sweet and hot peppers in different parts of the garden in order to avoid any painful mistakes in selecting as they cannot be told apart when growing.

Dropping a hot pepper into a soup or stew that calls for a sweet pepper will make it unfit for use.

Give the peppers plenty of room to grow and spread out. From eight to eighteen inches apart in the row depending upon how robust a growing type you select is the right spacing.

Large type peppers are grown to be used as stuffed peppers. These dishes are much relished and the larger the pepper the more easily it is filled with the forcemeat to be cooked in it. Magnum Dulce is one of the finest for this type.

Peppers of more regular form and uniform size are desirable for slicing in salads. The upright salad pepper is a popular type of this sort. The pimento pepper furnishes the thickest sweetest flesh of any of the sweet peppers and is the variety used for canning commercially. It is a long season and only plants that were started early should be planted now. It is betted fitted for the southern than the northern states.

CALIFORNIA LETTUCE CROP SAVED BY RESEARCH WORKER

Everyone knows that California is an important lettuce-growing state, but perhaps few people know that the Imperial Valley produced 23 per cent of the 1929 crop of the United States, and that research work, largely by one investigator, made it possible to carry on the industry there.

Eight years ago lettuce growers in the Imperial Valley were faced with disaster. Brown blight, a strange new disease, threatened to put an end to lettuce growing. Diseased plants would gradually dry up and turn brown, becoming a total loss.

Lettuce growers of the region appealed to the United States department of agriculture for help, and Ivan C. Jagger was sent there to make investigations. In the hope of finding resistance to brown blight, Mr. Jagger grew about 100 varieties of lettuce in diseased soil in 1923. Two varieties, Big Boston and White Chavigne, proved to be entirely immune, but these varieties are not the type wanted by the lettuce eaters of the nation.

The next step was to make crosses between these immune varieties and the New York variety, the principal commercial sort grown along the Pacific coast. Breeding and selection of these crosses is now beginning to give strains of lettuce which combine the resistance of the White Chavigne and the desirable type of the New York, but the new strains are not yet in commercial use.

While this work was being done Mr. Jagger was also trying another much shorter method of solving his problem. He searched diseased fields for occasional healthy plants, in the hope of finding resistant individuals which could be perpetuated. After several years of tireless effort this plan gave the desired results, and lettuce grown in the Imperial Valley last year was worth $10,000,000 to the growers and perhap twice that much in theeastern markets.

KEEP ON PLANTING CORN

Corn planting time is a fixture in the garden from mid-May until mid-June. The warmer the weather the faster it grows. The bearing season of sweet corn is short. The ear is at its best quality for only a brief space of two or three days at most after which it gets too old to be of finest quality.

It is necessary to make succession plantings about ten days apart to keep up a succession of the highest quality corn. It is better to make several rather small plantings, sufficient to yield several messes than to make a planting so large that it cannot all be used before the ears become too mature for good table quality.

The chief reason for planting more than can be used for the table is to provide a supply for canning or drying. Cold packing corn has proved a great success with many housewives who annually put up their home supply rather than depend on the tin can variety always on sale. Some home canners have not been so successful with home canned corn. It is necessary to follow directions explicitly as to time and heat to make a success of it.

Plant the heavier growing, larger eared corn now for main crop to follow the little nuggets of sweetness furnished by Golden Bantam. Many cannot be beguiled away from Golden Bantam and will make all their plantings of this variety. This will give a satisfactory yield but the larger ears on a hot day give less trouble in picking as not so many are needed for a mess and they furnish a greater yield per stalk.

In putting in the corn, remember that the soil can't be too mellow or too rich. Fertilize heavily and be prepared to give steady cultivation to keep the group stirred when the spears appear above ground.

Corn in its younger stages is not affected by any serious garden pests. The corn ear worm gives trouble when the ears are nearing maturity. Kill all the worms as fast as their presence is detected. Do not let any of them go to the chrysalis stage in the ears as they will only provide another family of worms.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall or Liggett Drug Store.

In the U. S. Public Health Reports of 1923, Volume 38, Page 1271, we find the following: "Among short men less than 5 feet 7 inches in height an excess (in weight) of 20% involves an added mortality of 30% above normal. A 40% excess adds 80% to the mortality." We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. Season your Vegetables while Cooking with a dash of Sugar

The combination of sugar and salt improves the flavor of fresh or canned vegetables in a most surprising way. It emphasizes the mild taste of spinach; mellows the tartness of tomatoes; blends deliciously with the flavor of peas, carrots, string beans, corn, onions, cabbage and other vegetables.

Vegetables, however, are not the only class of essential foods which can be improved by this seasoning. Many cooks keep a mixture of sugar and salt within reach for use in meat stews, pot-roasts and salad dressings. Some prefer a mixture that contains equal parts of sugar and salt, but suit your taste.

Doctors and dietitians recommend the use of sugar in flavoring and seasoning, because it encourages the consumption of foods rich in vitamins, minerals and roughage. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.

GREENEVILLE

ANNUAL REPORT OF COMMUNITY WORKERS

The Greeneville Community Workers held the final meeting of the season on Thursday, June 12. It was to have been an outdoor meeting but due to poor weather was held at the home of Mrs. John McNeely on Boswell avenue. Reports were read which show that the society is in good financial standing.

The same officers were elected for another year. After a social hour the ladies sat down to a delicious luncheon, each lady providing a part which consisted of salt-boat salad, beer loaf, pickles, olives, rolls, strawberry short cake with whipped cream and coffee. A very pleasant afternoon was spent and it was voted to hold a picnic at the summer home of Mrs. Chas. Levitsky some time in July. The annual report of the Community Workers follows:

The past year of the Community Workers has been a very busy one. Ten regular meetings have been held and a great deal of extra work has been done, besides tying quilts of which we had a goodly number. During the months of October, November and December the time was entirely given over to work for the Christmas sale. Aprons were made, dolls dressed and fancy articles made for the sale which proved a very successful affair. At this time also, several Christmas stockings were made and filled with candy and a little gift, each member being responsible for one stocking. These were given to a family of little children and were greatly appreciated. A needy family was given the sum of five dollars to help them over a hard place.

A donation was given to the Salvation Army to help in the Christmas dinner for the needy. A good sized basket was sent to a sick boy. Gifts of flowers, books, dolls and money have been sent out in the line of sunshine work. On May 2, our annual May basket distribution took place. Nineteen lovely baskets filled with quite a variety of dainties were sent out to cheer among the aged and sick, and although there has been a lot of work done, there has also been time for recreation. During the summer we had two picnics, made possible by the kindness of Mrs. Chas. Levitsky who invited us to her summer home at the Drawbridge and did everything possible to make it pleasant for us, and at all our regular meetings the hostesses had something nice for us in the way of entertainment and luncheon. And there was our Christmas party which was such a success in every way with a turkey dinner, a Christmas tree and gifts for all. It was a time of enjoyment we have not yet forgotten, and so although our membership is small, we have willing hands and so can carry on.

Respectfully submitted,
ISABELLA McNEELY, Sec.

GIRLS SHOW THEIR WORK DONE IN AMERICANIZATION

At the June meeting of the Woman's Crusade, held this week in the woman's room of the Central Baptist church, the president, Mrs. Nathan Gilman, was in the chair. Following the reports of the secretary, Mrs. William F. Bailey, and the treasurer, Mrs. Robert McNeely, Mrs. Gilman, recently re-elected to the presidency of the Crusade, gave an impressive and timely message. "In the invitation," said Mrs. Gilman, "you have so kindly given me again to become your president, I see the approach of the hour for which I have long been watching—the hour when, laying aside all creeds and all theological differences, breaking through all barriers we must unite in one great company, with one common purpose, to work for the great causes of our day. Prohibition and world peace should call forth the united efforts of all who love our country."

During the business session a birthday remembrance was voted to James Coggins for his courtesies concerning the room in which the Crusade has met during the year.

The closing program consisted of an Americanization session, illustrated by 22 girls, members of the Wednesday afternoon sewing schools, led by Mrs. Robert W. Otis.

In a very attractive manner the girls gave the songs, drills and recitations learned in the class during the winter. Attention was also called to the dresses "made by hand" and worn by the girls. This very creditable work was done during the sessions of the class.

The responsive attitude of the entire group "spoke volumes" for the value of this piece of Americanization work carried on so ably by Mrs. Otis and her assistants, among whom is Mrs. Harold A. Johnson. This work is now sponsored by the Council of Religious Education of Norwich.

Very appreciative thanks were given Mrs. Otis to "come again."

Before adjournment the Crusade voted to hold a special meeting at 1.30 o'clock on Friday afternoon, the 20th, with Mrs. Mary A. Welles, of Hartford, as guest. Mrs. Welles is president of the W. C. T. U. of Connecticut. Her visit to Norwich will be made for the purpose of making plans for the W. C. T. U. state convention to be held in this city in October.

BOY SCOUT MAKES HERO RESCUE OF GIRL FROM DROWNING AT BALTIC

Scout James Hood, 13, plunged into the waters of the Shetucket, 15 feet from the sluice gate at the Baltic mill, Tuesday afternoon, to rescue Florence Delude, 12, who had been caught by the swift current and was being pulled to the bottom by the suction.

He heard cries of distress coming from the river and when he ran to the bank saw a girl struggling in the deep water of the bulkheads. He reached the bulkheads just as she came up for the second time. Without hesitating, he dived from the wall fully dressed, with his shoes on. He was carried to the girl by the current caused by the mill wheels and grabbed her by the arm. The girl, in her despair, struggled fiercely, twining her legs around him, and the boy realizing his own peril struck her a blow in the face. The blow accomplished its purpose for she rolled back and was fast disappearing for the third time, being already two feet below the surface when he grabbed her by the hair. She was unconscious and thus he was able to keep her face above the water. He turned around, hoping to buck the current, but realized this was impossible. He made for the wall and was lucky in finding a ledge, where he hung on with the fingers of one hand and clutching the girl's hair by the other, kicking fiercely to keep himself from being sucked under by the current caused by the mill wheels. Just as everything seemed hopeless he heard a motor boat. After what seemed an eternity the boat drew along side and in it were four fellow scouts. Scout Alfred Courtamanche lifted the girl into the boat and Scout Russell Higham and Scout Freeman Beautau helped to get the exhausted boy into the boat. The boat was owned by Scout George Heibel and he put all he knew into the speed. The girl was land on the bank and after a while, with a bruised face and feeling very sick, she was able to walk home.

According to parents who live in the neighborhood, two persons have lost their lives at this very spot within the last few years, and all the boys of the neighborhood know the danger in getting too near the sluice.

Four children saw Florence swept away by the current and called for help. They were Gerand Lafleur, Willie Peloquin, Irene Chamberlain, Reta Peloquin, but they were too small to render her any assistance.

According to Scout Executive John Sellman and William Wyman, who investigated the accident, Scout Hood probably ran considerable danger in making the rescue. If investigation reveals that the danger was great, the local council will apply to the National Court of Honor for a life saving award.

When Florence was questioned, she said that she could remember nothing about the rescue but her fright. Since Scout Hood had to strike her, it is probable she was unconscious from fear. The relatives of Florence spoke very gratefully of the rescue of their niece, declaring that the sluice was a very dangerous spot and that none of the children would go near it any more, and highly commended James.

When Scout Hood returned home with his best clothes all wet, he was very diffident about telling what happened but finally explained the cause of his plight to his parents. The rescue was reported by the scouts who assisted James because they thought he had performed an heroic act. Scout Hood had no knowledge of life saving.

MAKES BEQUESTS TO CHURCH AND HOSPITAL

A bequest of $5,000 to the First Universalist society of this city and $1,000 to the New York Homeopathic Medical college and Flower hospital of New York is made in the will of Dr. Lester E. Walker, who died here last Saturday and whose will was filed Tuesday in the probate court. The bequest to the Universalist society is in memory of Dr. Walker's mother.

The will was drawn Aug. 11, 1920, and was witnessed by Roy E. Keller, Henry T. Gorman and Charles R. Williams.

Helen B. S. Hooper, who is now Mrs. Aaron Hardy of this city, is made executrix and trustee under the will. To her in trust is left $3,000, of which the income or principal is to be used for Leroy W. Walker. If Margaret Walker, mother of Leroy Walker, survives Leroy, this sum shall be used for her benefit, and whatever remains of this sum, after the death of the doctor and these two beneficiaries, is to be divided so that one-half will go to the First Universalist society of Norwich and the other one-half to Maud Smith and her two children, Helen B. S. Hooper and Frank Russell Smith, or to the survivors. If none of these should be living at the time of the termination of the trust the entire balance goes to the Universalist society.

Another trust of $500 is created for the benefit of Margaret Walker during her lifetime, or if she be not living, to go to the Universalist society.

The sum of $5,000 is left to Maud Smith, or if she be not living, to Helen B. S. Hooper and Frank Russell Smith, or to the survivor; $500 to Frank Russell Smith and $1,000 to Eliza Lavin of Kelly avenue, Wethersfield, with the proviso in each instance that the money goes to the Universalist society in the event of the death of the beneficiary. The sum of $500 is left to Ida Green of Norwich.

The executrix is directed to erect on the Walker plot in Yantic cemetery, a monument of appropriate material and design at a cost not to exceed $1,000. "It is my wish that the monument now upon said lot be removed and the best possible disposition made of it."

To Dr. Edward H. Linnell of Norwich, now deceased, the will leaves all surgical and medical books, instruments and equipment and, also, the sum of $500, "as a token of my appreciation for the care bestowed upon my mother during her lifetime and the many favors he has done me."

To Dr. Edward H. Linnell, now deceased, are left all surgical and medical books, instruments and equipment and, also the sum of $500," as a token of my appreciation for the care bestowed upon my mother during her life time and the many favors he has done me."

In the will, Dr. Walker says: "To persons who have been patients of mine, I give and bequeath the debts or sums of money due or owing to me at the time of my death for professional services rendered.

"All the rest, residue and remainder of my estate, real, personal or mixed, of whatever it may consist, or wherever it may be situated, I give, devise and bequeath as follows, to wit: One-half of said rest and residue to the said The First Universalist society, for its general uses and purposes and the other half to the said Maud Smith, Helen B. S. Hooper and Frank Russell Smith, or to the survivors or survivor, and should neither of said persons be living at my death, then bequeath all of said rest, residue and remainder to the said First Universalist society for its general uses and purposes."

SETTLEMENT IN HALL'S APPEAL FROM ASSESSMENT

The appeal from the Norwich board of relief which had been brought to the superior court by Attorney John D. Hall over the assessment of $5,560 upon Mr. Hall's residence at No. 56 Otis street, was settled by a compromise agreement which was reached Wednesday. The case was scheduled to come up for trial here in the superior court Wednesday morning, but the settlement was reached between counsel before court opened for the day. Attorney E. W. Higgins represented Mr. Hall and the town and city were represented by H. H. Pettis, town counsel, and E. W. Higgins, corporation counsel.

It was stipulated in the agreement that the house 56 Otis street should be assessed at $4,180, instead of $5,560, this reduction being on account of depreciational obsolescence due to age. The assessment on the lot is to remain at $1,060, the same as before, thus making the total assessed value of the property $5,240.

NEW YORK UNRESTRAINED IN ITS WELCOME OF COM. BYRD

Explorer and Members of His Party Were Accorded One of the Greatest Popular Demonstrations of Welcome In the History of the City—Sound of Sirens Filled the Harbor As the Tug Macom Brought the Admiral From Quarantine to the Battery—Half a Million Persons Cheered the Party As It Rode Along Broadway Through a Paper Blizzard—In Interviews Commander Byrd Told of the Strangeness of Life Where His Base Was Situated In the Antarctic.

NEW YORK, June 19—(AP)—From a land so devoid of life that there aren't even microbes in the water, a country without horizons where sight is distorted as in a broken mirror, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd came home today for one of the greatest popular welcomes in the city's history.

Along his triumphal path hundreds of thousands cheered this man from the ends of the earth whose latest exploit was to fly over the South Pole just as he previously soared above the North Pole. On his way to the pole he discovered under the ice and now of the Antarctic enough coal to keep all the peoples of the earth warm for generations and found about 125,000 square miles of hitherto unknown land upon which he planted the stars and stripes.

In two interviews wedged between the many ceremonies of his first day back in New York, the admiral spoke of the strangeness of life in Little America, where his base was situated, and of the scientific achievements his little army of men had accomplished.

"Not only was new land discovered," he said, "but it was also established that Carmen Land, reported by Amundsen, was not land at all. This is in no way discreditable to Amundsen, because great pressure ice ridges pushed up in the air like mountains give the impression of land, and then there are mirages and most peculiar atmospheric conditions.

"In the Antarctic daylight you can't see with any accuracy. You might fall down a crevasse by walking right into it without seeing it. If there is a pressure ridge to the east of you, you may look at it and then think you may see another to the west that is not there at all. Small objects look large, one of our men mistook a shoe lying not ten feet from him for a seal. There is no visible horizon and everything is distorted. It was quite natural to believe that there was land where Amundsen reported his Carmen Land, but it is now established that here is no land there."

At a luncheon at the Advertising club, which immediately followed the official and popular greeting of the explorer, Grover Whalen, who greets heroes for the mayor, said today's welcome equalled that given Col. Charles A. Lindbergh after he flew the Atlantic.

The harbor was filled with the sound of sirens as the city tug Macom brought the admiral from Quarantine and at the Battery and along Broadway close to half a million persons cheered themselves hoarse as the members of the expedition rode slowly through a paper snowstorm as dense as any blizzard they encountered in the polar regions.

After the luncheon Admiral Byrd told reporters more of life at the bottom of the world. Among the important scientific discoveries, he said, was the finding of carboniferous materials indicating enormous coal deposits. He realized that this coal could not be mined profitably at present but visualized the possibility of its having commercial value in the future.

"The Antarctic now," he said, "is going through an ice age, but we found evidence that at some time in the past it enjoyed a tropical or semi-tropical temperature."

Unlike the Arctic, which has many forms of both plant and animal life, Antarctica is entirely lifeless except for the hardiest of flora such as lichen and certain animals that merely sojourn for seasonal visits on the very edge.

"There aren't even bugs in the water," Admiral Byrd said. "It is so sterile that doctors can use it just as it is without any fear of infection."

"What," asked a girl reporter, "did you miss the most down there?"

"Well," he replied in his soft Virginia tones, "we missed the ladies an awful lot." He smiled and then, as though seeing once more the icy wastes in which he and his men lived for 16 months he spoke more seriously. "As a matter of fact," he said, "I guess we missed the ordinary sounds of civilized life more than almost anything. Silence lies over Antarctica as though the sense of hearing had ceased to function. That is, it does until the temperature gets down to 60 degrees below zero and then you can hear the ice begin to crack like cannons."

The only disciplinary program in Little America consisted of one rule and that was that no matter how much you hate it you have to get up in the morning, even when there weren't any mornings. During the long seasonal nights morning was just an hour on the clock, but it was time to get up just the same.

"During those long nights," the admiral said, "it is necessary not to stay in bed and to keep regular hours to avoid going haywire mentally."

The explorer said that he had no plans for the future and would not make any until the deficit of approximately $100,000 for the present expedition was paid up. But he did say that there was enough scientific data still to be gathered in the Antarctic to justify another expedition there and that he "wouldn't object" to leading such a party.

Before leaving to attend a dinner tendered him by the Merchants association, Admiral Byrd told of one dramatic moment shortly before he came home. He was considering establishment of a permanent weather observatory in Little America and he asked for volunteers to stay when he and the rest went back to their homes.

"A dozen men volunteered," he said, "and that shows something of the spirit of the men I had with me. I decided, however, that I did not want the continued responsibility which would have been mine if I left some of my men behind and so the idea was abandoned."

Among those who volunteered to stay were L. M. Gould, the geologist who was second in command, Frank T. Davies, the physicist, and Henry T. Harrison Jr., the aerologist.

REPORT ARRAIGNS THE HARTFORD POLICE DEPT.

HARTFORD, June 19—(AP)—With a report featured by a severe arraignment of the laxness of prohibition enforcement by the Hartford police department and recommendations for the removal of Chief Garrett J. Farrell and Detective Sergeant Nicholas J. Ambrosino, whose official acts it urges be investigated by State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn, the grand jury ended an inquiry of six months into the county liquor situation this afternoon and was discharged from further service by Judge John Richards of superior court.

Most of the report is devoted to conditions within the police department, which is accused by the jury of making class distinction in enforcing the liquor laws. There is no effort by the police to attack the source of supply for the wealthy residents of Hartford, according to the report, enforcement is confined to the poorer sections of the city, where a liquor squad composed of two men, one of whom it says lacks the confidence of some of his superiors is allowed to roam unsupervised and unchecked.

Chief Farrell is declared to be unsympathetic with the enforcement of the liquor laws and is accused of withholding from the police commissioners information of their violation by one of his patrolmen, Robert E. Daley, who was arrested in a car carrying liquor by state police on September 24, 1927, and released by Clifford Gorgas, then a lieutenant of the state police, who has since been discharged.

DECREASE IN LOANS TO BROKERS AND DEALERS

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP)—Loans to brokers and dealers held by New York Federal Reserve member banks for the week ending June 18, were announced by the Federal Reserve board today as $3,757,000,000, representing a decrease of $211,000,000 as compared with the preceding week.

BANKERS WILL ADVISE LESS SPECULATION, MORE THRIFT

DENVER, June 19.— (AP) — Less speculation, more thrift will be the gist of advice that the American Institute of Banking is going to give American people in a vast program of education that will embrace hundreds of radio talks and published articles.

The public education committee of the institute laid its plans today at the annual convention. The program mapped out is a continuation of one begun last year when 300,000 persons were reached through one medium or another with the gospel of thrift.

"Next to religious finance is uppermost in every man's thought", said Fred Brower, Jr., of Winston Salem, N. C. "There is no greater service banks can render than to teach persons to save and provide for their survivors after death and to teach children so they will be better able to cope with the financial problems which are to confront them in later life. Those who learn thrift are assured of a happier life than those who do not learn it."

REORGANIZATION OF FEDERAL POWER COMMISSION ASSURED

WASHINGTON, June 19.— (AP) — Reorganization of the federal power commission into an independent agency of five commissioners to devote their entire time to the administration of the nation's water power resources was assured today when congressional action was completed on legislation relieving the present organization.

Final action by the house on the conference report of a senate bill marked the fulfillment of another request of President Hoover in his annual message to congress. The measure will relieve the secretaries of war, interior and agriculture of the burdensome duty.

FIND LOSS OF 16 LIVES WAS DUE TO UPSET LIFEBOATS

NEW HAVEN, June 19.—(AP)—Loss of 16 lives in the burning of the Long Island sound freighter Thames off Sound Beach, Conn., on the night of April 24, was due to upset of lifeboats, the finding of the United States Steamboat Inspection report, filed today said in part. The deaths were in no way due to lack of caution on the part of the steamer's officers or the refusal of other craft to come to aid of the crew. The finding was signed by Captain A. R. Chapman and Captain H. C. Colgin, of the service, and it was filed here.

USHERS AT WEDDING PALL BEARERS AT FUNERAL

BRIDGEPORT, June 19. — (AP) — Friends who were ushers at his wedding only two weeks ago acted as pallbearers at the funeral of Robert Torresso, 19-year-old son of Mrs. Madeline Torresso of 262 Adams street today, and among the bearers was Ernest Leako, his best man.

Torresso, assistant grounds keeper at the Eastern league baseball park during the season of 1929, was married on June 2, to Miss Dorothy Breisford. He complained of a sore throat a few days later and after consulting a physician found that he was suffering from an infected tonsil. His condition grew rapidly worse and last Saturday he was taken to the Bridgeport hospital in a delirious condition. An abscess had formed on the tonsil and his condition had grown too delicate for an operation. He died on Monday, just a short time before the hour of his marriage two weeks before.

ASSAILANT THOUGHT TO BE "MANIAC SLAYER"

NEW YORK, June 19—(AP)—A man said to answer the description of the Queens "maniac slayer" tonight shot and critically wounded Morris Horwitz, 50-year-old insurance broker, near his home in Brooklyn.

Horwitz said the gunman stepped into his automobile as he started the motor to drive it to the garage at his home. Ordering him to drive rapidly, the intruder sat down beside Horwitz, who believed the order was a joke. He started at a moderate speed and laughed when the man ordered him to go faster.

Suddenly the intruder struck him with the butt of his pistol, and as Horwitz shut off the gasoline and stopped the car, he was shot in the chest. The gunman leaped from the machine and fled on foot.

SETTLES ALL DIFFERENCES WITH HIS FORMER WIFE

NEW YORK, June 19—(AP)—Clifford Warren Smith, millionaire and present husband of Claire Luce, film actress, settled all differences with his former wife, Mrs. Ardath Crane Johnston, today in supreme court.

Under the terms of the settlement, the divorce decree granted his first wife in Yorke county, Maine, in September, 1927, remains valid and affirmed. In addition, their six year old daughter, Ardath C. Warren Smith, will receive $9,000 a year until she is thirteen, when she will get $10,000 a year until she is twenty-one.

The action arose out of a trust estate established for Smith by his father.

CENSUS SHOWS POPULATION OF MASSACHUSETTS 4,364,972

Totals for the individual cities and towns showed a decided movement of growth to the suburban residential communities. This was especially true in the greater Boston area, where one large town doubled its population and several others nearly did likewise. Boston's population is 783,451.

WORRIES ACCUMULATING FOR TARIFF COMMISSION

WASHINGTON, June 19—(AP)—While a house committee today gave over the attempt to bind together the tag ends that have sprung out in a variety of proposals affecting tariff rates, new worries were accumulating for the tariff commission.

At the same time a measure was introduced in the house to widen the scope of the investigation the senate already has instructed the commission to make into the cost of production of a group of articles.

Warrants Issued For Kidnapers In Det[illegible]

Following Confessi[illegible] which Told of Activit[illegible] extending Over Ten [illegible]

DETROIT, June 19 [illegible]—Warrants were issued today [illegible] six alleged members of the Joseph (Legs) Laman gang of kidnapers and murderers following Laman's confession in which he told of the gang's activities over a period of almost ten years.

Five young men and a young woman, alleged members of another gang which planned to go into the kidnaping racket also had warrants issued against them, charging conspiracy to kidnap.

Laman's confession named Harry Hallisey, Ben Rubenstein, Stanley De Long, Joe O'Reardon, Jerry Mulane and Roy Cornelious. The first three are held here, O'Reardon and Mulane are sought by police and Cornelious is in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kansas.

The young woman, Frances Polobski, and her five companions, Morris Khan, Hyman case, Harry Metzger, Gidio Gowatch and Frank Verzi are considered "amateurs" by police, who say they plotted to kidnap Max Kerner, Detroit amusement park operator, and hold him for ransom.

Laman was a principal figure in the kidnaping and murder of David Cass last summer. He and Harry Andrews are serving terms of 30 to 40 years in the Michigan state prison at Jackson for the kidnaping of Fred Begeman, retired Wyandotte bootlegger. Edward Wiles and Frank Hohfer are serving life terms for the murder of Cass. Police announced today that Laman's confession was corroborated by statements from Andrews and De Long. They involved all the alleged members of the gang against whom warrants were issued today.

The specific charge in the warrants is kidnaping Reuben J. Cohen, who was abducted August 2, 1928, and released after $7,100 ransom was paid.

Police have information that some members of the Laman gang took part in the kidnaping of five-year-old Jackie Thompson, son of Henry Thompson, Detroit real estate dealer. Jackie was kidnaped last September, held for three weeks and rescued by police after his father paid $27,000 ransom. James Fernando, Detroit used car dealer, is serving a 30 to 60 year sentence for kidnaping the Thompson boy. A long list of other kidnapings and slayings is laid to the Laman gang by police.

PLANS TO MAKE CHICAGO UNHEALTHY FOR GANGSTERS

CHICAGO, June 19—(AP)—Elaborate plans were completed tonight for clearing Chicago of gang murders as a result of the assassination ten days ago of Jake Lingle, Tribune crime reporter, whose death has as yet been unsolved.

The united efforts of Mayor William Hale Thompson of the reorganized police department and of the city council were pledged not only to solve the murder of Lingle but to cleaning up the underworld. While there were no clues to the assassins of Lingle and his close friend, William Russell had stepped out as police commissioner, the police chief's successor, John Alcock said he would carry out the order of the mayor to free Chicago from brutal slayings and started reforms in police assignments to align his forces for battle.

The gangsters were not in evidence, many having taken vacations and even the hired gunmen lying low. No violent deaths of the underworld type have taken place since Lingle was shot down from behind in the pedestrian subway to the Illinois Central suburban station in the heart of a downtown crowd.

Alcock informed the city council committee that the department now has 1,100 policemen on beats. Of this number, which is spread over three shifts, not more than 400 policemen are on the streets at any one time, he said. He proposes to have more than 1,200 patrolmen on the streets at all times.

THREE MEN KILLED WHEN BRIDGE FELL INTO RIVER

FREDERICK, Md., June 19.—Three or more men were killed and six injured this afternoon as half of the steel state highway bridge over the Monocacy river on the Washington highway three miles west of here, fell 20 feet into the swollen waters.

The men were repairing the flooring of the bridge when the collapse took place as a heavy truck drove over the structure.

The bodies of three men were recovered, and the six injured brought here. Two other men were trapped under the wreckage, in the water, it was feared.

The span that collapsed represented half the structure and was 100 feet long. About ten men were working on the bridge.

DEMANDING SATURDAY SESSION OF THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, June 19—(AP)—Senate advocates of the veterans relief bill tonight were demanding a Saturday session to force early action in view of the refusal of Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, to agree for an immediate vote on the bill.

Reed's action, which was interpreted by some as indicating presidential opposition to the veterans measure upset the adjournment program and estimates for an end of this session ranged tonight from June 26 to July 1.

Friends of the veterans bill expressed fear it will get through congress so late that no opportunity will be given for a vote to override a veto should President Hoover disapprove the bill.

NEW YORK, June 19.—(AP)—The liner Berengaria, due in New York tomorrow morning, has developed trouble in one of her four turbines and is not likely to dock until late Saturday, the Cunard line was advised today. The exact nature of the cause of the turbine breakdown was not announced but the speed of the Berengaria, normally about 23 1-2 knots, has been reduced to about 17. The turbine went out of commission yesterday.

Aboard the liner is Betty Carstairs, English girl motorboat racer.

Explains Cost Of Electrical Energy

George N. Tidd Answers the Speech Made By Ambassador Sackett In Berlin.

BERLIN, June 19.—(AP)—A spokesman for the power industry tonight answered the speech made yesterday by Ambassador Frederic M. Sackett, in which the ambassador said in effect that the cost of power to the consumer was 15 times that of the cost of production.

"The cost of a banana on a tree," asserts a statement issued by George N. Tidd, president of the American Gas & Electric Co., "is infinitesimal, yet by the time it has been gathered and reached the fruit stand the ratio is nearer 1,500 to 1 than 15 to 1, and similar examples are common in all kinds of industries.

"The electrical industry is by no means the only, or even the most striking, example of this great difficulty (of the spread between production cost and the cost to the consumer). In nearly every industry the cost of distributing and selling is much greater than the initial cost of production."

Pointing out that the problem of cutting distribution costs is universal, Mr. Tidd said:

"Perhaps the best analogy is in the supply of water for domestic use. The cost of production when the water is in the hills is nothing, but by the time it has been collected and purified and transmitted to domestic users, high expenses inevitably have been incurred.

"There is a continuous chain of costs in the process of producing electrical energy from water in the hills or coal in the mines. By choosing any particular point in this chain for calculating the cost of production, any ratio you like can be obtained. The selling price may be not 15 but probably 150 times, if not 1,500 times, the cost of water in the lake.

"On the other hand, it would be just as logical to calculate the ratio not at the generating station but at some point between the central point and the customer—at some point where the ratio would be more like two or three times."

Mr. Sackett's speech was delivered yesterday despite objections to the "fifteen to one" portion by Samuel Insull, wealthy utility man of Chicago. After Mr. Insull's protests were received the embassy issued orders to hold up advance copies of the speech, but later cancelled them and the address was delivered in full.

TARIFF REPRISALS ARE THREATENED BY FRANCE

PARIS, June 19.— (AP) — Official France's first move of protest against the new American tariff and the first official threat of reprisals against its enforcement were made today by the committee on customs of the chamber of deputies.

After short deliberations the committee adopted the following "order of the day" to be submitted to Premier Tardieu.

"The committee on customs of the chamber, after examining attentatively the consequences of the increase in customs duties decided upon by the United States, notes with regret:

"First, that the new American tariff, affecting especially the most active branches of production, will sensibly decrease French exports to that great, friendly country.

"Second, that it will seriously increase the difficulties which generalized economic nationalism is bringing about in international exchanges.

"Third, that owing to the injury done to the equilibrium of their commercial balances, countries which have debts to settle with the United States risk severe tension in their monetary systems."

The committee deems it necessary to adopt French customs duties, as applied to American products, to the regime to which will be submitted French exports to America, and requests the government to intervene immediately with the president of the United States to obtain such decrease in American customs duties necessary to the maintenance of French exports.

"The committee on customs, in event that such intervention remains without results, would insist upon suppression of the clause now granting most favored nation treatment to the United States, deeming it illogical that the United States should benefit by such treatment without the slightest reciprocity such as consented by other nations."

HOUSES IN INDIA BEING BOMBED BY DISTURBERS

BOMBAY, India, July 19—(AP)—Bombs today became the menace to the administration of British authority in India.

In Lahore, Amritsar, Lyallpur, Gujrnwala and Rawalpindi explosions of deadly missiles tossed into vacant houses and elsewhere have caused injuries to officers and been the cause of disorders.

The outrages have taken an unusual form. In each case a bomb has been exploded in a house or inn. After the police have gathered there for investigation another bomb has gone off.

At Amritsar this device was defeated by the police who heard the ticking of the timing machine of the second infernal machine.

At Lyallpur an inspector was seriously wounded and at Gujrnwala a constable was wounded and considerable property damage caused. A subinspector, head constable and constable received slight hurts.

In all cases the plot seems to have been aimed directly at the police.

SENATE LOBBY COMMITTEE LEAVES STIGMA ON CANNON

After Presenting In the Senate a Transcript of Testimony Given By Bishop Cannon, Chairman Caraway Declared: "As to the $65,300, He Stands In An Unenviable Position and He Can Answer For Himself. I Will Not"—Vice-President Curtis Announced That He Would Not Cite the Bishop to the District Attorney For Possible Contempt Proceedings.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP)—The senate wrote finis today to the controversy between its lobby committee and Bishop Cannon after a bristling last paragraph had been added by Senator Caraway of Arkansas.

The democratic chairman of the committee defended its action in not forcing the Methodist churchman to answer questions relating to the disposition of $65,300 contributed to him for the 1928 anti-Smith campaign by E. C. Jameson, a New York capitalist. But he added:

"As to the $65,300, he stands in an unenviable position and he can answer for himself. I will not."

Going into the source of the money, Caraway said he did not believe it belonged to Jameson.

"I think he was passing out the money of the republican national committee in order to fight Al Smith on religious and other grounds, and did not want to be connected with it. I may be mistaken about that."

"Bishop Cannon was brought to Jameson by Bascom Slemp, (republican national committeeman for Virginia) who was very much interested, of course, in republican success."

Chairman Caraway presented as a report from the committee, a transcript of thousands of words of testimony given by Cannon during his appearance before the group. He informed his colleagues the committee had agreed it had no right to ask the questions the bishop declined to answer. Then Vice President Curtis announced he would not cite the bishop to the district attorney for possible contempt proceedings.

Action by the vice president was the final straw to which opponents of the bishop clung in their hope that something would be done about his defiance of the lobby investigators. The announcement by Curtis definitely closed the incident.

Senator Blaine, republican, Wisconsin, had contended the law required Curtis to report the bishop to the district attorney. The vice president, however, took the position that there was nothing before him to act upon.

He explained the lobby committee itself had ruled four to one that it had no right to investigate Cannon's political activities. In addition, he said, he could act only upon a report from a full committee. The lobby investigators composed a sub-committee of the judiciary committee.

Caraway said any statement that the bishop was given "immunity" by the lobby committee was an "unqualified and deliberate falsehood." Pounding his desk as the Arkansas said:

"Certain people want to charge that Bishop Cannon was given immunity. That statement is an unqualified and deliberate falsehood and whoever utters it does so with the knowledge he is a common liar. I claim no immunity for that declaration here or anywhere else."

Referring again to criticism of the lobby committee for not compelling Cannon to answer the questions, Caraway asserted:

"There have been more statements made that arose from utter ignorance of what did occur or were prompted by malicious lying than about any other incident I know of. While it may not be parliamentary I want to say that if any one asserts that there was a different rule applied in this case than that which had been invoked in several other instances or at least that the chairman had changed his position in this matter, he either does not know what he is talking about or he is uttering a wilful and malicious lie. And that stands in the senate and outside of it."

Caraway said the committee had never inquired into purely political activities and cited a number of instances in which he said questions pertaining to such activities had been withdrawn.

During the examination of Claudius H. Huston, chairman of the republican national committee, Caraway said political questions were withdrawn six times. He added the same thing occurred during testimony of John J. Raskob, chairman of the democratic national committee, and other witnesses.

Caraway said the Steiwer committee appointed in 1928 to investigate campaign contributions had full authority to inquire into the $65,300 contributed by Jameson to Cannon.

"I am not criticising it for not doing it," he said. "It could not pursue everybody that got a nickel in that campaign and nobody ever expected it to do so. But at least it had the authority to do it. It was expressly charged with the exercise of that authority and did not do it. We had no authority to do it. We were not charged with that duty, and of course, we did not do it."

HOPE FOR EARLY CAPTURE OF MURDEROUS MANIAC

NEW YORK, June 19.—(AP)—The forces of law in New York and its environs tonight were organized in a hunt for a murderous maniac who escaped a month ago from the Kings Park asylum for the insane at East Islip, L. I., in the hope that his apprehension might solve the killing of two men in Queens within a week.

He is Joseph Ustica, slayer of William Gilbride, Brooklyn contractor, in Freeport, L. I., in 1928.

Hope of an early capture of the insane slayer was raised today by the story of Edward Miller, 15-year-old Creedmore, Queens, boy, that he probably had seen the slayer immediately after the murder of Noel Sowley, whose body was found in his auto in a lonely road near Creedmore Monday night.

The boy told police that a man came out of the bush, as he rode his bicycle close by the scene of the murder, and told him that if he looked sharp as he went along he would see an automobile parked on the side of the road.

This man, who was mentioned first as only a casual picker of dandelions, may be the killer, police now believe. Police sent for Miller as soon as it was discovered that Ustica was at large.

The same man who slew Sowley is also believed to be responsible for the killing of Joseph Mozynski, of College Point, Queens, a week ago yesterday.

NEW YORK, June 19.—(AP)—A grand jury inquiry will be made into charges that the New York Stock exchange firm of Woody & Co., which failed today, accepted payment for stocks which were not delivered, Assistant District Attorney Hastings announced this afternoon.

The announcement was the third development of the day in the affairs of the comparatively new brokerage firm which announced this morning that it was unable to meet its obligations. The firm was suspended immediately from activity on both the New York Stock and Curb exchanges, and later was placed in the hands of receivers following a petition filed by three creditors with claims totaling $88,000.

ASKS FURTHER EVIDENCE IN SLAYING OF SMITHS

MUSKOGEE, Okla., June 19.—(AP)—Phil K. Oldham, assistant county attorney, today advised John L. Wike and Lawrence Sturgess of Connecticut to obtain additional evidence before swearing to a murder charge against R. L. Benton in connection with the deaths of George and David Smith, Connecticut capitalists who were slain in their hotel room here the night of April 26.

Sheriff Hamilton said last night charges would be lodged against Belton today, but because he was unable to work on the case today in efforts to obtain additional evidence, and because Oldham believed they had insufficient evidence, the action was delayed.

INVESTIGATING CLAIMS TO THE WAILING WALL

JERUSALEM, June 19.—(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)—The international commission which will investigate Moslem and Jewish claims to the Wailing Wall arrived here today.

It is composed of Emil Loegren, former foreign minister of Sweden; Charles Barde, a Swiss jurist, and G. Van Kempen, a former Dutch colonial official. M. Sahlin, attached to the Swedish legation in Berne, is the secretary.

The commission was met by Col. Frederick Kisch on behalf of the Jewish agency, Rabbi Uziel on behalf of the rabbinate and David Yellin, Mordecai Eliash and Mosheh Blau, the three advocates to whom the presentation of the Jewish case has been entrusted. Arab leaders were not present but some Arabs were on hand to welcome Auni Bey, representative of the Arab executive at Geneva, who arrived on the same boat-train.

Dr. Cyrus Adler, president of the American Jewish committee, who was named by the Jewish agency to represent it at the commission's hearings, found it physically impossible to reach Palestine in time for the hearings. Instead, he drafted a thorough memorandum on the Wailing Wall which has been submitted to London, Jerusalem and Geneva. It was submitted in his capacity as chairman of the Jewish agency's Wailing Wall commission.

The first session will be held privately Monday with Arab and Jewish representatives present.

SEVENTY-SIX GRADUATED AT NORMAL SCHOOL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, June 19—Diplomas were presented to 76 graduates at the 40th annual commencement exercises of the Willimantic State Normal school held in the Model school auditorium at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. The presentation of diplomas was made by Henry A. Tirrell, principal of the Norwich Free Academy, in his capacity as member of the state board of education. There were 27 candidates for kindergarten-primary certificates, and 49 for intermediate upper grade diplomas.

The address to the graduates was delivered by Rev. Harry S. McCready of Kingston, R. I., formerly of this city, who is here this week for the community reunion. Rev. Mr. McCready's message was one of his inspiring themes, Life's Battle With Cynicism.

The auditorium was filled to capacity for the exercises which opened with the processional of the graduates wearing cap and gown of blue for the first time in the history of the school. The candidates marched up the center aisle which was flanked on both sides by juniors bearing the historic daisy-chain. This chain is made up of thousands of daisies, significant in the emblem, Forget-Me-Not, and its construction is part of the annual functions of the junior class.

Accompanied by Professor Morgan R. St. John, the senior class sang Dreamland Children by Cecil Forsyth, Cradle Song by Franz Shubert and In Gay Seville by Robert Gibb, as the first three numbers of a brief but lovely musical program. Following the main address Eldorado by Ciro Pinsuti and Remembrance by Johannes Brahms, were sung. The closing number was the school alma mater, the words of which were composed by Jennie E. Dennehy.

Rev. Mr. McCready's address follows in part:

"The Book of Ecclesiates is the 'cellar of the Old Testament.' The contrast between its selfish disillusionment and the glorious outburst of faith which closes the little book of Hobokkuk is a sharp one.

"On one side is a play of mind without moral depth or spiritual weight; on the other is the triumphant spirit of a great believer. These two attitudes represented by these two utterances do perpetual battle in the world. The battle used to be one in which the two opposing lines were those of age and youth. Cynical, unbelieving, supercilious old men appeared in every generation and tried to darken the sunrise in the heart of youth. But a strange thing has happened in our time. The battle with cynicism is now a battle of youth versus youth. On the one side are the youth who are followers of the gleam; the vision splendid imparts a calm glow. And upon the other hand, there is dissolute and mocking youth in the presence of the dream of a great manhood and womanhood.

"Walter Lippman says in his 'A Preface to Minds' that what most distinguishes the generations who have approached maturity since the debacle of idealism at the end of the war is not the rebellion against the moral code of their parents but the disillusionment with their own rebellion. It is common for young men and women to rebel but that they should rebel early and without faith in their own rebellion is something of a novelty.

"A review of the battle between cynicism and of faith:

"1. In the fifth century before Christ, the sophists once the very genius of the thing we mean when we use the word, cynic. And in the day of the building up of the Gaul's states, Plato escaped from the sordid selfishness of his day to a belief that the invisible good is more real than the visible evil. We must choose between the spirit of the sophists and Plato.

"2. In the days of the greatness of the Roman Empire, we must choose between the spirit of Lucretius and the spirit of Augustine.

"3. In the thirteenth century, the spirit of Omar Khayyam and that of St. Francis challenge our choice.

"4. Coming to our own time and our own country, the same great and binding problems of thought and feeling find expression in Henry Adams and Abraham Lincoln. The education of Henry Adams tells the story. He was the descendant of two able presidents of the United States. Heredity, opportunity and personal gifts conspired to make him a man of greatest promise. Out of it all, he wrought a cold syniciam which left him incapable of high enthusiasm and clear thought.

"In the meantime, there arose a man without advantages and without university training, a crude and common man. He lived among hard-pressed men and women. But he received every great and noble ideal which he read with a simple and believing heart. And in the days of his nation's need, he steered the ship of state. He believed in the future.

"We must choose between the spirit of Henry Adams and the spirit of Abraham Lincoln."

The seniors then sang "Eldorado" by Ciro Pinsutti and "Remembrance" by Johannes Brahms. The presentation of diplomas followed and the singing of the Alma Mater, written by Miss Jennie E. Dennehy, a former member of the faculty followed. The exercises were attended by a large audience of relatives and friends of the graduates.

The following received kindergarten-primary diplomas:

ALUMNI TO TAKE OVER HAYDEN ATHLETIC FIELD

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 19—A movement to have the Windham high school alumni take over all or various responsibilities of operating Hayden athletic field on Mountain street, was announced today by Principal Egbert A. Case. The plan is to have the alumni provide a club house and bleachers and cause trees to be planted and other landscaping work to be done at the field. The field was provided by the town of Windham which also bore the expense of grading and erecting an iron fence of creditable appearance. It is proposed that the field might be called Alumni Field in the event that the plan meets with approval of the former graduates.

The class of 1930 started the "ball-a-rolling" this wek by making a contribution of $100 to this purpose. The contribution was made through the class treasurer, Claire Frink and deposited with Vice-Principal Lawrence King in the W. H. S. bank. The cost of a club house and bleachers was roughly estimated at $5,000.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 19—The industrial exhibit which has been conducted at Elks' park in conjunction with Community Reunion week came to a close this evenig with a concert from 8 to 9 o'clock by the B. P. O. E. band as an added feature. With favorable weather prevailing additional hundreds visited the exhibit this afternoon and evening, many remaining at the park to enjoy the various ride amusements.

The exhibit has brought to many the first realization of the diversified and high quality products manufactured in the town of Windham and at the Kirby optical plant in Mansfield Hollow. The exhibit has served to arouse a new interest in the town's manufacturing as well as in the manufacturers themselves and the skilled labor which they command.

High praise was expressed today to the courage and civic spirit of the hundreds of men, women and children who walked bravely through drenching rain Wednesday afternoon so that the thousands who came to see the parade would not meet with disappointment. The damage to clothing and materials used in the parade was placed at several hundred dollars, although it was impossible to ascertain exact figures todaq.

Re-elected President

At the annual meeting of the Willimantic Savings institute held this week, Lewellyn J. Storrs of Mansfield was re-elected president and John P. Carr, vice-president; Sherwood B. Potter, treasurer; Noah D. Webster, secretary; Clarence E. Chamberlin, assistant treasurer and J. Raymond Smith, assistant treasurer.

In order that the board of directors might be brought up to full membership, Vice President Carr resigned from the directorate and R. I. Longley of Storrs was chosen as a director. Mr. Longley is comptroller of the Connecticut Agricultural college and is considered of excellent qualifications for the office of director. The present membership of the board follows: Charles L. Crane, John Reilly, Andre C. Roux, Charles W. Tryon and R. I. Longley.

The report of the treasurer showed the bank to be in healthy financial condition. Undivided profits showed a gain of about $15,000 for the year after paying dividends to the depositors of 5 1-4 per cent during the period. Deposits gained over $315,000 for the year, the largest gain in the history of the institution. With its occupancy of its splendid new quarters and re-energized policy of distributing dividends as large as its earnings permit, the bank is looking forward to a bright future.

V. F. W. FLOAT WAS INSPIRATION OF INVALID GIRL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 19 — The beautiful float entered in the Community Reunion week parade Wednesday by Gold Star post No. 1724, Veterans of Foreign Wars, was the inspiration of Germaine Dion, an invalid girl, whose brother Arthur Dion died in France, it was learned today. Miss Dion conceived the artistic design of the float to represent Flanders field, covered with poppy and bearing a flying representation of the angel of peace. The float was accordingly arranged by a committee of the veterans and proved to be one of the outstanding ones of the big parade. Arthur Dion was gassed in action and later contracted a fatal attack of pneumonia while in the trenches at Chemin-des-Dames.

The flag carried at the head of the Gold Star post paraders was that of the 102nd Regiment and bore 12 individual citations.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, 'Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall or Liggett Drug Store.

OBITUARY.

Edwin L. Brown

Edwin L. Brown, an old and respected Colchester resident, died at his home in the Bulkley hill section of town about 7 p. m., Wednesday, following several weeks' illness, death being attributed to a complication of diseases. He had been quite active about the farm up to several months ago, when he was taken to Backus hospital, Norwich, for treatment. Being somewhat improved, he was brought back to his home here, but for the past week his condition had grown steadily worse.

Mr. Brown was born April 21, 1858, at the old Holmes farm on the Colchester-Norwich road, in the town of Lebanon, the son of Hoxie Brown and Esther Hoxie. Seven years later, his parents moved to what is now known as the old Hoxie Brown homestead on Colchester-Salem road. He attended the Colchester district schools and on March 25, 1880, was united in marriage with Addie Fox, daughter of John Fox, of Colchester. For about ten years after their marriage, the couple made their home with Mr. Brown's father at the old Brown homestead and about 40 years ago Mr. Brown purchased the former Enoch Worthington farm on Bulkley hill, where he had lived ever since. Mr. Brown had always refrained from holding public office. He was a man with a home-loving, gentle manner, which combined with his honest business dealings to win him a large number of friends in this vicinity. He is survived by one sister, Mrs. Thomas Swan Rathbun, of Colchester, and four nieces and four nephews. His wife died a number of years ago.

Miss Clara E. Park, domestic science instructor in Danbury high school, has returned to her home here for the summer vacation.

Willimantic carpenters are erecting a large new bungalow near the foot of the old Michael Lyons hill, at Hayward lake. Several more are to be erected during the coming weeks on the west shore of the lake.

Woodchucks have been ravaging gardens on lower South Main street the past few days.

The old Koishikawa arsenal at Tokio, which has been turning out instruments of death for two generations, is being dismantled to make way for a hospital and research laboratory devoted to fighting cancer. A million-yen campaign is under way with the imperial family among the first donors.

1 MORE MILES over all kinds of roads . . . sculptured side wall is still free of cracks and scuffmarks. Never can a tire so age-free as Silvertowns, due to their special, long-lived, long-wear tread and sidewall rubber compound.

2 NO SIGNS HERE of cupping or uneven wear! Silvertowns have a dense, tough, slow-wearing tread that wears down slowly and evenly. Water-cutting makes the last bit of tread rubber wear as slowly as the first.

3 SEE THAT EDGE? Sharp and clean, even after enough service to satisfy any tire buyer. No question here of traction or anti-skid protection. That's why the Silvertowns tread is known as the finest in the field.

Spirit Of Truth

Descend, O tongues of fire,
Quicken our hearts' desire
Spirit of Truth!
To understand Thy will,
Thy purpose to fulfill,
O teach and guide us still,
Spirit of Truth!

Send us forth fired anew,
Disciples to pursue
Truth's way so free;
In daily life to seek
To hear Thy Spirit speak,
And in faith humble—meek—
To follow Thee.

Come Holy Comforter,
Fill us with love and power,
Come quick'ning flame!
Shine thru our hearts' distress
Till peace our souls confess.
Spirit of Truth, we bless
Thy Holy Name!

—By Gertrude B. Walker.

Amends To Nature

I have loved colors, and not flowers;
Their motion, not the swallow's wings
And wasted more than half my hours
Without the comradeship of things.

How is it, now, that I can see,
With love and wonder and delight,
The children of the hedge and tree,
The little lords of day and night?

How is it that I see the roads
No longer with usurping eyes,
A twilight meeting place for toads,
A midday mart for butterflies?

I feel, in every midge that hums,
Life, fugitive and infinite,
And suddenly the world becomes
A part of me and I of it.

—Arthur Symons

Souls

My soul goes clad in gorgeous thoughts
Scarlet and gold and blue,
And at her shoulder sudden wings
Like long flames flicker through.

And she is swallow-fleet, and free
From mortal bonds and bars,
She laughs, because eternity
Blossoms for her with stars!

O folk who scorn my stiff gray soul,
My dull and foolish face,
Can ye not see my soul flash down
A singing flame through space?

And folk, whose earth-stained looks hate,
Why may I not divine
Your souls that must be passionate,
Shining and swift, as mine?

—Fannie Stearns Gifford.

An old farmer and his wife were driving along a country road through hilly country; the team, when they would come to a hill, would settle into the collar and pull at a steady stride.

The farmer's wife spoke to her husband and said: "Hiram, I have just been thinking, watching this team settle in the collar and pull steadily along, how wonderful it would be if we could go along through life that way."

"Maria," he said, "possibly we could, if we were like this team with only one tongue between us."—Punch.

CUTTING TROLLEY SERVICE.

Because the business now being done is of an unsatisfactory nature and inadequate to justify continued operation, the Connecticut Co. has asked the public utilities commission to be allowed to discontinue the trolley line, pull up the tracks and end such service. It would substitute bus service for the transportation of the public.

Before the commission, objection has been raised to such a move. It is insisted that Woodbury ought not to be deprived of this service and isolated and those who have been getting a favorable rate for freight on the trolley express are unwilling to see it go. The company points out that it is losing thousands of dollars each year in maintaining trolley service and sees no prospect of improvement.

This is another instance of the transportation change that is taking place. The patronage has dwindled to the point where the maintenance of a trolley line means a losing proposition. Whether any more would use the bus service may be questioned, but such could probably be operated at less expense while trucks have all but caused the disappearance of trolley expresses.

It is interesting in this connection to note that the head of the United Electric Railways system in Rhode Island has just made the statement that the company has sustained a heavy loss during the first five months of the year. It is planning further economies giving consideration to fare raises and unless it can pay its way it is only a matter of time before it must throw up its hands and quit.

Different words may be used, but this seems to reflect the sentiment of trolley companies in many places. They are being forced to end service on lines which do not and probably never again will pay. When possible, buses are used instead, and in not a few instances such a change is sought and welcomed.

The difficulties of the trolleys do not seem, by any means, to be confined to any one section. There has been a general decrease in the dependence upon such service, even in the cities, until it has gotten to the point where substitution seems inevitable. The situation is in marked contrast to the days when the trolleys were reaping large revenues and maintaining high expense accounts.

THE FLEXIBLE CLAUSE

Senator Borah has been taking a prominent part in the tariff tinkering. He has sought much and fought much. His aim has been to confine action to agriculture and let industry whistle. Because the bill, as it left conference, was not satisfactory to him, he voted against it. He was not in favor of the flexible feature and now that the bill has been passed, signed and become law and the president has expressed much confidence in the flexible provision being able to overcome injustices, he has immediately proceeded to ask that the tariff commission be set to work to determine the justice of the rates which have been placed on sugar, boots, shoes, farm implements, furniture, and other senators have offered amendments which extend the list upon which inquiry will be made.

The Borah idea is to have the commission check up on the work of congress. That doesn't appear to have been the purpose of the commission or the flexible clause. Because the tariff bill is one which he did not vote for, the Idaho senator considers it all wrong and deserving of corrections, and apparently in accord with his views. Others have felt that if there was to be an inquiry it should include other matters than just those in which Senator Borah is interested, so that in time the commission might go over the entire bill.

The flexible feature was supposed to take care of cases where it was felt by aggrieved interests injustice was being done, where changed conditions called for a revision of the rates and provided a way where there might be a hearing in regard to such instances, and if ground were found for increasing or decreasing rates a way would exist without attempting an entire revision of the tariff or waiting until congress should return for another session.

From all indications, Senator Borah is intent upon playing politics with the flexible clause. He is trying to read into it something which was not intended, and yet if there is justification for the effort which he is backing there is no good reason why the same practice should not be employed in regard to other rates, some, perhaps, which were not changed, some which failed to awaken the interest of congress, and some which may have been denied to those who sought them.

PRIMARY RESULTS

Although there were contests in which more than passive opposition was displayed, the primaries in Maine and Minnesota failed to attract the attention that was directed to the New Jersey fight. In those two states there was not the prohibition issue to create interest, local issues governing the affairs for the most part.

In Maine, Congressman White sought and received the nomination for the senatorship in place of Senator Gould, who had made it known he would not seek renomination. He had as his chief opponent R. C. Brewster. Senator Gould leaned towards the wets but both Messrs. White and Brewster are dry. Thus there was no fight between them over prohibition in a state where prohibition has had so much support. They did differ on the question of exporting electric power generated within that state. This is a matter upon which Maine has backed and filled. Strong sentiment has prevailed there against allowing any surplus power to be sent out of the state, the demand being that if industry wanted it, it should locate in Maine. Aside from his attitude on this matter, Congressman White has been particularly successful in the lower house of congress and he is also a grandson of the late Senator Frye, for whom he was at one time secretary, and thus is well equipped to ably represent Maine in the senate.

In the Minnesota primary, the prohibition issue did not become prominent. Rather did the appeal to the people hinge upon the degree of insurgency which the respective candidates favored. Senator Schall has had his periods of standing both with the regulars and the insurgents. Governor Christianson sought the nomination as an out and out insurgent. That Senator Schall should win might seem to indicate that Minnesota was not so much inclined to the Christianson insurgency, were it not for a fact that there are threats that efforts will be made to enter a farmer-labor candidate who will oppose Senator Schall.

It has been said that there is little telling what will happen in Minnesota. It hasn't always been so, but there is one farmer-labor senator from that state now and it remains to be seen whether the threat to elect another produces.

WHEN YALE RACES HARVARD

This is the annual gala day on the Thames, the day when the crews of Yale and Harvard test their skill as oarsmen and when, following a year's training, they seek supremacy for the ensuing year. It is not only the big rowing event in the east, but it is one of the most important, the one in which all New England is interested and the one which marks the year's climax in aquatics for the respective universities.

Today, with favorable weather, both banks of the river will be lined with spectators throughout the four-mile course. Naturally the varsity race will prove the big attraction and as it moves through the fixed lanes it will hold the close attention of observers on shores, on observation trains and on steamers, yachts and smaller boats. It being a race downstream this year, the big and colorful assembly will be between the drawbridge and the submarine base.

Eagerly and expectantly each year's crowd hopes for the unusual, the record-breaking crew or the race which is won by inches. Needless to say, disappointment is frequently experienced, but that doesn't remove the interest in the training or the concern over the efforts of the respective crews as they go through the grueling test of brawn and skill for some 20-odd minutes. Yet that brief race brings to the Thames throngs of friends and admirers of the respective crews. It is a race which has helped to bring recognition to our beautiful river.

This is one of the years when less attention has been directed to the coaching policies or the adoption of new strokes. Confidence is displayed on each side, even though it is acknowledged that Yale has a fast crew. It is always a sportsman's wish that the better team win and if that follows there can be no fault found.

RESPECT HIGHWAY RULES TODAY

In order to properly and safely handle the large amount of traffic that will be occasioned by the boat races on the Thames today, rules have been established for the guidance of motorists. There were the days when the most of those who went to the regatta traveled by train, or boat or trolley. Such isn't the case today. There are still many who continue to utilize those methods of transportation, as they will today, but each year finds a still greater number motoring from far and near points, watching the race from the roadside or some special point of advantage along the river bank and then quickly leaving for home.

With this large number of vehicles it is necessary to establish regulations. It is equally necessary that they should be obeyed. The aim is to meet the requirements of the greatest number and to eliminate accidents. Thus, it is going to be a day for careful driving, a day to give full respect to the special rules and a day to exert enough extra attention to keep yourself and the other fellow out of trouble.

Handling large crowds is ably done each year by the state police. It is a time for general cooperation, a day to respect the rights of others and an occasion when too much speed may easily become a serious matter for many others. Today is no exception. Where large numbers are involved, more attention needs to be given to safety. Where congestion is sure to be found, plenty of time should be allowed for getting to the desired place and staying there until the race is over.

Having set forth their rules and given their warnings, the state police have reason to expect compliance, and it may as well be known that there will be sufficient of them on duty to secure it.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Harvard has a chance today to prove to Yale that all races are not a procession.

DOLLY DRAWS A TRUMP

Dolly was absorbed with thoughts of adventure as she laid down her magazine of thrilling success stories. As she arose from the big chair her glance rested upon the picture of a handsome young man which adorned the magazine's back cover.

"Why doesn't one meet men like that in real life?" said Dolly to herself with a deep sigh. And right then and there dawned the great idea. Down in the corner of the page was the name of the advertising firm which had originated the picture. She copied the name and address.

"Some fine firm strokes in that sketch," said the assistant manager of the Great Lakes Advertising company, laying a sheet of paper on his chief's desk. "Wish we had some one as clever as that to fill Miss Forbes' place when she leaves next week."

"Can you tell me," ran the letter, which the manager picked up, "if the accompanying figure, copied from one of your recent advertisements, was drawn from life, and, if so, whether the model is at present available?"

"A rattling good picture," pronounced the manager, studying the few bold strokes which accurately reproduced the figure. "Drop her a line, Foster, and ask if she'd be interested in a position; tell her we'll pay her railroad fare here and back if she'll come for an interview. Let's see—Kenosha's about fifty miles north. She can come in on the interurban."

"What'll I say about the model she's so anxious to get?" asked the assistant manager chuckling.

"Huh? Oh, well, tell her he's occasionally available at this office. If she's doing some special piece of work and needs a model that may serve as a come-a-long."

Dolly breathed deeply when she saw the name and return address on the letter which she drew from the mail box. The big advertising firm had taken her inquiry seriously. A laugh gurgled forth as she flew up the stairs to her room. Her laughter was suddenly checked and her face grew a trifle pale as she sensed the meaning of the letter. The impossible had come true! The thrilling news sent her downstairs pell-mell. Within five minutes negotiations were begun.

Mother was, of course, delighted that her talent had been recognized, but father would have to decide whether she should go to Chicago. Within five hours negotiations were over and Dolly emerged victorious from the family council. A letter was written and sent, accepting the terms for an interview, and though the three days which followed seemed interminable, they passed at last, a reply with inclosed transportation arrived, and 9 o'clock one sunny morning found Dolly en route to the city.

"At 20," Dolly told herself sternly, "one's heart shouldn't flutter just because an important business interview lies ahead of one." It was quite ridiculous to feel so absurdly young and inexperienced. It was best to appear indifferent—if she could. When she left the train, however, her cheeks were so flushed with excitement and her eyes so starry with anticipation that the appreciative traffic policeman, whom she questioned regarding the shortest route to her destination, personally conducted her to the opposite corner, besides giving her minute directions to follow from there.

Her walk along wind-swept Michigan boulevard deepened the rose in Dolly's cheeks to crimson and fluffed the tendrils of dark hair that had escaped from her tight little hat. Down a long lobby—up twelve floors in an elevator—and there at last was the magic door.

"Appointment?" asked the girl at the switchboard mechanically, meanwhile wondering what was the name of the new rouge the caller used. "Manager's office," she added, indicating the door for Dolly to enter, after telephoning the name of the visitor.

Dolly's brown eyes met the blue ones of John Gordon, and in the period of one brief glance she experienced almost as many sensations as the proverbial drowning man. The blue eyes rapidly developed a twinkle as the brown ones registered embarrassment. Dolly was game, however.

"It's really a very good likeness," she achieved with fair nonchalance.

"I consider your copy an improvement on the original," said the manager with unconcealed enthusiasm.

"The original?" murmured Dolly, quite losing control over two tricky dimples.

"The original advertisement for which I sat—or rather stood—in a moment of aberration" said the manager, grinning and making up his mind that if he had his way about it the position about to be filled by Miss Coles would be vacant again before many moons passed because of her acceptance of another one which would be offered her.—Chicago News.

YOUR HEALTH

The "Pest House" Is Gone

By Henry W. Salus, M. D., Johnston, Pa.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

The evolution of the "Pest House" to the modern hospital for the treatment and care of infectious diseases constitutes one of the most interesting developments in health and scientific medicine in recent years.

For many years there has been a prevailing idea that infectious or contagious diseases are air borne and that a hospital treating such diseases should be securely closed at all times and located in some isolated spot far from civilization. Here, once the patient entered, he should remain behind strong doors with no contact whatsoever with the outside world. Indeed it was regarded as a place of last resort from which a patient rarely ever returned alive. It was felt that if a relative, minister, rabbi or priest were called to see a sick person, these visitors had to be carefully capped and gowned and then disinfected before being released to contact with the outside world. The entire populace in the vicinity of the "Pest House" was continually in a state of fear and horror. In fact people avoided the vicinity of such an institution for fear of breathing the supposedly germ-contaminated air.

But things have changed greatly in recent years. The medical profession is now convinced that infectious diseases are not air borne but are transmitted by contact, particularly through the hands. So the follies of the "Pest House" idea must now be forgotten and the public learn and adapt themselves to the new knowledge.

All modern hospitals for the treatment of infectious diseases in the present day open their institutions to visitors in the same manner of other types of institutions but have a strict code of rules to follow. These rules are simple and in no way inconvenience the visitor. They are as follows:

1. There must be absolutely no contact between the visitor and the patient.
2. The visitor must not hand anything to or receive anything from the patient.
3. The visitor must be accompanied by an attendant.
4. The visitor must at all times keep will beyond reaching distance of the patient.

In older hospitals there is a white line, known as the "Dear Line", about two feet from all points of contact with the patient and so long as the visitor keeps beyond this line there is nothing to be feared either as to contracting or transmitting the disease. In newly constructed hospitals of modern types each patient in the ward is enclosed in a glass cubicle with a wide door-way but no door, at which the visitor can stand or sit, under the observation of a nurse located at a central point in the ward, and be perfectly safe from any infection.

All the above applies also to hospitals for the treatment of tuberculosis which often cause the average layman special fears. Actually it is far safer to visit a T. B. sanatorium than it is to sit two hours in the average home and surely much safer than to sit two hours in the average movie theatre where people's habits are not the most cleanly nor sanitary and are absolutely unrestricted.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 19—Eddying after-currents of the political storm that swept North Carolina into the republican fold in 1928 have carried down to defeat the man to whom democrats of the state turned more than 30 years to oust republican state control born of the populist cross winds.

That was the job intrusted to Sen. Furnifold Simmons, veteran of veterans among Washington legislators, in 1898.

He was a young man then, this small statured, hard fighting old war horse of the southern democracy, now deep in his seventies and frail with the weight of his years.

And in two successive campaigns still talked of in the old north state as the "red shirt" battles, he swept away opposition so utterly that ever since, until this day, he was the dominant figure of North Carolina politics.

Balked On Al Smith

When, the New Bern lawyer, then with a single term in the house in the 50th congress behind him—and there is no other member of the 71st congress whose Washington recollections go back beyond the 53rd congress—accepted state leadership, republicans held both senatorial seats.

Under his driving force both soon passed to the democrats, seniority by two years going to Simmons himself, the second seat to his boyhood friend and school mate, Lee Overman.

There the pair have sat ever since, continuing a friendship of strange political similarities in their lives.

Even the clashing events of 1928, when Simmons laid the foundations of his own defeat by his first lapse from party regularity, failed to mar that long relationship.

Simmons split away from the Al Smith ticket, but drew the line at actual support of Hoover. Overman remained regular. And because of that, Overman will become senior senator from North Carolina next year after almost a life time spent as the junior.

Harrison Steps Up

There are some other things about Simmons' defeat to be noted. It means, for one thing, passing of leadership for the democrats on matters of finance to Pat Harrison, of Mississippi.

As next ranking minority member on the finance committee, the Mississippian has functioned for some years as a deputy field marshal on matters like the tariff because of the increasing physical frailty of Simmons, just as Reed of Pennsylvania, was first lieutenant to the veteran Smoot of Utah, repubican chairman of the finance committee.

That is the tariff making committee of the senate. But for his London naval conference assignment, Reed would have carried much of the burden of debate in the historic 1930 tariff war in the senate.

Even with Simmons out, North Carolina will retain deanship in the senate in point of age and length of service. For Simmons and Overman out-distance all in those respects.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

"Religion draws the political boundaries in the Syrian mandate. Not only is the independence of the Alouites and the Druzes recognized for religious reasons, but also the new Syrian republic and the Lebanese republic represent a Moslem republic and a Christian republic respectively.

"Four religious states in an area no larger than Georgia still leave many creeds out in the political cold. To recognize them all would require cutting Syria up into more pieces than Blue Beard ever chopped his wives.

"Syria's creeds and peoples are woven of many human odds and ends. Three-fourth of the population of 2,000,000 are Mohammedans but part of them are Sunnites and parts Shiites as different in point of view as Catholics and Protestants. Then there are the alouites whose secret religion is believed to be halfway between Mohammedanism and Christianity, and the Druzes who usually attend the Unitarian church when they emigrate to the United States, and the heretical Ismailis, who were the original assassins of crusader times.

"Christians in Syria are even more divided. Most numerous are the Maronite Christians, in the Lebanon, but there are also Greek Catholics, Armenian Catholics, Syrian Christians, Chaldeans and Latins, not to speak of Greek Orthodox, Gregorian Armenian and Protestants of various sects.

"Because it is the custom to vote and fight as one worships in Syria, the problem of bringing governmental order out of the racial and religious melee has been colossal.

"Syria, at the eastern end of the Mediterranean, finds itself wedged between Turkey and Palestine and with its back against Iraq and desert Arabia. Heavier rains give agriculture a better chance in Syria than in Palestine, so improved political conditions should see an increase in such standard crops as licorice to flavor American chewing tobacco, olives, cotton, tobacco and wheat.

"The country hopes to regain its ancient privileges and perquisities as doorkeeper to Asia. That Damascus shuld recover the prestige that enabled it to stamp its name 'damask' on silk and Damascus on fine steel, is out of the question. But the regular desert caravan using American automobiles that piles between Damascus and Baghdad, on the Tigris, and the regular air mail service from Cairo over Syria to Baghdad, hint that the trade door of Syria, is cracking open again.

"Beyrouth, capital of the Lebanese republic, and principal seaport of Syria, has been bartering for the Mediterranean terminus of the oil pipe line Iraq may eventually lay across the country. The vast trade of both Persia and Iraq with Europe and the new world that now goes clear around the Arabian peninsula could find a short cut across Syria if only the Berlin to Baghdad railroad could be finished. Recent completion of the last link in the Asia Minor rail line which makes possible through service from Cairo to Calais, has already brought Syria into a more favorable position.

"But at present the country is living on hope and America. Thousands of Syrians have come to both North and South America. Whole villages in the Lebanon have been abandoned for fruit stands in the new world. Sometimes the ex-Syrians send back money; sometimes they go back with their money and live like lords, and in honor of the source of their wealth rename their streets. One town now has a Brazil street named so by returned and retired emigrants.

"Stabilization of the governments of the Syrian mandate will undoubtedly bring a higher tide of tourist travel because Syria, although eclipsed in European interest by the Holy land to the south, holds some treasures worth going miles to see. Baalbek's ruins are second only to Athens' acropolis. Palestine holds no, surviving crusader castle to equal Kalat el Husn. Into whose banquet halls, keeps, and battlemented towers the Arabs have moved like hermit crabs. Damascus, an overgrown oasis on the edge of the desert, still lives and breathes the atmosphere of the Arabian nights, while not far to the west a new summer colony develops on the cool heights under the shade of the cedars of Lebanon. American visitors are always interested in Beyrouth because the college on the promontory overlooking the Mediterranean that has educated many of the modern near east leaders of every creed is an American college.

"Syria still has the lure of the unknown: unknown religions, undiscovered cities of the past, unexplored crusader castles, unexcavated fortresses, secret societies, and little-known races. Is it true, as some travelers report, that the Ismaili make a girl child born on a certain day virtually a goddess, denying her the right to marry, forbidding her to work or cut her finger nails, but requiring he to provide every man with a bit of her hair or dress to wear in his turban? Is the Greater Arabia movement launched by Lawrence of Revolt in the Desert fame and scuttled at Versailles, still alive? Such mysteries thrive even where crops will not grow. Proclamation of the republic of Syria answers one question, but immediately propounds a dozen new ones."

Stories That Recall Others

Absent Minded.

Billy was a very absent minded little boy. One morning his mother sent him to school well bundled up, even to his galoshes.

When he appeared at his desk his teacher was quite surprised at his appearance. She asked him: "How did you happen to come to school today without your shirt?"

Billy looked himself over from his neck to his feet and exclaimed: "Gee, gosh! I thought I took off my galoshes."

Curved Ball.

Two youngsters were at play in a back yard in the lethargy of spring warmth. They had a tennis ball and were leisurely tossing and throwing it to teach each other. Each desiring to test and prove his markmanship to the other, they began throwing at certain objects.

The clothes line prop was a handy target. One threw and luckily scored a hit. The other recovered the ball, backed away, threw after considerable ceremony at taking aim, only to miss.

His explanation was: "I threw straight, but it went crooked."

Little Talks on Thrift

Wide-Spread Thrift Best Method Of Of Stabilizing Business

It is quite apparent that the tide of popular thrift in America is steadily rising. Reports show a constant gain in savings bank deposits. Less money is being spent on needless extravagance; lesa expensive forms of luxuries are gaining in popularity; greater labor efficiency has developed; a more cautious and conservative attitude is being shown in the matter of investments. The blue sky promoter and the get-rich-quick type of financier are not having it as easy now as during the last four or five years. There is a growing tendency to eliminate all forms of waste. People generally are striving to make every dollar go as far as possible and utilize every day to the best advantage.

There is, of course, nothing unusual in these manifestations. During periods of depressed business and unemployment there has always been an increase in thrift. To a great degree it represents necessary economies. To some extent it is psychological.

It is indeed an eloquent tribute to the value of thrift as a means of bringing about economic readjustments. As popular savings grow and as day by day economies and personal efficiency become more widespread, there will gradually develop an era of increasing prosperity.

Fundamentally prosperous conditions can only exist on the solid foundation of popular thrift. Inflation, unsound activities, popular overspending and over-extended credit may bring the semblance of prosperity at times but these conditions cannot last and must inevitably be followed by a cycle of deflation and a let-down in business.

In the laudible efforts continually being made to bring business and industrial activities to permanent normal levels, eliminating boems and depressions alike, it should be borne in mind that there can be no greater stabilizing influence than widespread thrift by the people.

Fixed and prudent habits of saving, spending and investing by the masses of the people would do more to insure continued good times than any other influence that could be brought to bear. — By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift.

I intend to be away, from July 17th to Sept. 1st, and if any of my customers could anticipate their needs, in my line, between these dates, I would greatly appreciate their order now.

SUFFERED WITH A CONSTANT PAIN IN BACK

Florist Has Gained 7 Pounds Since Taking Bon - Tone; Stomach Trouble, Too, Relieved.

Mr. Arthur F. Clark, of 101 Grove Street New Haven, Conn., who is a veteran of the World war states:

"For a long time I had felt terribly tired and rundown. No matter how much sleep I got at night, I would always wake up feeling as though I hadn't gone to bed at all. My nerves were very bad, too; and the least little thing would cause them to jump. After every meal, gas would form in my stomach and crowd around my heart, like knife-thrusts. Sour, acid stuff would come up in my mouth after every meal. If I ate eggs I would never retain them on my stomach. It seemed as though I had a perpetual pain in my back; and, as my work as a florist requires considerable stooping, this could almost kill me.

"I read of Bon-Tone, so I bought some; and now, after having taken three bottles of this medicine, I feel great. I get a good night's sleep, and wake up feeling fit for my work. My nerves are as steady as a rock, and I feel stronger than I've felt for a long time. I think I've gained about seven or eight pounds since taking Bon-Tone; and I can now eat anything, even eggs, without any bloating, gas, or sour stuff coming up. The pain in my back is all gone, too. Bon-Tone is a great medicine and I'll be glad to recommend it to anyone."

Call and have a talk with the Bon-Tone Man at Smith's Pharmacy, in Norwich, and learn why this remedy is known as the World's Foremost Tonic.

Bon-Tone is also for sale in Norwich by all leading druggists.

To-night: Get Rid of BURNING FEET

The New Right Way
THE ENGLISH WAY

To take out the agony—banish all burning, aches and soreness—try the new 1930 way and in 15 to 20 minutes your foot troubles are over.

Just put two tablespoonfuls of Radox in a gallon of hot water and soak your feet for 20 minutes—you never had such a joyous, invigorating foot bath in all your life—you can feel feel all the acid and poisons coming out of the stuffed up pores of your poor feet.

Do this to-night and to-morrow your feet will be so strong and sturdy and vigorous that you can walk all day long without discomfort.

It's the oxygyn in Radox that gets into the thousands of pores of your feet and chases out the poisons that have accumulated there for years—it's these acids and poisons that make your feet ache and burn and nothing in the world will get them out but Radox.

You can get a package of Radox at Lee & Osgood or any good drug-store—it is inexpensive and if it doesn't put new life and vigor into and bring blessed comfort to your distressed feet—money back.

Ends Piles Quick

No Salves or Cutting

Piles are caused by congestion of blood in the lower bowel. Only an internal medicine can remove the cause. That's why salves and cutting fail. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, removes this congestion and strengthens the affected parts.

HEM-ROID is now sold by druggists everywhere, and has such a wonderful record of success even in chronic and stubborn cases that Lee & Osgood invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID and guarantees money-back if it does not end all Pile misery.

In presenting the diplomas, Mr. McKay spoke as follows:

"Members of the graduating class, ladies and gentlemen, I feel it a great honor to be present at these lovely exercises. If those members of the class could have occupied a place as I did and could have observed the interest and attention of the people assembled here, they would be exceedingly pleased with their efforts. Speaking in behalf of the teachers I would say, their interest has always been your welfare. Teaching is rather a difficult task, not all glory, but work; yet it must be a satisfaction to the teachers on a day like this. I know that each one of you will appreciate what you have received here and that you will go out into the world in mind and body to take up the work of the world. If you only follow your class motto, 'Work and Win,' you surely will win!" Speaking for the school board and town, Mr. McKay wished to thank the teachers for what they have done. He complimented the beautiful Huntington school, and hoped that in coming years the school board would have the cooperation of every boy and girl in whatever it does. In closing, he congratulated the pupils and wished them success.

Paul Matassa's meeting was held at the close of the exercises when, in behalf of the members, Charles Ryan, class president, presented a gold piece to both Principal Tarbox and his assistant, Miss Florence M. Bennett. President Ryan also presented to the pianist, Miss Mary E. Woods, a decorative basket of roses. A surprise came when Principal Tarbox also presented to Miss Bennett a basket of roses, in behalf of the class.

The graduating class held a supper at Huntington school, Tuesday evening at 6:30, followed by a most enjoyable social time.

The class members are:

TELLS NORWICH ROTARY HOW RADIO STATION WORKS

The members of the Norwich Rotary club, at its weekly luncheon meeting in the Wauregan hotel Wednesday noon heard a very interesting address by Paul W. Morency, manager of station WTIC, Hartford, who discussed the problems of radio in general and of his own station in particular, giving a comprehensive idea of what transpires "behind the scenes" in the broadcasting field.

Mr. Morency, affiliated with station WTIC since November of 1929, is manager of one of the seven most powerful transmitters in the United States, 50,000 watts being the maximum operating power allowed by the United States government. Previous to coming to the Hartford station he was associated with the Chicago American in his home-city and with the National Association of Broadcasters, a national organization serving practically all of America's radio stations, in which he was manager of the field service department.

In the business session, at which the president, Frank R. Murdy, presided and Harold Larrabee and Frank Aubrey were song leaders, with Henry J. LaFontaine at the piano, the members bade farewell to Emery Davis, its delegate to the International Rotary convention to be held June 23-27 at Chicago with more than 25,000 delegates from 56 different countries in attendance. The programme was in charge of John Savard.

In his address Mr. Morency spoke in part as follows:

"Supervision of broadcasting until the passage of the radio act of 1927 was under the department of commerce. After the famous Chicago test case in 1925, which proved that the department of commerce did not legally have the right to deny anyone a license to operate a broadcasting station, the number of stations in the United States increased from 220 to approximately 640 before the creation of the federal radio commission with power to deny license.

"The broadcast band in which is placed all the stations in the country extends from 500 to 1500 k. c. and due to several of these channels being reserved for Canadian use the number of channels assigned to the use of United States stations is 89. A channel is assumed to be 10 k. c. in width. We have then 640 stations to be placed on 89 channels. To solve this problem of so many stations on so few frequencies the federal radio commission has taken several methods: First, the placement of a great many low powered stations on the same frequency where those stations are separated geographically. Second, the use of one channel for three or four stations of some power where the separation is at least 1,500 miles. Third, the division of time between stations.

"It is under this plan that WTIC operates, dividing time with a station in Baltimore, WBAL.

"There are a great many engineering plans which have been offered to solve the problem of 640 stations for 89 wave-lengths, but none has been accepted, and the present layout is anything but satisfactory from the viewpoint of either the public or the radio broadcaster. We hope that we shall be able to obtain the right to broadcast on a full-time basis in the near future so that this area which our station is built to serve, will have a real broadcasting service 16 to 18 hours per day. At the present time there are a good many cases in the courts regarding re-allocation of broadcasting stations and it is hoped that by the end of this summer these decisions will have been made by the courts and precedents established so that a general re-allocation can be made before next winter.

"Perhaps the best known program which we have on our station is that of Seth Parker's singing school, which has been a feature for almost two years and continues to draw more mail than any other feature, including all of the programs which are relayed from WEAF.

"The problem of the program manager has in getting new ideas and new programs becomes more and more difficult and any idea which is well done such as the Amos 'n' Andy program, is quickly acclaimed throughout the territory.

"In our mail we receive many touching, pathetic letters. People seem to feel that the operators of a radio station are personal friends and they confide their troubles and sorrows. People who have had friends and relatives missing for years write to us to see if we can help locate them. The number of requests of this character have been so great that we have been forced to make a rule which prohib

SCHMELING OFFICIALLY NAMED CHAMP BY N. Y. SOLONS; SHARKEY HURLS DEFY

By EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, June 19.—(AP)—While ticker tape and scraps of paper filled the sky in honor of a brave explorer, Max Schmeling trudged from the offices of the New York state athletic commission today— officially recognized as the new heavyweight champion of the world.

The youthful German, first fighter from the old world to gain that honor, won his point only after a bitter debate with the solemn fathers and over the outraged objections of William Muldoon, aged "solid man" of boxing and co-donor of the Tunney-Muldoon heavyweight title trophy. Added to the title recognition extended him last week by the National Boxing association, Schmeling stands today as the heavyweight king in almost every center where boxing is sanctioned in America.

The 24-year-old Teuton did not come unscathed from his duel with the fistic fathers across the street from the city hall where crowds were cheering Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, home from his flights across the Antarctic wastes. Schmeling threaded his way unnoticed through the crowds with one of the most amazing challenges ever extended a champion ringing in his ears.

It was the defy of Jack Sharkey, the Boston sailorman, whom Schmeling defeated on a foul in four rounds in the Yankee stadium one week ago tonight. It was challenge to battle that wiped away any excuses Schmeling might have for evading a return match and made concessions almost unheard of before in the bickerings and undercover arrangements that feature the big business of heavyweight battle.

First Sharkey offered Schmeling 27 1-2 per cent of the receipts to 12 1-2 per cent for himself if the German would agree to a return engagement in September. Sharkey promised to pay Arthur Buelow, deposed manager of Schmeling, the 20 per cent he is entitled to under his contract with Der Maxie, thereby binding himself to a flat loss of 7 1-2 per cent of the gate before the milling began. He asked that prices be scaled low so that all could come and see.

Furthermore Sharkey offered a unique solution of any controversy that might arise from another foul. He suggested a "rain check" arrangement and another fight free of charge to the customers the following night if the return battle ended in another wild pitch. He agreed not to allow himself to be declared a winner on a foul and all but promised to go jump in a lake if he dropped one low again.

Schmeling countered with an appeal for time to talk the matter over. Heretofore he has insisted that he would not fight again until after his contract with Buelow expires in October.

Sharkey, in person, protested the naming of Schmeling champion on the grounds that the bout had not decided which was the better man. He asked that the whole question be held in status quo until the return match. Commissioners James A. Farley and John J. Phelan decided, however, that the match had been fought for the heavyweight title, that the winner was Schmeling, and therefore the new titleholder.

Commissioner Muldoon opposed this view and offered three resolutions, all of which were defeated by votes of 3 to 1, that would have wiped Schmeling out of title consideration.

The aged sage first demanded that the commission refuse to accept the referee's decision because he had reversed himself under the persuasion of Joe Jacobs. Then he asked that the bout be declared "no contest" because of Referee Jim Crowley's "unsatisfactory decision and the disorder in the ring at the time it was made." Finally he moved that inasmuch as the title was held by neither man going into the ring and there had been no definite answer to the question of who was the better man, the commission refuse recognition to the winner as a champion worthy of the name. Each time he was voted down.

The commission explained its failure to suspend and fine Sharkey under the new "Baumes law" for fouls with the statement that Schmeling had demanded that the clause, for which the commission battled valiantly and finally gained legislative sanction, be stricken from the contracts.

But a few minutes later a Negro light heavyweight, Larry Johnson, who fouled Pete Latzo last night at Ebbets field, was suspended for 60 days and fined half his purse. The clause had not been stricken from the Negro's contract.

NEVINS PITCHES ROYALS TO WIN OVER CITIZENS

Eddie Nevins, youthful Greenville merchant, outpitched six Polish Citizen hurlers and won an exhibition game for the Royals, 3 to 1 at the Academy campus last night. But for a wild heave in the final frame by Jab Burns, his batterymate, Eddie would have had a shutout. In the seventh, with two away, Charles Lamory, Cit backstopper, drew a walk and stole second. In an attempt to catch him Jab heaved a deep into center and while Koziorsky was juggling the ball the runner scored.

Because of the poor condition of the grounds, the result of the afternoon rainstorm, the league officials ordered that the contest be an exhibition game and Hank Merin announced it as such before either team took the field. Despite the doubtful weather conditions, a large crowd was on hand and rather than disappoint the fans and at the same time be fair to both teams, the league governors decided on the exhibition idea.

The game was an exhibition in more ways than one, inasmuch as the Citizens displayed a staff of six hurlers during the seven innings of play. Boots Greene started and worked an inning and was followed by his brother Johnny, Gaudette, Pete Finn, Leo Jarvis and Raymond. With the exception of Jarvis each lasted a full inning and did fairly well. Leo started his one frame and quit because he really had no. In the fifth he went to the hill and was greeted with three clean swipes from the bats of Natrosky, Shorty Hamel and Hal Cummings, and before he was relieved by Finn the Royals counted twice. The other Royal run was made in the opening frame and was the result of errors by Finn and West and a hit by Cummings.

Considering the condition of the field both sides played fine ball and what errors were made might be excusable. The work of Hamel for the Royals and Clenny for the Citizens, afield, featured. Cummings led the hitters with two bingles and as previously mentioned Nevins pitched a sweet game for the Royals. He allowed but four hits and struck out five. The score:

HARVARD DRAWS FIRST BLOOD IN RACE EVENTS

NEW LONDON, June 19.—(AP)—Harvard's combination crew defeated Yale's mixed boat by a length in a two-mile race on the Thames this afternoon. No official time was given, but Coach Ed Leader of Yale timed the crews in 11:20.

This race preceded by a day the annual regatta between the two universities which will be held tomorrow, beginning with the freshman and junior varsity tilts in the morning and the varsity race at 7:30 p. m., eastern daylight time.

Challenge to Hardigs

The J. C. Reds would like to play the Hardigs this Sunday in Jewett City at Slater's park at 2:30. If challenge is accepted, please answer through this paper.

He was an immaculate young man, clean-cut and snappy in appearance. As he came swinging across the field he was the picture of clean-living and outdoor life. His well knit figure and elasticity of step bespoke the athlete; a smiling face under a wavy coal-black thatch radiated the joy of being alive; he waved a hand here and there to acquaintances in the grandstand. He was a popular young man and had been quite a ball player in his day.

The teams were practicing for the twilight game in the City league and the young man was to do the scoring he being the official scorer of the league. As he swung along one of the players batted a ball in his direction. Answering to that urge that all ex-ballplayers feel when they see the sphere of horsehide hurling toward them, he made the play on the ball. It was going to be one of those nonchalant pickups and throws. The pickup was executed with grace but the throw never materialized.

As the young man made the play he failed to observe that the rain of the afternoon had left a nice little puddle of muddy water on the field. He got the ball on the edge of the puddle and then started his throw. Simultaneously his feet started to slip and in fact they slipped with such speed that they had soared about three feet off the ground before the rest of his body answered the law of gravity.

The result was a very humiliating pancake landing, as they say in aviation. That is, he came down all at once and in a very horizontal position. As was said before it had rained in the afternoon and there was a nice pubble of muddy water which may or may not have broken his fall to some extent. But it was noticed that a good part of the puddle was absorb by the young man's clothing, even as blotting paper absorbs ink. It is needless to say that the unsympathetic fans in the grandstand laughed. It was a wholehearted gleeful sort of laugh that leaves the victim with the same feeling as though somebody had pored salt and vinegar in an open wound.

Was our hero chagrined? Not he, that is not much. He arose from his watery resting place even as Neptune arose from the sea and smiled at the laughing crowd and went on his way to the bench.

But he was not the immaculate and clean looking youth that came swinging across the field a few minutes before.

KOLP SHUTS OUT ROBINS WITH SEVEN SCATTERED HITS

CINCINNATI, June 19.—(AP)—Ray Kolp shut out the league-leading Brooklyn Robins today to give Cincinnati a 5 to 0 victory in the first game of its home stand against the eastern clubs of the National league. Kolp allowed only seven hits and bore down with men on bases. The Robins had ten men left stranded.

Adolfo Luque, once a Red, did his best to beat his old mates, but the Cincinnati players hit when blows counted, scoring in four of the six innings Luque worked. The veteran hurler made two of Brooklyn's hits and fielded brilliantly but his mates made several costly errors and the Reds followed them with hits. Five of Cincinnati's 11 blows off Luque and Johnny Morrison were doubles.

CUBS PILE UP EARLY LEAD TO BEAT BRAVES

CHICAGO, June 19.—(AP)—A vicious assault on Sock Seibold in the first three innings which included home runs by Hack Wilson, Woody English and Kiki Cuyler, and excellent pitching by Guy Bush, gave the Cubs a 10 to 4 victory today.

The Cubs amassed their lead off Seibold, but were tamed by Wee Willie Sherdel, who pitched the rest of the game for Boston. Bush held the Braves to six hits, four of which bunched in the eighth for three runs. The Braves' eighth inning rally included a homer by Buster Chatham.

PLAINFIELD BLANKS JEWETT CITY; MARRIOTT GIVES 2 HITS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, June 19.—Bill Marriott was in top form tonight and Plainfield blanked Jewett City, 2 to 0, in six innings. Marriott allowed the visitors but two hits, and fanned six. He was opposed, however, by a foe worthy of his steel in Vachon, who struck out eight men and allowed five hits.

The runs came in the second on singles by Dissinger, Ouellette and Marriott, and a passed ball.

YALE TOP-HEAVY FAVORITE TO WIN FROM HARVARD IN CLASSIC TODAY

(By Alan Gould, Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 19—(AP)—Yale and Harvard, most ancient of American college rivals, close their 1930-30 athletic competition on the Thames river tomorrow with the Elis strongly favored to outrow the Crimson varsity crew and thereby send the banner of blue flying for the first major conquest of the year over its old foe.

Harvard has come down to this concluding spectacle with one of the finest Crimson records in years, so far as rivalry with Yale is concerned. The Cambridge lads triumphed on the gridiron and on the track, besides gaining ties in hockey and baseball, the other major sports. They are conceded only an outside chance, ment ran into a slump, however, for a sity rowing machine in tomorrow's regatta.

Yale is a prohibitive favorite to capture the honors, by anywhere from five to ten lengths, in the four mile varsity pull down the old river from Bartlett's cove, past the war-like submarine base, through brilliant lanes formed by a record breaking fleet of yachts and cruisers, down to the finish at the railroad bridge.

The morning races, at two miles, for the freshman and junior varsity crews, figured to develop an even break. Harvard's freshman and Yale's jayvee crew were the favorites in the preliminary events, scheduled to start at 9 a. m., (E. S. T.) The varsity race was carded for 6:30 p. m.

Since Ed Leader came out of the well known west in 1922 to reorginze and revive Eli rowing fortunes, Yale has monopolized the celebrations in this ancient whaling town with monotonous regularity. In fact, during the past seven years of Leader's regime, Harvard has captured only three out of twenty one races rowed on the morrow depend largely on how much petition. Harvard's last varsity victory was in 1927, when the Crimson rowed a smashing race in the last mile after one of Eli's oarsmen was unfortunate to catch a "crab." In 1926, Harvard showed the way in both morning events. Otherwise the blue-tipped oars have swept the river.

It is no novelty for Yale to enter the final regatta with an undefeated varsity crew and this year's unbeaten boatload appears to be one of the best that has come out of New Haven. It has power plus in the "engine room," with the brawny Woodruff Tappen at stroke and Captain Gus Blagden at No. 7. It has the stamina and steadiness for the route, speed for any finishing emergency.

Harvard's varsity is the first product to be sent against Yale by the new Crimson coach, Charles Whiteside, who has just been given a demonstration of support by re-engagement, for another three years. Last April, in its early stage of development, the jayvee boats appravariety of causes, and its chances tomorrow depend largely on how much of this early-season form has been regained.

Whiteside is optimistic that the Crimson will make more of a fight of the big race than the experts anticipate. In fact, the general idea is that Harvard can win only through a break in racing luck or an accident to Yale. Harvard's freshmen, coached by Bert Haines, have not been defeated. They decisively shipped the Pennsylvania youngsters, who trimmed Yale, and figure to win with something to spare. What little has been demonstrated by the jayvee boats apparently favors the Elis.

To make the regatta an impressive spectacle in keeping with its traditions, a great fleet of yachts and craft of all descriptions has gathered in the lower river, as well as along the course.

Included in the floating assembly are the four America's Cup candidates, anchored off here on their way to Newport for further trials. There were also about two score boats gathered for the annual race to Bermuda, which starts from here Sunday.

A heavy storm broke over the river and fog blanketed the fleet this afternoon, accompanied by a stiff breeze that churned up the water and kept the oarsmen at their quarters. The prediction was for fair weather tomorrow, however, so that no interruption to the regatta programme was anticipated. If a postponement of the varsity is necessary, it will be rowed at 10 a. m. Saturday.

RUTH'S 22ND HOMER WINS GAME FOR YANKS

NEW YORK, June 19.—(AP)—After striking out three times in a row today, Babe Ruth's fourth effort against the delivery of George Uhle was crowned with the success of his 22nd home run of the year, and the direct result of the homer was that the Yankees defeated Detroit, 5 to 4, for their sixth successive victory.

The Babe's homer came in the seventh inning with the bases empty, giving the Yankees a 5-3 lead, but the Tigers scored another run in the next inning. A double steal in the first inning brought the first Yank counter, Lary scoring. A bunch of three hits netted the rest in the second after Uhle had provided three Tiger runs by hitting a triple with two on and scoring on Chapman's error.

Ed Wells gained credit for his fifth victory in six starts although a slight injury forced him to retire in favor of Gomez after five innings.

BENEFIT GAME FOR CHILDREN'S FUND AT ACADEMY CAMPUS ON SATURDAY

Child's Day will be observed here Saturday, a program having been arranged for the day by the local recreation commission, William J. Fitzgerald, chairman. In the morning the children of the city will be guests of the management of the Broadway theatre and the commission at the local playhouse and in the afternoon a baseball game is to be played at the Academy campus for the benefit of the "kiddies' beach fund."

The youngsters will be entertained free of charge at both places. Manager Fitz has lined up a headline bill of talkies for the morning affair and Bill Fitzgerald has picked two of the City league's best teams for the second half of the bill. The Italian Young Men's club and Polish Citizens will be the competitors in the ball game, the affair to be a non-league exhibition.

While the youngsters are to be admitted free to all activities on the day the adults will be asked to pay an admission fee of 25 cents. The entire receipts of the session will be dumped into the "beach fund" and will be used at the end of the summer to give the kiddies of the city an outing at Ocean beach. A year ago, it will be remembered, 1200 youngsters were brought to the beach by the recreation commission and they had the time of their lives. It is hoped to give them as equally and good outing this season and it is expected that the citizens will assist in the observance of Child's Day by turning out enmasse for the benefit game.

Tonight's Game.

Inasmuch as last night's game between the Polish Citizens and Royals was a non-title affair, tonight's contest between the Italian Young Men

LIGHTING FIXTURES GIVE FIRST HOME IMPRESSION

One's first impression on entering a home at night is through the lighting equipment in the hallway. An attractive foyer lantern may give a guest a highly flattering impression while the opposite may be true with an unattractive fixture.

The hallway lantern may follow the architecture of the home. If an early American dwelling, the fixture may take the form of old-fashioned candle scones. An old carriage lantern also lends distinctiveness. Or, again, if the house follows modernistic architectural lines the light would be of pewter in a futuristic design.

All shapes, sizes and designs of fixtures to fit varying types of homes are available. One particularly delightful fixture which is enjoying popularity at the present time is a ship's lantern of wrought iron which drops from the ceiling. This fixture is fastened to the bracket by a heavy ring. The lamp itself is surmounted by a small hood which serves to reflect the light down into the hallway. This fixture would blend in with almost any type of architecture or interior decoration.

MODERNIZE EXTERIOR WITH STUCCO OVERCOAT

The process of applying Portland cement stucco over an old building is identical with stucco on new construction. If additional insulation is required, paper may be applied under the stucco.

If the stucco brings the surface beyond the openings, that is, window sills, then some molding or quarter round must be nailed around such openings to provide for the additional thickness. This is a very slight expense and is entirely satisfactory.

It is unnecessary to remove old siding or other former finish. In fact, what strength and protection is left in this siding adds that much to the new finish.

Because no additional structural changes need be made to receive an overcoat of stucco, it is one of the least expensive ways to modernize the exterior.

Is Your Daughter Well and Strong?

There are three trying periods in a woman's life, when the girl matures to womanhood; when a woman gives birth to her first child; when a woman reaches middle age. At these times Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helps to restore normal health and vigor. Thousands testify to its worth.

Daughter of Mrs. F. Butcher, R. No. 2, Gridley, Kansas

"My thirteen year old daughter Maxine was troubled with backache and pain when she came into womanhood. I knew Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would help her because I used to take it myself at her age. Now she does not have to stay home from school, and her color is good, she eats well and does not complain of being tired. —Mrs. Floyd Butcher.

Daughter of Mrs. J. Bartholdi, Thompson's Addition, The Dalles, Oregon

"My daughter Magdalen did not seem to develop as she should. At times she had no pep at all and couldn't get her school work very easily. For four years we doctored her, off and on. Then a friend told us about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I got a bottle for Magdalen. Her nerves are quieting, her general health is better and she is now as normal as other girls. I really think the Compound helped her more than all the other medicine I gave her."—Mrs. J. Bartholdi.

Daughter of Mrs. M. Milano, 1408 Park Ave., New York, New York

"My seventeen year old daughter Fannie was rundown, weak and nervous. Since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound she has gained in weight and strength. She eats and sleeps well. She is a packer and she is able to go to work every day. We recommend the medicine to other mothers and daughters."—Mrs. M. Milano.

WINNERS IN ANNUAL PRIZE ESSAY CONTEST

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, June 19—At the graduation exercises Thursday afternoon of the West Broad street grammar school in Pawcatuck the awarding of the annual essay prizes from the Peleg S. Barber memorial fund was announced by Attorney John F. Gallagher, chairman of the judges who numbered Judge William A. Wilcox and Russell Hemphill. The first prize of $25 in gold went to Rauni Forse of Clarkville; the second of $15 to Paul Jordan of Lower Pawcatuck and the third of $10 to John Murray of the Randall district. Under the provisions of the trust fund only residents of the old 15th School district are eligible to compete.

The severest thunder storm and accompanied by the heaviest downpour of rain so far this season, broke suddenly Thursday afternoon and lasted for nearly an hour. Several times electric lights were extinguished and remained out for a few minutes each time.

Recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk appears the following: June 19—Lease—John D. Traggis to Italian Welfare club of Westerly, the top floor of the Traggis block, corner Broad and High streets.

FUNERAL

George P. Gilchrist

On Thursday morning funeral services for George Phillips Gilchrist, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Gilchrist of the Stonington road, who was killed Monday afternoon when struck by an automobile while playing near his home, were held at 8:30 o'clock from the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Catherine Gilchrist, 133 Granite street. Services were held at 9 o'clock at St. Michael's church, being conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. F. X. Quinn.

Interment was at St. Michael's New cemetery, where the committal service was also conducted by Fr. Quinn. The bearers were: Frederick Sullivan, John Gilchrist, Joseph Gilchrist and George Phillips.

On solicitation of the Westerly highway commission sealed proposals for the construction of cement sidewalks on the west side of High street and the west side of Grove avenue will be received by the Westerly highway commissioners up to next Saturday. The contract calls for the laying of approximately 500 square yards of concrete walks.

The new walks will be laid in conjunction with the improvements in the widening and reconstruction of High street. The greater amount of walk will be put in about the property of Miss Jennie Miner at the corner of High and Grove avenue, commencing at the residence of George B. Utter on Grove avenue and continuing up Grove avenue around to High street. This will finish the job of cutting the curve at Miss Miner's property, the land for which was given by her.

Other walks included in this contract are on the westerly side of High street in front of the Wells property, where the sidewalk was set back in order to widen the street.

An automobile collision occurred on Thursday morning at the corner of Elm and Broad streets in which cars owned by Dr. Edwin Whitford of Greenman Heights and John W. Azevedo of 97 Freeman street, New London, figured.

Dr. Whitford's car was headed down Elm street toward Broad street and Azevedo was approaching the intersection of Granite, Elm and Broad streets, when the cars came together. Azevedo, according to the police, had slowed down his car as when he attempted to turn up Granite street he found the road blocked with "closed" signs and horses.

A fender on each car was bent and three tires were punctured on Azevedo's machine. He was bound for Cape Cod, Mass., to take a vacation for the benefit of his health. The accident was investigated by Officer Leroy H. Norman.

THE MOVEMENT FOR BETTER COUNTRY ROADS

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

All through last spring, when the frost was coming out and the mud squirting up from our country roads, I watched with keen interest the valiant work the editor of The Bulletin was doing He kept dinging away, repeating with cogent reasoning, apt illustration, and fervent appeals the demand of the hill farms for better roads.

Such a stand isn't any too popular in the cities, where smoother pavings and wider parkways and "through routes" are widely called for. It requires some courage for a city editor to minimize such locally popular objects and "throw his heft" in with those who want improvement of the lanes and trails among the hills of Wayback.

I hope you appreciated it and that some of you, at least, made your appreciation known. Also I hope that, now nature and the weather, with very little human assistance, have made the country roads again passable, neither you nor he will give over your good work.

In the April Grange Monthly, State Master Tolles remarked:

"It has often been said that during the mud season everyone becomes stirred to the marrow, and cools off as the roads improve with warm weather. Perhaps this has been too true, but this time let us remember our past experiences and see that the day is hastened when these experiences with mud roads shall not recur."

Probably you've all heard the famous story of the old darkey who was asked why he didn't patch his leaky cabin roof. "Wy, Marse," he said, "When it's rainin' I kyan't do no patchin', and when it ain't rainin' what's de use?"

There isn't much to be done with or for a country dirt road in the spring when it is raining almost every day and the trail is hub-deep in mud. Should we, therefore, when the mud has dried up and the road become fairly passable, forget how it was during March and April? Should we imitate the old darkey's shiftlessness? Should we act as if there wouldn't be any more March-and-April mud-fests to reckon with?

Or should we take the opportunity when something can be done about the old ruts and try to put them in shape so they can be driven over when the next ruction breaks loose?

Now, it must be admitted at the start-off that the state of Connecticut cannot be expected to build a 20-foot wide, concrete paved highway to the lane-gate of every back farm in the state. Nor can it be required to sacrifice the larger public advantage for any mere private convenience. The main roads, those on which there is the greatest travel and which connect the larger centers of population are, naturally and rightfully, those calling for first aid. There are more people wanting to travel and more goods to be hauled between Norwich and New London, than between Norwich and Ledyard or Lantern hill and New London. Therefore, properly enough, good roads between the two cities were first built.

By this time, practically all these main routes have been improved. One can drive his car at any time of the year, on business or for pleasure, from Norwich to New London or Westerly or Danielson or Willimantic or Colchester,—or to Galveston and Los Angeles, for that matter.

But there are times every year when the Ledyard or Salem farmer whose taxes have helped pay for these through roads, can't get to Norwich with a bushel of potatoes or a pound of butter for some customer

There are times, in my particular section of the country, when even the doctors can't reach the sick on errands of mercy. I have heard of a case where, after the sparsely attended funeral service was over, the coffin had to be trundled on a wheelbarrow across nearly a mile of pasture land, because the hearse could get no nearer the house.

Such cases are, of course, exceptional. They ought to be impossible.

Nor is it beyond the reach of governmental economy to make them impossible. It would be just that, i. e., economically impossible to criss-cross all our hills with cement-paved parkways. But such avenues are neither desired nor desirable in the back country. All that is asked is that it shall be made practicable for the farmer to get to town or to his neighbors, when need arises, without being embargoed by intervening mud-sloughs.

Four times out of five, the trouble is with more or less isolated sinks or sumps in hollows of the roadway, with considerable stretches of at least passable road between them. Were these sink-holes filled up with local stone,— and where is there any shortage of that material in eastern Connecticut?— the whole road would at once become at least fairly decent. Sometimes a trifling change in the road's layout would carry it on to firmer ground and leave the sink-hole to one side.

Naturally, there would be stretches which would call for more work, the construction of causeways or the erection of substantial bridges and conduits. But the filling up of occasional soft spots, the provision of adequate side-ditches, and a surfacing of gravel would transform a vast majority of country roads.

Even this would cost money, and many rural towns would shrink from the added taxation necessitated if the work were done wholly by locally raised funds. That's where the state can and should come in to help. The farmers on these back farms have paid their share of taxes and auto license fees for the money which has gone into through routes and interclty communications. Now let the state take a fair share of the taxes paid by the already well-provided-for cities to "even up" the disqualifications of rural residents.

The April number of the Grange Monthly devoted considerable space to a plan suggested by State Master Tolles whereby the granges should unite in backing up a statewide movement for improving farmers' roads.

I wonder how much of a response this elicited?

Seems to me, as an old granger,— charter-member, etc.,—this is a task peculiarly fitting for the grange to undertake. The one dominant purpose of the grange is to make farm homes more attractive and farm life better worth while. The very first step in this direction calls for year-round open and passable roads. How can a grange function when half its members can't get to the meetings on account of impassible roads? How can it foster neighborliness, when every neighbor is shut in on his own back-yard, unable to get out unless by the aid of some chance airplane?

There is nothing partisanly political about good roads, as there is about such virulently political questions as the "debenture" and prohibition. Some of us older members gravely doubt either the wisdom or the morality of the campaign which certain present leaders are waging in behalf of their undoubtedly sincere convictions in regard to these disputed political measures.

Any granger is perfectly free to favor a "debenture," as he may happen to understand it; any member is equally free to oppose it, if he wants to. But neither one is justified in trying to swing the grange into organized support of his private belief. He might just as reasonably demand that it take a stand, as a grange, in favor of immersion, if he is a Baptist, or of sprinkling, if he is a Congregationalist. Even if the grange were nine-tenths Baptists or nineteen-twentieths "debentureites," it would not be justified in any attempt to plant the order on the majority's religious or political beliefs.

The less the grange has to do with sectarianism or party politics the more likely it will be to accomplish its real purpose.

This movement for better country roads is neither sectarian nor partisan. It appeals to republicans and democrats, to Protestants and Catholics alike. It is a needed step in the improvement of rural conditions. It is just the sort of thing the grange was organized to work for. It is something which every granger in the state can throw up his hat for and handle his hoe to help.

This doesn't mean that non-grangers living on back roads are debarred from doing their part, too. Really, it seems as if every one who has passed even one spring embargoed on an inaccessible farm must necessarily enthuse over it.

The whole situation is admirably set forth by State Master Tolles in his appeal to the granges:

"It is a fact here in our state, that the rural dweller every year in the spring time is practically "mud-bound" due to the kind of roads over which he must travel to and from the market and social centers.

"Every town is in the same curious dilemma and nothing is done in a constructive way to relieve the situation. Individual towns as a rule are not in a position to pull themselves out of the mud, so to speak, and the state has repeatedly refused aid to the towns in such distress.

"Since the car owner in rural Connecticut is required to pay the same tax to the state that the dweller along the state highway pays, is it not about time that we, the Patrons of Connecticut, take up the problem of getting rural Connecticut out of the mud and up on to hard surface roads and see to it that the fellow who has been enjoying the improvements that the rural taxpayer's money has all these years helped to provide, takes a turn at it and helps the other fellow to get on to passable hard surface roads to and from his farm and home and in as short a time as is possible?"

THE FARMER.

Rev. A. G. Littlefield took his text Sunday from Rev. 31:30. The C. E. meeting was led by Miss Elinor Chappell. There was a duet by Mrs. Abraham Aspinall and Miss Beatrice Littlefield.

There was a smaller attendance than usual at the service Sunday morning, about 40 being present. Rev. Walter Vey took as the subject of his sermon, "Foundations of Faith." There was a very pretty duet by Misses Ruth and Julia Standish.

The Sunday school contest between the Reds and Blues was won by the Reds by one point. Tuesday evening there was to be a picnic on the green, but owing to the rain it was held in the parlors of the Congregational church. Games were played and refreshments served by the Blues.

The Junior Endeavor was led by Mary Spellacy, topic: God's Gift, Outdoors.

At the evening Endeavor, members of the graduating class of Lyman Memorial high school and the teachers were guests of honor. Rev. Mr. Smiley, of Windham, gave a very interesting talk on Science and Religion. Refreshments were served by the social committee, Mrs. John Manning, chairman.

The Woman's Missionary society is to meet at the parsonage on Thursday afternoon.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The West Haven Manufacturing Company, West Haven.

The West Haven Manufacturing company, manufacturers of hack saw blades, metal cutting band saws, and a variety of drive punches, nail sets, etc., had a very humble beginning in West Haven about 33 years ago, when Frank S. Bradley and Charles E. Graham rented a room from the American Buckle company, situated in Campbell avenue, West Haven, and began experiments in the manufacture of hack saws. Mr. Graham furnished the capital, which, coupled with Mr. Bradley's experience in the saw business and his natural inventive ability, soon developed machinery which turned out a hack saw of high quality.

In 1902, it was necessary to find larger quarters, as the demand for their product increased and they secured what was then known as the Key shop, situated in the same town at the intersection of Elm street and Kimberly avenue.

The manufacture of all hard band and power hack saws was then started on a larger scale, and were the first to produce a flexible back hack saw made of tungsten steel. Soon after, metal cutting band saws were added.

In 1911, the plant was completely destroyed by fire, which was started in a most peculiar manner. It is said that one of the workmen threw a snowball which dropped into a tank of hot oil which was used for tempering the hack saws. This caused the oil to boil over and become ignited by the fire underneath the tank. After the fire a new building was erected and the mechanics tool business of William Peck, then situated on Brewery street, New Haven was added.

In 1920, the company was purchased by The Millers Falls company, internationally known manufacturers of carpenters and mechanics tools, whose main plant is situated at Millers Falls. It has since enjoyed a substantial business, lately adding high speed steel hack saws to its line, and shipping its tools to all parts of the world.

One of the company's latest developments is a line of hole saws, consisting of 24 different diameters. They are made of high speed steel, and will quickly saw through practically all kinds of metal. These tools have proven great time savers for plumbers, electricians, boiler makers, and in many lines of manufacture.

The officers of the West Haven Manufacturing company are: John W. Smead, president; Philip Rogers, secretary and treasurer.

The officers of the Millers Falls company are: Philip Rogers, president and secretary; Earl D. Holtby, treasurer.

Capes For New Fur Coats.

PARIS, June 18—(AP)—Capes, flat black furs and coats which reach to the middle of the calf of the leg are given out here as probabilities for next winter's fur styles.

"A very new feature of the fur coats for next winter will be capelets of the same fur as the coat, which will offer a distinctly new silhouette," says a trade bulletin.

"Collars will be very high and wide on the shoulders," according to the bulletin which adds: "Collars will even fall half way down the upper arm. To guard against an appearance of heaviness the fur underneath capes will be cut out and replaced by cloth."

Autum Skirt Models.

PARIS, June 18—(AP)—Fullness is centered in the front of skirts in the form of deep pleats or gathers laid in unpressed pleats in the advance autumn skirts.

Leading dressmakers sponsor these for morning and sports wear with three-quarter length coats.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

How Jerry Fooled Peter

The smarter folks are, as a rule,
The easier they are to fool.
—Jerry Muskrat.

Peter Rabbit sat on the bank of the Smiling Pool not knowing just what to think. Jerry Muskrat had told him that he was sitting on the roof of Jerry's new house. Peter knew better than that. At least, he thought he did. How could he be sitting on Jerry's roof when he was sitting on the bank of the Smiling Pool and that bank had been there just as it was as long as he could remember?

"I don't like to be told things that are not true," said Peter indignantly. "No, sir, I don't like to be told things that are not true."

"Has some one told you something that is not true?" inquired Redwing the Blackbird.

"Yes," replied Peter. "Jerry told me that he had a new home and that I am sitting on the roof of it. Of course, that isn't true, because I'm sitting right here on the bank of the Smiling Pool and there isn't any house here. What are you chuckling about?"

"Jerry Muskrat likes his little joke, doesn't he?" said Redwing. "It is true that he has a new house, and it is also true that you are sitting on the roof of it."

Never in all his life would Peter Rabbit look more foolish than he did when he stared up at Redwing the Blackbird. His mouth was open, his lower jaw hanging in a most foolish way. It was no wonder that Redwing chuckled more than ever.

"Peter," said he, "what is the matter with your wits? You haven't been using them. You have quite forgotten that a house can be in the ground as well as on the ground. Jerry Muskrat has a new house and you are sitting on the roof of it, just as he said."

"You mean—" began Peter, but Redwing interrupted him.

"I mean," said he, "that Jerry's house is in the bank of the Smiling Pool right under you."

"I don't believe it!" snapped Peter. "Where is the entrance? Tell me that. If he has a house in the ground, he must have an entrance. Where is it?"

"Just where it should be," replied Redwing good-naturedly. "Where was the entrance to Jerry's old house? That house stood out of water, but you didn't see any entrance. Where was it?"

"Under water, of course," replied Peter. "Every one knows that."

"Of course," replied Redwing. "That is where the entrance to the home of a sensible Muskrat will always be. That is where the entrance to this new home of Jerry's is. It is down at the bottom of the Smiling Pool right in front of where you are sitting. If you will look over the edge of the bank, you will discover it for yourself."

Peter hopped over to the edge of the bank and leaned over. He couldn't see very well, but he could see enough to feel sure that there was a hole leading into the bank right under him. He knew that that hole probably was the entrance to a hall that led up above the water to where the ground was dry and that at the end of that hole was a comfortable bedroom, in which was a comfortable bed, and that probably Jerry Muskrat was in there at that very moment chuckling.

"Jerry Muskrat likes his little joke, doesn't he?" said Redwing

NOT BITTER

Coming Hats Are White.

PARIS, June 18—(AP)—All-white hats cloche models of felt or fabric, are a coming millinery form, among Parisians.

The white hat is a last-minute touch to the dark tailored suit. Summer suits styles are smartest when there are white touches in blouse, gloves and buttonhole posey.

The white hat style threatens to continue into midsummer in the form of cotton pique and linen models.

LONG SKIRTS FOR SPORTS DON'T SUIT ENGLISH GIRLS

LONDON—June 18—(AP)—Miss London, the great out-of-door girl who takes her sports seriously, has staged a revolt against fashion edicts from Paris.

The same girl who has fought stubbornly for two seasons for bare legs on the tennis court, is putting up a fight against lengthened tennis frocks.

The shops, true to the dictator, are showing sleeveless and backless tennis frocks with their hem-line reaching a point well down the shin.

But the girl who buys them is insistent on reducing the skirt to the old-time freedom of knee length.

GERMANS STUDY WAYS TO DEADEN SOUNDS

BERLN — (AP) — How air-borne waves and vibrations, electric or mechanical, affect human lines will be investigated by the new Heinrich Hertz Institute in Berlin.

Experts are confident that some day the human race will gain complete control of wave transmissions, so all sounds and noises that make city life hideous today shall cease.

Why, how, and when, heavy street traffic causes cracks in buildings; why certain houses or rooms are "noisy;" why electric cables or radio installations develop interruptions and what can be done to prevent it will be investigated.

Mrs. George Oaklev Totten has made the statue and designed the grotto. Miss Anna M. Hagen will present the statue as a gift to the church.

Suiting The Ginger Ale To the Occasion!

YOUR choice of Pale Dry or Golden Berry Spring Ginger Ales is largely a matter of taste. Both are good and good for you—both contain the same pure ingredients—both are made carefully by processes perfected through many years of study and application in the field of health, nutrition and beverage-making. Both are thoroughly aged.

Varying the proportions of ingredients makes the difference between Golden and Pale Dry. Briefly stated, the Golden is of fuller body and slightly sweeter; the Pale Dry less sweet, with a higher percentage of fruit acid.

Connoisseurs use Golden or Pale Dry, according to the food it is served with. To the cultivated taste, Pale Dry may be said to "Go better" with some foods, Golden with others.

Suppose you serve a broiled or baked mackerel, a roast pork dinner, or other fatty foods. With them you will find Berry Spring Pale Dry with its sharp, pungent taste and fruit acid content particularly delicious. With other meals in which fruit, vegetables and cereals predominate, the full, rich body and sweeter flavor of Berry Spring Golden forms, to many tastes, a more satisfying beverage. Your good taste may be relied upon for a wise choice—to suit the occasion. Try both the Golden and Pale Dry, then you will learn the distinctive and delicious taste of each.

But whichever your choice, if you're careful to buy Genuine Berry Spring, you will benefit by its pure Ginger, its pure fruit juices, its carbonation which promotes quick absorption and ready digestion.

Several thousand stores of the better class carry Berry Spring Golden and Pale Dry Ginger Ales. Order from your nearby dealer. He has Berry Spring or can get it for you.

HALF PEANUT FEEDS A MENTAL WORKOUT

BOSTON—(AP)—One hour's intense mental effort is worth just one half of a salted peanut on the heat scale.

Or it is equal to five minutes of dusting done by the parlormaid.

These calibrations are accurate determinations of the extra calories consumed by the brain during intense mental effort as compared with the calories of a brain not working hard at thinking.

They were obtained by Francis G. and Cornelia G. Benedict of the Carnegie Institution nutrition laboratory here.

New Austria Beacon

VIENNA—(AP)—Fliers who skirt the Danube on the London-India route at night will be guided by a new beacon, to be erected by the Austrian government. Located 1,000 feet above the plain surrounding Vienna, it will be visible for 30 miles.

EUROPEAN NATIONS TEST NIGHT AIR MAIL SERVICE

HELSINGFORS, Finland — (AP) — Experimental flights are pointing to the inauguration of a night postal service that will connect Scandinavia and central and western Europe.

Planes leaving Helsingfors will pass at night through Sweden, Denmark, Germany and Great Britain, connecting with other air lines.

Each year from 1930 to 1935 it is planned to increase the length of the fight season, starting with two months and building up to a full year.

Night flying facilities have been provided for the major part of the route, though added equipment will be installed in various sections.

REMEDY CENTURIES OLD USED FOR SNAKE BITES

CHICAGO — (AP) — A remedy discovered by the ancient Incas was used successfully by Llewellyn Williams, young Chicago botantist, fighting the bites of poisonous snakes during a year's trip through the South American jungle.

Some of the jungles had yardlong green snakes, the bite of which is fatal unless treated immediately by paration discovered by the Incas. They had extensive knowledge of herbs, Williams says and this was handed down from generation to generation.

Air Mileage Increases

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Increases in air lines since the beginning of the year have added 3,011 plane miles flown daily in scheduled operation.

AUTOMOBILES BUILD TIRE INDUSTRY FOR JAPANESE

TOKYO —(AP)— Automobiles have transformed Japan from a nation dependent on imports to the eighth most potential rubber-exporting country in the world.

Less than 25 years ago the chief demand was for jinrikisha tires, and until 10 years ago Japan relied almost entirely on imported products. In 1929 it had built an industry that exported $2,904,600 worth of rubber tires.

With the advanced use of automobiles, tire production has increased both for domestic and foreign consumption. Coarse gravel roads with sharp turns and steep grades reduce tire life and bring greater demands.

RAINFALL IS WETTEST CLOSE TO THE GROUND

TOPEKA, Kan. —(AP)—Six floors above the ground here a government rain gauge registers almost three inches less annual rainfall than one nearby on the ground.

The reasons are reported to the American Association for the Advancement of Science by B. R. Laskowski, meterologist of the Topeka weather bureau.

Wind blows rain drops so slantingly around the elevated gauge that many of them fail to enter. In winter, says Mr. Laskowski, the amount caught by both gauges is about equal.

DANIELSON

DANIELSON MEN LEAVE SOON TO ALASKA

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Conn., June 19.—Alex LaBelle, Delor LaBelle, Donald Armington and Thomas Hall, the latter of Wauregan, plan to leave here about the first of the month on a trip that promises adventure, and plenty of it, as well as providing opportunities to see a great deal of the United States and one of its possessions. Alaska is the destination of this quartet, and they go there to visit with Exeia LaBelle, a relative of two of the local men and a resident of Alaska for the past 23 years.

The young men will motor across the continent, making stop-overs at Chicago and Milwaukee to visit with friends before proceeding on to Seattle. They go from the coast city to Cordova, Alaska, by boat, and from Cordova by motor bus, a $10 trip to the end of the run.

Once they are off the bus they have a mere 250-mile hike ahead of them before reaching their host's camp at the base of Mt. McKinley. It is near that famous peak that the Mr. LaBelle who is in Alaska is engaged in gold mining on claims that he has staked out and works under grants from the government.

The eastern Connecticut young men expect to spend much of their time in that region in hunting bear and other large game that abounds. Returning from Seattle, they plan to motor down the Pacific coast, visiting centers of special interest, and then turn east to return via the southern route through Arizona, New Mexico and Texas. They plan to be away from three to four months.

CHANGES IN FACULTY AT KILLINGLY HIGH

Changes in the faculty of Killingly high school will be several in September, from the organization as it was through the past school year. Miss Louise Danielson retires under the Connecticut Teachers' Retirement association plan, after a teaching service of 28 years. Miss Danielson came from New Haven to Killingly high school in 1911. She is a graduate of Wellesley, with a B.A. degree, in the class of 1891, and previously had studied at Southbridge and at Dana hall. Miss Danielson will be succeeded by Miss Ethel E. Kelley of Manchester, a graduate of the University of New Hampshire, at Durham, in the class of 1927. The past three years Miss Kelley has taught English and history at the Bristol, N. H., high school. During the summer of 1928 she attended the University of New Hampshire summer school and is studying again there during the present vacation season.

Miss Emma Inman, Bridgeton, and also of the English department of the local high school, has resigned her position here because of her approaching marriage. Her home is to be in Providence. Miss Inman will be succeeded by Miss Elinore Hughes of Watertown, Mass. Miss Hughes is to be graduated this month from Wheaton college, from which institution several teachers who have made splendid records have come to Killingly high school.

Miss Priscilla Brooks of Newton Highlands, Mass., is also resigning after two years as a member of the faculty of Killingly high school, and is to be married in the fall. Her home is to be in Chicago. She is to be succeeded by Miss Mary C. Pike of Portsmouth, N. H., a graduate this year with a degree from the University of New Hampshire. Miss Pike will have charge of the physical education for girls and also will teach one or two science classes.

Miss Mary Cunniff of Brookline has resigned to accept a position in the Senior high school at Arlington, Mass. She will be succeeded by Miss Cora M. McCarthy, Dalton, Mass., who has just completed a course of four years of study at Boston university and has been graduated with a degree.

Miss Margaret Stief will return to her home in Philadelphia to teach. Her place here will be taken by Miss Charlotte R. Simmons of Taunton, teaching Latin and French. Miss Simmons is a graduate of Wheaton college in the class of 1930.

Evan C. Richardson of Millis, Mass., who in addition to his teaching coached the athletic squads of Killingly high during the past year, will teach at Oxford the coming school year. He will be succeeded by Raymond E. Mitchell of Westerly, a graduate of the high school there in 1923, who subsequently spent two years in the Rhode Island School of Design and later was at the Springfield Y. M. C. A. college.

Another new teacher will be Miss Ethel L. Wheeler, Worcester, where she completed a course of four years at the State Normal school and received her degree.

Twenty-two pupils of the Danielson grammar school made perfect attendance records during the school year that closed the past week. Through cold and rain and snow, as well as on pleasant days, they were on hand to take their regular courses of study. They are: Nellie Korpita, Russell Chandler, Joseph Nash, Madeline Chenail, Milton Davis, John Wheeler, Evilne Ainsworth, Guerino Del Pesco, Richard Long, Lottie Schroka, Mildred Natorski, Alphonse Gallichant, Alexandra Pappajion, Sophie Rzezniklewicz, George Phalah, Wanda Rzezniklewicz, Jennie Pocoski, Louis Metaxas, Sophie Natorski, Armand Breuillard, Arthur Phalah, Thaddeus Trzepacz.

The advance guard of the hosts who will motor out of New England's other areas to watch the famous Yale-Harvard regatta on the Thames near New London Friday, began to motor through Danielson, southward bound this afternoon and early evening. Numbers of the cars bearing Massachusetts registrations carried Harvard colors, but there were not a few proudly flaunting the blue of Old Eli. The local exodus for the race will not begin until Friday morning.

At a meeting last evening of the Killingly Y. M. C. A. finance committee, it was reported that cash and pledges amounting to $1,100 have been received toward this town's quota of $1,500. It is now a matter of reasonable prospect that the full quota will be raised. Chairman N. Lorne Greig and 11 members of the committee attended the meeting.

VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL TO OPEN MONDAY

Danielson's vacation Bible school, conducted under the auspices of the Danielson Federation of Churches, will begin its fifth annual series of sessions next Monday. The arrangements for sessions are much the same as in previous years. The beginners' group will meet at the Westfield Congregational church and will be in charge of Miss Flora Keach. The primary group will be in charge of Mrs. Ethel Lyon and will hold sessions at the Baptist church. Miss Arline Babson will have charge of the junior group meeting at the Methodist Episcopal church. Sessions will be held from June 23 to July 3.

Next Tuesday afternoon, the annual picnic of the Wesleyan circle of the Methodist Episcopal church is to be held at Wildwood park. The circle has extended an invitation to all of the women of the parish to be in attendance.

Storm Cools Atmosphere

One of the few thunderstorms of the present season came this afternoon to cool the atmosphere, and, as many hoped, to rid this area of the unpleasant weather conditions of the past week.

The annual canvass for memberships is to be undertaken by the Civic Federation. As recently published reports, covering the activities of the organization and especially of its visiting nurse during the past year, indicate, the federation is doing a splendid work.

It was announced today that Danielson is to have a circus day in early July. The visitation will be by an old established show, 85 motor trucks being used to transport it from town to town.

Next Sunday, members of Killingly grange will go to Goodyear in a body to attend service at the Congregational church. The service will be conducted by Rev. Charles A. Downs, chaplain of the Connecticut State grange. The service is to be at 10:45.

The large number that arranged to attend the Danielson union church picnic at Webster lake got away on schedule time this morning, though the weather was a bit threatening at the time of departure.

Miss Aurore Severain of Biddeford, Maine, is visiting with friends in Danielson for a few days.

The air was so laden with static today that reception of the broadcast of Admiral Byrd's reception by the city of New York was greatly marred in Danielson.

Miss Josephine DeFrancesco and Frank DeCosta, both giving Goodyear as their place of residence, were married there Tuesday by Rev. Charles A. Downs, at the Congregational parsonage.

John W. Dill, Chanute, Kans., Civil war veteran, voted for Abraham Lincoln at 15. Entering the army at 13, he was enfranchised two years later by a special law in Iowa allowing all soldiers to vote.

Take a Day Off.

Forget for a day all these petty precepts
That urge you to sweat like a slave;
Take a day now and then, and rest while you live,
For you'll rest overlong in your grave.
Remember that Rome wasn't built in a day,
That ever time was and will be;
A day of your life is far less to the world
Than an atom of salt to the sea.

There are trees in the woodland to offer you shade,
There is grass upon which you may lie,
There are birds in the meadow to sing you to sleep,
There's a spring of pure water hard by;
There's a landscape to view that no painter has done
There's the fragrance of flowers in May,
There is pure air to breathe, piled high in the sky,
That is going to waste every day.

Just take a day off and live every hour;
You deserve it; don't worry, just smile.
If you're hungry, why eat and enjoy every bite,
If sleepy, doze off for awhile;
If you're thirsty, just drink and taste every drop,
Sprawl out and relax; let 'er go!
Soak up all the comfort the day has to spare;
For the world will wag on, don't cha know.

PUTNAM

ELENOR C. CARPENTER HEADS ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, June 19.— Miss Elenor C. Carpenter, P. H. S., '18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Richard Carpenter of South Main street, was elected to head the Putnam High School Alumni association during the ensuing year at the annual reunion Wednesday evening in the high school gymnasium. She succeeds William J. F. Rafferty, as president. Mr. Rafferty's term of office expired Wednesday evening. Immediately after her election was announced by the nominating committee, Miss Carpenter spoke briefly to the large assembly. She commended the members for their loyalty demonstrated by the new spirit which has grown into the organization during the past year and held that many promises for the success of the society are seen in the bright future. Prospects, she said, will be converted into reality only with the enhancing of the loyalty to the alma mater and unlimited cooperation on the part of the membership. Miss Carpenter was greeted with applause as she concluded her remarks and assumed the presidency of the association.

The annual reports of the secretary, Miss Margarite Sherlock and the acting treasurer, Miss Harriet Brown, were read and accepted. The financial report showed the association to be free of debt. Miss Sherlock's report showed a substantial increase in the membership during the past year. Unfortunately, because of illness, Miss Marion Warren, treasurer of the association, was unable to be present.

Retiring President Rafferty thanked the members for their splendid cooperation, and their loyal support shown the association during the year. He complimented the new alumni—the class of 1930, members of which were guests at the banquet which preceded the reunion — for their achievement and on behalf of the alumni welcomed the 48 graduates into the ranks of the association.

In a brief address the class president, John Stuart Sabin, in behalf of the graduates, acknowledged and accepted the invitation extended by President Rafferty and expressed the gratitude of the class to the old grads for the warm reception given them.

The officers elected at the conclusion of the reunion follow: President, Elenor C. Carpenter; Francis H. Murphy, first vice president; Mrs. Ruth Nelson, second vice president; Miss Abbie H. Keith, third vice president; G. Stanley Shaw, fourth vice president; J. Ellis Pritchard, fifth vice president; John Stuart Sabin, sixth vice president; Miss Edith Dingwall, secretary; Miss Ethel Dingwall, assistant secretary, and Miss Marion Warren, treasurer. Mrs. Dorcas Beebe, chairman; Kenneth C. Sharpe and Lucy Farrowa, were appointed to the entertainment committee. The speakers committee consists of Iver S. Nelson, chairman; Miss Harriet Brown and Miss Florence Devine. Mrs. Andrew V. Frost, Miss Edith Bowne and Miss Corrine Wilson comprise the banquet committee.

Deafening claps of thunder and brilliant flashes of lightning with a heavy downpour of rain featured an electrical storm which hit this city early this afternoon. At a late hour there were no reports of the storm having caused damage in this city. The storm apparently broke at some point north of the city for its effects here were not as great as those felt in surrounding communities. Electric light service was momentarily disrupted when a bolt struck the lines and ground. Service was restored after a brief interval. Telephone authorities reported no damage to their lines.

Oliver Gobin, a milk dealer in North Grosvenordale, who is under arrest on a charge of assault alleged to have been made upon Joseph Bruneau, another milk man in North Grosvenordale, in a statement to The Bulletin today contends that he acted in defense of himself and his property when he struck Bruneau. Gobin stated that while he was delivering milk to a customer he inquired for his bottles which were stamped with his name and seal. The consumer informed him that his competitor was in possession of the containers. Gobin further stated that he accosted Bruneau and asked for his property. Bruneau denied having them, Gobin said, and becoming indignant at the intimation of his competitor, Bruneau leaped off his vehicle in an attempt to strike Gobin. When asked if he submitted, Gobin said that he warded off the blow intended for his nose and retaliated by delivering a similar one, which resulted in the victim swearing out a warrant and causing Gobin's arrest. Gobin maintains his actions were in self-defense and asks that facts in the case be depicted in the press exactly as they occurred.

One of the largest of gasoline-electrically driven passenger coaches in the service of the New Haven railroad passed over the midland division today. The mobile coach operating without the aid of a locomotive attracted much attention as it stood in the yards. It is longer than the ordinary day coach of which passenger trains are made up, although its general lines are the same. In the fore cabin is the power plant. A gasoline engine operating a generator develops the electric power sufficient to run the vehicle. The "gas-buggy" as it is termed by railroad men, is equipped with all the comfort and conveniences of the train coach. Assistant Superintendent William E. Sault said this morning that the gasoline cars are not intended for service on this division, but are effectively supplanting the passenger trains on the short branch lines. In this respect they attain the peak of efficient and economic measures which are constantly being sought by the railroad.

PUTNAM HIGH GRADUATES CLASS OF FORTY-EIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 19.—The fifty-third page was inserted in the History of Putnam High School tonight, when 48 members of the class of 1930 were presented with diplomas at the 53rd annual graduation exercises which were held at the Bradley theatre. The table decorations were pink and white peonies. Arrangements were made by the alumni social committee of which Eugene Bellevance was chairman. A number of local Pomona grangers attended the meeting at Lebanon on Thursday.

Pierre Sigal, of Paris, lays claim to the world's champion for speed and duration in checkers. At one sitting of two hours twenty minutes, at Levallois-Peret, M. Sigal played twenty-eight opponents simultaneously, winning twenty-three matches, tying three and losing two. He moves from one board to another, changing counters without a second's hesitation.

MARKET MORE CHEERFUL AS STOCKS RECOVERED LOSSES OF PREVIOUS DAY

NEW YORK, June 19—(AP)—Trading in securities and commodities assumed a more cheerful aspect today as the markets rebounded from Wednesday's gloomy depths. Stocks, as measures by the indices, more than recovered the loss of yesterday, while wheat, cotton and corn were much firmer. Bonds, aided by another reduction in time money, made some progress.

So far as stocks were concerned, the improvement seemed to be largely technical, a normal reaction from the recent strenuous selling which had been severe enough to intimidate holders of the short position and to encourage support from influential quarters. Most observers preferred to withhold judgment on the market until it could be learned how much of the stock bought on the rally would be held and how the list would react to profit-taking. Commission house opinion was divided as to whether the bottom of the decline had been reached and continued to advise in and out traders to be cautious.

The New York Federal Reserve bank's reduction in the rediscount rate to 2 1-2 per cent, the lowest point in the history of the system, was a surprise. The local bank has been more or less acting with the Bank of England in the matter of rate cuts, but today's step was taken without a corresponding move in London.

In recent months, with money available in almost unlimited supply on an exceedingly favorable basis, the financial community has not been so interested in the rediscount figure, except insofar as it is a barometer of the general situation. The reduction was viewed as still another step in the reserve's easy money policy, and also as evidence of the extreme lull in the money markets, the result of commercial depression.

Coincident with the announcement of the downward revision came a further concession in banker's acceptance rates, amounting to 1-8 of one per cent on all maturities to the lowest levels in six years.

Short maturity of time money was pared 1-4 of 1 per cent, with 60 to 90 day loans quoted at 2 3-4 per cent flat, also the lowest in some time.

Brokers loans were anybody's guess in this spectacular week. The decline of $211,000,000, the most extensive this year was more than double the drop of the previous week and carried the total down to $3,787,000,000 compared with $5,420,000,000 a year ago. The largest decrease was in the loans for out of town banks, which were off $147,000,000, while those for the account of others shrank $115,000,000. New York city member bank loans, however rose $51,000,000.

The weekly federal reserve statement showed a decline of $15,000,000 in open market purchases of bills, a gain of about $19,000,000 in holdings of United States government securities, but almost no change in the total of bills and securities. Discounts were off nominally, while federal reserve note circulation was further contracted.

Stocks opened higher and with only brief interruptions occasioned by minor profit taking the advance was sustained throughout the day and closing prices were virtually at the top. Pivotal shares offered strong leadership, finishing 2 to 7 points net higher. The largest gain of the day was in Allied Chemical, up 13 1-2, but this stock was closely followed by such speculative favorites as Auburn Auto, Case, Vanadium and Worthington Pump, in which the advances ranged from 11 to 13.

Copper shares were quick to respond to a firming of the domestic price on the red metal to 12 cents a pound, based on the lively inquiry stimulated by yesterday's cut. Gains in this group of stocks ran from a fraction to 6 points.

Miscellaneous shares improving 4 to 6 points net included Radio, Johns-Manville, Union Carbide, Standard Oil of New Jersey, American Water Works, Consolidated Gas, Atchison, Northern Pacific, New York Central, Standard Gas and Electric, Public Service of New Jersey, United Aircraft, American Can, Coca Cola, Calumet and Arizona, Western Union and American Power and Light. American Telephone, Stone and Webster American Tobacco, Westinghouse Electric, Electric Power and Light and Chesapeake and Ohio moved up 3. U. S. Steel closed 2 5-8 higher, Borden 3 3-8 and American Tobacco B 10. International Telephone rallied nearly 4.

Wheat closed unchanged to an eighth of a cent lower, or about midway between the day's extremes. Corn rose 3-8 to 5-8 but was likewise off from the highs. Advances in cotton were from 22 to 30 points, sugar futures were up a shade.

Foreign exchanges were irregular, and marked by an extensive recovery in the Spanish peseta.

GIBBS TOPS ACADEMY HITTERS FOR SEASON

Chubby Gibbs, the popular Academy captain and shortstop the past season, just about monopolized all of the individual honors on the Wildcat nine, according to the final averages just announced.

In the first place, Gibbs led the team in batting and also had one of the best marks in the history of the school when he connected for 37 hits in 81 trips to the plate, for a mark of .457. This eclipses the best mark of Lloyd Jarvis, the 1928 leader, who had .432 and last year Buck LaCroix had .452. Gibbs also had the most hits, 37; the most total bases, 54; led in runs batted in with 28; three-base hits with two, sacrifice hits with three, and stolen bases with 15. He was tied for the leadership in making doubles with Art Breen, each having seven, and Hack Pepin made him share the home run crown with two belts. Alec Arico scored the most runs, 31, and Gibbs was second with 27, and Fontaine third with 18.

Team Mark .291

Only three regulars of this year's team batted over .300 and the team average naturally slumped somewhat from recent years. It was .291. Those besides Gibbs to hit in the select circle were Art Breen, third baseman, with .323, and Bud Fontaine, catcher, with .317, the latter climbing over .300 with three hits in four trips in the closing Naugatuck game.

The fourth leading hitter was Alec Arico, with .296, and Butsy Weisgraber was fifth with .262. Eighteen players broke into the averages this year and of this number five were over the .300 mark.

Won 15, Lost 5

While the season cannot be classified as a success, because the team lost the two Bulkeley games and failed to retain its league championship which it had held for five years, still it was not the dismal failure that many have pictured. Bright lights in the campaign were victories over Warren Harding, Weaver of Hartford, Chapman Tech, Naugatuck, Deep River and Gilbert high of Winsted. The team won 15 games and lost five, finishing in a tie for second in the league race. The defeats were at the hands of Bulkeley (twice), Westerly, Hillhouse and New Britain. Bulkeley is the only team to win two games in a season from the locals since 1925 and this is also the first year since that time that N. F. A. has lost more than three games.

Six regulars who played in the final game of the year were lost by graduation, but there are Alec Arico, Les Crowell, Boots Greene, Cliff Hamill, Speed Reardon, Jerry Fitzgerald, Bob Geer, Johnnie Lyons, Pop Richards, Chuck Lavarge, Johnnie Caron as a nucleus for 1931.

PETERSON GETS VERDICT OVER BARRIE IN FAST BOUT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., June 19.—Ero Peterson of Worcester took a close verdict from Joe Barrie of New York in the eight round main bout of the Kacey boxing show here this evening. Peterson and Barrie were well matched and fought a practically even bout for the entire eight rounds with Peterson having not more than a point the better of the bout.

In the semi-final Joe Russo of Westerly battered out a six round verdict over Artie Brusso of Worcester.

The only knockout on the card came in the thirg round of a six rounder when Young Lavigne of New London, hooked one to the jaw of Johnny Dixon of Worcester. Lavigne hit with such terrific force that Dixon's jaw was fractured.

Young Rochette and Young Lizzio of Westerly slammed each other all over the ring for four rounds with Rochette getting the verdict. Julio Rossi of Westerly beat his fellow townsman, Billy Euell in six hectic rounds.

HENLEY-ON-THE-THAMES, Eng., June 19.—(AP)—The Kent school crew is making excellent progress in its training for the Thames cup regatta.

The boys have been busy with their examinations, which were held in a town hall, but this has not interfered with their schedule of two outings daily on the river.

Rev. F. H. Hill, headmaster and coach, today said he felt thoroughly satisfied with the crew's progress.

Entry of the 150-pound Princeton crew today was confirmed and the crew is expected to arrive at Henley next Tuesday.

SEES GREAT RUIN BY UGLY BUILDINGS

Cities must act to check the ruin of fine neighborhoods by the intrusion of ugly buildings Charles H. Cheney of Los Angeles, chairman of the committee on city and regional planning of the American Institute of Architects, declares.

"So real is the ruin," says Mr. Cheney, "that over $3,000,000,000 worth of last year's new building was of this blighting character.

"Property values are destroyed, cherished homes abandoned, and neighborhoods ruined by the erection of one or more off-color, ugly or inappropriately designed buildings. Every investor, every bank and lender of money, every honest home builder in our cities has generally been at the mercy of the careless, ignorant or vicious builder operating on the vacant lot next door. Every vacant lot in an unprotected neighborhood today carries a threat of ruin to its neighbors.

"This is the greatest economic loss of our time, and one that can and will be remedied as soon as investors, home owners and the public generally learn how to protect themselves. Congress has pointed the way in the Shipstead bill by establishing architectural control in Washington under the police power. In another decade is is predicted that some form of municipal control over the design of private buildings will be as common as zoning regulations now are. More than 500 cities have established zoning in the last ten years.

"Architectural control of this kind is not new. Santa Barbara, California, in 1925 or 1926 required that all plans for private buildings be passed on by a competent architectural board of review, much as the fine arts for Washington. During that time more than 2,000 buildings of the best old California style were erected, although politics intervened to do away with the board and the city has since been disfigured by a large amount of ugly, off-color and bad architecture.

"For fifty years high class real estate sub-divisions have been exercising careful architectural control, with marked success and increasing property values, by means of building restrictions established by private agreement in the deeds.

A great national advance to sounder city building through the passage of the Shipstead bill was seen by Mr. Cheney. This measure gives the fine arts commission legal veto, with police power, over the design and color of all private buildings fronting Pennsylvania avenue, Lafayette square and certain other major government projects in the city of Washington.

COMPARATIVE COSTS OF INTERIOR FINISH

Some interesting figures on the comparative costs for different types of interior finishes for houses are given in the July issue of The American Home. A seven-room house was designed for the magazine, which contractors' esctimates showed would cost $17,000 to build in stucco in the New York area. In this base price of $17,000 the cost of metal lath was included. However, if wood lath had been used there would have been a saving of $164. If insulating board had been used there would have been a saving of $82 and with plaster board $123. These figures are based on the assumption that three coats of plaster are applied to each of the above-named bases.

KAPLAN WINS DECISION OVER TOMMY CROWLEY

WATERBURY, June 19—(AP)—Louis (Kid) Kaplan of Hartford outpointed Tommy Crowley of Pittsburgh, Pa., in the ten round feature bout of the Waterbury A. C. card at Mulligan's stadium here tonight.

PROMOTERS REPORTED TO BE SHADOWING STRIBLING

CHICAGO, June 19—(AP)—Stadium and state boxing commission officials were accused of doing a Sherlock Holmes shadowing act today as the puzzling 10 round heavyweight match between Otto Von Porat, the Norwegian bone crusher, and W. L. Young Stribling of Macon, Ga., tomorrow night neared a showdown.

Worried that Stribling, who claims his left hand was sprained and in no condition for the fight, may decide to "run out", one or more of the interested officials appeared to check his every movement, causing fans and sport writers to think they were shadowing him. Sidney Strotz, president of the stadium which is promoting the match, and Commissioner Fred Gardner spent their fourth afternoon watching the Macon boy and Von Porat work out.

Stribling and his father-manager laughted at reports they planned to "run out" on the fight, however. They appeared before the commission's physician today for another examination of the hand and seemed satisfied when they were advised again that nothing was wrong with the fighting implement.

"My son will be there and he'll give Von Porat a licking he'll remember," said Pa Stribling.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Grange Dance

Tonight, Norwich grange is holding the last dance of the season of their popular Friday night dances. The hall is cool and comfortable, the music good. Those who wish a perfect ending to Boat Race day will wend their way this evening to the Grange hall, 172 W. Town street.

Broadway Theatre

It is seldom that the public hero-worship of convicted murderers is justified, but in "Shadow of the Law," in which William Powell is appearing today for the last times at the cool Broadway, the sympathies of the audience for once are with the underdog, in this case the immaculate Powell, who, embroiled in fisticuffs over a woman, strikes one blow which inadvertently takes a human life, and for which the law demands the balance of his own as forfeit. A thrilling jail break, rehabilitation of the escaped convict, his search for the woman who can clear his name "at a price," and the final desperate ruse by which he confounds the Bloodhounds of the Law, make up a picture packed with thrills, and of an entirely new order, fresh and unspoiled by hackneyed usage. Tomorrow a totally different type of picture will liven things up at the Broadway when "The Cuckoos," in the persons of Bob Woolsey and Bert Wheeler of Rio Rita fame make their next here for a few days. Hilarity will reign supreme, for the show is advertised as the goofiest melange of mirth and music that has ever tickled the talking screen into hysterics. Roaring comedy of the slapsticks variety, catchy music, gorgeous girlies, wonderful technicolor, and a cast of over 1,000, including besides the "Cuckoos" themselves, Dorothy Lee, also of Rio Rita fame and Jobyna Howland, the six-foot flapper, insures a show that literally is for laughing purposes only and a guaranteed cure for the blues. On the surrounding bill are specially booked short featurettes of Broadway quality, which means the best possible to date, and completing an ideal program for hot weather entertainment.

Palace Theatre

Marie Dressler and Polly Moran, popular comediennes, are coming to town tomorrow to make the whole place laugh over their mishaps in the market and their newest picture, "Caught Short" which outdoes anything that the famous pair have done. They are supported by a fine cast among whom some of the stars are: Anita Page, Charles Morton, T. Roy Barnes, Gwen Lee and Herbert Prior.
In "Caught Short," Marie and Polly are seen as competing landladies with boarding houses across the street from each other. Both dabble in the market and both enjoy a great soar in profits. But they also fall together at the crash. There is a love story and the participants of this are Anita Page and Charles Morton.
The settings are a change from the modernist interiors which has been the general rule with all the recent pictures. The scenes have been made in the Washington Square village section in New York and the boarding house atmosphere is carried out in further detail by scenes laid in tenements, meat markets, old-clothes emporiums and pawn shops. It is only after they have come "into their own" with the stock market dabblings that the action is set in the luxurious hotels of Atlantic City.
Today the double-feature bill combining "Song of The Flame," which stars Bernice Claire and Alexander Gray and "Personality" a comedy based on the adventuyes of Lil and Sandy, Liberty magazine cover characters, will be shown for the last times. This double-feature is one of the best ever presented in Norwich and both of the pictures are being used alone in first run theatres.

Breed Theatre

"White Cargo," which is now playing at the Breed theatre is the all-talking picture version of the celebrated play of the same name. Contrary to the general belief, this vivid drama was never made as a silent picture. The producers of the film at one time contemplated making a silent version but held it up until talking pictures were developed to the point where they could do this story justice.
"White Cargo," as a talking picture made as much of a stir on Broadway as did the stage play when Earl Carrol first presented it. The film played for many weeks at the George M. Cohan theatre to crowded houses night after night, at an admission price of $2.00. Its showing here, however, will be at regular prices.
The official motion pictures of the Sharkey-Schmeling heavyweight championship contest, held at Yankee stadium, June 12, which are now showing at the Breed will be held over until Sunday night.

FACE BRICK ADAPTED TO ALL COLONIAL STYLES

Colonial brick widely popular in buildings of a purely Colonial type, are in reality, a face brick adaptation of the early American type of common brick. These are usually of a red color range with moderate variations, and furnished principally in a smooth or sanded surface.
When one builds the home he or she has so diligently saved for, and spent so much time in planning, it must be something to be proud of, not only when new, but for a lifetime. To attain this, one must have a permanent material and no building material yet developed has surpassed or even equalled brick in this respect. Wherever you go you will see brick homes as beautiful today as when they were built, whether five years ago, or a hundred years ago, and each with its own air of dignity, substance and character, expressing the pride of the owner in his achievement.

YALE-HARVARD BOAT RACE CROWDS ARRIVE AT NEW LONDON

NEW LONDON, June 19.—Tomorrow the annual races between Yale and Harvard on the Thames river, the season's collegiate classic in aquatic events, will be rowed and, as usual, another record breaking crowd will be here to view the four-mile struggle from observation trains and yachts. Ahead the crowd, which it is estimated will be in excess of 75,000 is beginning to arrive despite the fact that the race will not be rowed until 7 o'clock in the evening. The lower harbor is rapidly filling up with small yachts and among the fleet of pleasure craft already at anchor are 13 sloops that reached port this afternoon from Rye, N. Y. Among the larger type of yachts that is conspicuous in port is the steam yacht Corsair, owned by J. Pierpont Morgan. The Corsair entered the harbor this morning and is at anchor off the municipal pier. Mr. Morgan arrived here this afternoon from New York and four railroad police officers, accompanied the financier to the municipal pier where an awaiting launch conveyed Mr. Morgan to his yacht.

The New Haven railroad, as well as the Central Vermont railroad, has perfected every possible arrangement for handling the big crowd, particularly the New Haven road, for its observation train will consist of four more cars than in the past. The cars will also seat an additional number of spectators for the new cars will seat 106 passengers as against 98 a year ago. In order to "spot" the cars prior to the race, two tracks in the depot yard, were added to, each track accommodating one more car than heretofore.

This afternoon the railroad caused all tracks throughout the yard to be treated to a surface of sand, which will lay the dust in the event that a strong wind prevails.

Two cases of intoxication await resentation in the police court tomorrow. One man was arrested on the municipal pier by Automobile Patrol Officer Augustus Ray and the other was arrested on Potter street, by Patrolman Frank Philopena.

Frank McGowan, 916 Bank street, was arrested this afternoon, charged with parking overtime on State street. He furnished a bond of $3 for his presentation in the police court tomorrow.

Mrs. Mary Kaika, 97 Union street, today made complaint to the police that during last night a spare tire was stolen from her car.

Marty Russell, proprietor of a resort on Cross street, this morning went to police headquarters that he might be quizzed relative to the shooting of Tony Baldi, former New London man, who was killed by racketeers in Providence last Monday night. The Providence police contended that one of the suspected slayers of Baldi, Louis Tratano, who is under arrest, was bound for New London when he was arrested and that his destination was the Cross street house. Russell could not give much information, other than knowing Baldi, but not Tratano. Russell was at Ocean Beach the night of the shooting. The following day, when his name was connected with the murder, he motored to Providence and went to police headquarters there, where he was interrogated at considerable length by Inspector McGuire. Russell will remain in New London where he can be obtained in the event that he is wanted for further questioning.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

NEW BAIT IS EFFECTIVE FOR JAPANESE BEETLE TRAPS

Japanese-beetle trappers will have better luck this summer if they will make a slight change in the bait used in their traps by increasing the quantities of the attractive agents, geraniol and eugenol, says the United States department of agriculture.

Two years of experimental work at the Japanese-beetle laboratory at Moorestown, N. J., has shown that traps containing the improved bait captured more than two and one-half times as many beetles as did the traps in which the old bait was used. Increasing the quantities of geraniol and eugenol will make the bait slightly more expensive, the department says, but the increased catch will mor than offset this cost.

The formula for the bait recommended by the department is as follows: 4 teaspoonfuls of geraniol, one-half teaspoonful of eugenol, 1½ cups of bran, 1 tablespoonful of water, 2½ tablespoonfuls of molasses, and 1½ teaspoonfuls of glycerine. This makes about one-third of a pound enough to bait one of the large cylindrical traps.

Certain types of traps have small bait containers which hold not more than an ounce of bait. Quantities of the attractive agents used in such traps are necessarily very small, and the department recommends for such traps the use of as much geraniol and eugenol to 25 grams of the plain bait as is recommended for the larger quantity.

CLOSE GRAZING KEEPS GRASS YOUNG AND RICH

Since young grass, consisting largely of leaves and comparatively little stalk, is richer in proteins and soluble carbohydrates and is more readily digestible than older grass in which more stalks have developed, a pasture should be grazed sufficiently close to keep young leaves growing and prevent development of too much stalk, the United States department of agriculture says.

British investigations show that complete grazing once in three weeks during a good growing season is sufficient to maintain a high nutritive content in the pasture.

The relatively high protein content of leaves and the high nutritive value of proteins indicate that the supplement needed for young and closely grazed pastures is a relatively high carbohydrate feed, such as corn.

In seasons of heavy rainfall, when grass grows rapidly, pastures should be grazed more closely than in dry periods, when grass grows slowly, the department says.

CARE OF GROWING POULTRY

While every poultryman would like to have his young stock grow as rapidly as possible, we frequently see chicks outgrowing their houses and equipment before the very eyes of the owner. Houses which provide ample room during the first few weeks may be crowded to the extreme when the chicks get older. Feed hoppers, water dishes, and other equipment are satisfactory for only a few weeks at best, and have to be replaced with larger containers to allow for the rapid growth of the chicks.

Yards which are satisfactory for a few days become a source of dangerous infection if not cleaned or enlarged or, better still, replaced by free range. Failure to take care of these details means crowding and limited food consumption, which causes slow growth, lack of feathering, feather-picking, cannibalism, coccidiosis, colds, and many other ills which cannot be easily corrected once they become established.—R. E. Jones.

DUSTY ATTIC MAY BECOME CHILD'S COSY PLAY ROOM

Recently, on a rainy day, a housewife looked for her two young children, having heard nothing of them for an hour or two. Finally she located them in a dusty and crowded attic. Immediately an idea clicked and that night when her husband returned from business she explained her plan of fixing up the attic into a playroom. The junk which had been accumulating there for years was disposed of and the roof rafters were covered with an insulating board.

The expense of the undertaking was not great, and it soon proved itself an economy for the insulating quality of the board used stopped escaping heat which, of course, had its effect on the coal bill. Not only was heat conserved but the sleeping rooms on the second floor were much cooler during the hot summer nights.

There are many attics that can be made over or modernized and the space turned over to the children for a playroom where their hardest hopping and whooping games will have no effect on the nerves of the rest of the family. One board used for this purpose is made of sugar cane fibers and is available in large, light sheets making it easy to handle and apply. Its natural color is a golden tan and if it is desired it may be decorated with the symbolic cutouts of childhood pastimes.

COLOR IN FLOORS EASILY ACQUIRED

Did you know that rooms have complexions as noticeable as those of their occupants? Perhaps you never thought of the "complexion" of a room, but you probably have spoken many times of the "impression" you get on entering a strange home.

If the layout and furnishings of a room are its "features," its color and texture are its complexion. The impression you receive on entering the room is probably determined more by its complexion than by its features.

Whether or not we are conscious of color, it produces a profound effect upon us. We see that a room is cheerful or dull, bright or depressing, and the chief thing that makes it inviting, monotonous, or distressing is its color.

Have you ever been in a home in which color was used unwisely, so that the decorative scheme disjointed? Occasionally rooms just need something to tie the decorative elements together. The walls and draperies may be attractive, and everything in harmony, and yet each spot of color seems unrelated to the rest.

In such rooms a colorful floor is usually needed to furnish a foundation for the decorative plan of the room. If instead of a drab floor the room had a floor of pleasing color with which the other colors of the room could blend, the effect would be far more pleasing.

Color in floors, once ago hard to obtain, is now easily acquired through the use of modern linoleum. This comfortable, long-wearing material comes in a wide range of colors and designs, so that it is possible to use it with practically any decorative elements. The result is not only charming in itself, but often the colored floor brings a harmony and balance which gives to visitors the impression you want them to receive.

No color can be used without its having some kind of an effect on the rest of the room. When color in the floor is made the foundation for all other colors, perfect harmony is more apt to result, and the room will acquire a "complexion" of which you can be proud.

TILE OF VARIOUS DESIGNS ADD BEAUTY TO GARDENS

Assuming that plans have been completed for the actual planting of the garden it is now time to think of the furniture and accessories that quite naturally are a part of the complete garden. For students of astrology the tricklest thing that has come to light in a long time is the use of zodiac tile. This is a faience tile, each unit representing a zodiac period. When these are laid in a circle around an astrolabe or a sundial they give to the garden a unique touch of individuality.

Small lily or fish pools in the garden are pleasant and attractive and offer further use for colorful tile both for the base and sides or, as a border. The walk approaching and around such a pool may be tiled. Terraces may be tile floored and long flower boxes can be tile faced. The blank staring faces of garden, garage and house walls may be spotted and considerably enlivened with tile.

Baptist Church Notes

Arrangements have been made for two boys of the Third Baptist church school to go to Camp Rainbow at Granby, Conn., for ten days. They will start Monday, June 23, being driven by auto by the pastor and accompanied by Dr. Pitt's son of Central Baptist church.

Arrangements are being made for a drama to be given at the Third Baptist church in the near future by the young people, coached by W. A. Lund. The drama is entitled "Promoted."

On Sunday evening at the Third Baptist church the pastor, Dr. William James Sly, will deliver an illustrated lecture on "A Visit to the Holy Land," showing a number of pictures that he took himself on two trips there within the past few years. He will also wear a beautiful robe that he was presented with while there and exhibit a number of interesting objects from the Land of the Master. All are cordially invited to attend this "happy hour" service.

NORWICH TOWN

In the chapel of the First Congregational church Wednesday afternoon and evening, a most successful sale and supper was conducted under the auspices of Home chapter of the King's Daughters, Mrs. William E. Manning leader. From five o'clock on, under the management of Mrs. David M. Dean, who was in general charge, a tempting supper of meat loaf, salad, rolls, strawberry shortcake and coffee was served. Ice cream was on sale throughout the supper and evening. On the committee with Mrs. Dean was Mrs. George Turner, Mrs. James Austin, Mrs. Neville Blicq and Mrs. Herbert Booth, with Mrs. Aubrey Jarvis and Mrs. Edwin Latthrop, assisting as aids to the committee.

The waitresses were: Mrs. Edmund Prentice, Mrs. Roswell J Brown, Mrs. Frederick Armstrong, Mrs. James Austin, Mrs. Arthur Boynton, Mrs. John Olsen, Mrs. Arthur Fulton and Mrs. Lizzie Ortman.

Mrs. Charles Cross and Mrs. Charles Burke dispensed candy and Mrs. Gertrude Tootill and Mrs. Harry Bjurstrom were in charge of the food table, while the domestic and fancy articles were disposed of by Mrs. Edward Briggs and Miss Maria Briggs. The articles on the several tables met with ready sales by the large number of patrons. Mrs. Herbert R. Branche, treasurer of Home chapter, was cashier during the sale and supper which netted a good sum for the treasury of Home chapter.

Several members of the sewing circle of the Woman's Relief corps met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. David M. Dean of Norwich Town. At noon the hostess served luncheon on the spacious porch.

The five children of school age of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Browning of Plain Hill road are exceptionally proud of their record at school during 1929-1930. The two girls and three boys in the order of their ages, Betty E., John L. Jr., Charles C., Natalie B., and Arthur P. Browning, the last named in the kindergarten, have neither been absent, late nor excused during the entire year. They live a mile or more from the school and have traveled this distance through all kinds of weather.

Special Methodist Services

Only two Sunday evening services will be held at the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church before the summer schedule begins. These two remaining services will be of special interest to all.

Next Sunday evening Miss Gertrude Avery, the young missionary who has recently returned from spending five and a half years in India, will give an address. The service begins at 7:30 and is open to the public to hear this gifted young woman tell of the life and conditions in India.

Sunday evening, June 29th, at 7 o'clock, the annual Children's day concert of the church school will be held.

Beginning the first of July the evening services of the church will be discontinued until the third Sunday evening in September.

Wedding Saturday Afternoon

Norwich Town is especially interested in the wedding on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock of Miss Grace Mildred Wheeler and Robert Singleton Scott, Jr. The marriage is to take place in the First Congregational church and as Miss Wheeler and Mr. Stott have long been members of the church, the congregation and friends have been invited, although no formal announcement has been made.

FALSE ALARM FROM BOX IN FALLS SECTION

At 7:35 o'clock Thursday evening a false alarm was rung in from Box 37, Williams and Lafayette street, calling out several pieces of apparatus with Chief Henry R. Taft and Deputy Chief Dennis J. Brennan. Officials of the department, finding that there was no fire upon arrival at the box, conducted an investigation in an effort to ascertain the guilty party. Although there are many residences in the section no one saw the box pulled, it was learned. It is the opinion of the officials that someone pulled the box and made a hasty retreat through Yantic cemetery.

Fire officials stated Thursday evening that if the person responsible for sending in the false alarm is apprehended he will be arrested and prosecuted to the full extent of the law, which in this case calls for a fine of $50 and costs and a jail sentence of six months.

Colonial Club Pinochle Prizes

There were ten table in play at the pinochle party conducted Thursday evening by the Colonial club and the winners of prizes were Mrs. Harris, 7900, Mrs. Brown 7580, Mrs. Richards 7410, J. Clifford 7880, D. Taylor 7270, C. Weidman 7020.

TWO BROTHERS LOSE THEIR LIVES IN SHETUCKET RIVER AT OCCUM

The bodies of Leo Peltier, 22, and his brother, Napoleon, 10, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Peltier, who were drowned shortly before 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon in the Shetucket river in the rear of their house on the Occum flats, were later recovered by a party of rescuers who had been summoned. The older brother was taken from the water first, an hour after the accident, by Herbert Richards and Fred Filligar, both of Occum, and the 10-year-old boy about an hour later. He was brought ashore by Emil Tellier. Among others who tried to recover the bodies was Victor Davis of Occum, whose brother met a similar fate in that river several years ago.

The bodies were located about 25 feet from shore in 15 feet of water. Leo being found at the spot where he went down, and his brother, 25 feet down the river, having been carried there by the current in his frantic efforts to save himself, although he was unable to swim. About ten feet from the bank the river takes a sudden drop from about six feet to 15 feet in depth.

These were the first drownings to occur in this section this season and came about when the older brother was swimming with Napoleon on his back, after he swam across the river alone, which is about a distance of 200 feet. According to Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve, who was called with Coroner Edward G. McKay, Leo suffered a heart attack, death being caused from that, while Napoleon's death was due to accidental drowning. Leo did not come to the surface after going down, but his brother did.

Mrs. Michael Riley, who was in the water with the drowned boys, several women and small children, tried to effect a rescue of the younger boy. A boat, which was moored to a tree near the spot of the double drowning, was untied by Mrs. Riley and walking out as far as she could, she attempted to push the craft within reaching distance of Napoleon as he came to the surface. When these efforts proved futile after the boy had gone down for the last time, an alarm for help was spread and Mrs. Riley had the Norwich fire department called. None of those with the Peltier brothers at the time of the accident was able to swim.

Receiving the call for help at the fire department headquarters at 2:55 o'clock Chief Henry R. Taft with William Burns hurriedly went to Occum with the inhalator. Artifical respiration was used on the older brother who was taken from the water first, but to no avail. After Medical Examiner Gildersleeve pronounced the brothers dead the bodies were taken in charge by Undertaker George Grant of Taftville.

Besides their parents the two brothers are survived by seven brothers and sisters.

CHIEF TAFT'S WARNING FOR FOURTH OF JULY

With the Fourth of July only a few days away, Fire Chief Henry R. Taft, has issued an appeal for a safe and sane mode of Independence day celebration, asking parents to safeguard the children from injury and to save life and property from the ravages of fire which the use of fireworks and firecrackers entails each year.

Two of the most dangerous days of all the year are Fourth of July and Christmas. The fire hazard on both of these days is increased almost a hundred per cent.

By cautioning our children and ourselves against the dangers to which human life and property are exposed on the Fourth and by doing all we can to remove the hazards, and by substituting a noisy and dangerous celebration with more intelligent and beneficial diversion, we are upholding the ideal of "safe and sane."

Clean your premises of inflammable litter and rubbish of all kinds and keep a garden hose ready for instant use. Learn where the nearest firebox is located and in case of fire promptly turn in an alarm.

Every parent, teacher and business man and woman in Norwich should cooperate in doing his or her part to prevent accidents as well as remove the causes of loss of life and damage to property due to fire, by turning their attention from fireworks, firecrackers and other explosives to the recreation of sports, games, excursions, picnics, fishing trips and boating or to observances such as parades and other appropriate Independence day exercises which are more beneficial and more enjoyable in the end, because there are no regrets in the end.

SUFFERS BRAIN CONCUSSION WHEN HIT BY AUTO

James Loomis, 12, son of Harry P. Loomis of No. 3 Summit street, was quite seriously injured about 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening, when he was struck by an automobile operated by Fred W. Hamann of No. 114 Cedar street on the West Main street bridge. It is said that the child was hit and knocked down when he ran directly into the front end of the machine. The Loomis boy was taken to the W. W. Backus hospital in a machine by Officer Peter Vuono and Abe Arenberg.

At the hospital it was found that the boy was suffering from a slight concussion of the brain and minor abrasions of the face and head, but, according to hospital authorities, his injuries were not thought to be serious. Up to 11 o'clock Thursday evening he had not regained complete consciousness, being in a semi-conscious condition periodically. For almost two hours after the accident he had remained in an unconscious state.

Haman, who is also the owner of the machine, was not arrested, as it was learned that the accident could not have been avoided, according to testimony of witnesses. Just before the boy was bowled over he narrowly escaped being hit by a machine bearing a Florida registration.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS HAVE SAIL IN FOG

About 350 Christian Endeavorers and their guests attended the annual moonlight sail of the Norwich C. E. union held Thursday evening on Nelseco II through Long Island sound and return. From the time the boat left here at 6:30 until it returned at 11:30 o'clock the trip was thoroughly enjoyed. Although no set programme had been arranged the gathering made merry with banjo and harmonica selections and community singing. Heavy fog prevailed throughout the sail.

Those in charge of the arrangements comprised Harold Muttart, chairman, Carl Holdredge, Robert Burke, Louis Aldrich and Donald Zabriskie.

NEPONSET WILL FLY OVER THE BOAT RACE

The privately owned blimp Neponset that left its berth at the Norwich fairgrounds, East Great Plain, at 6 o'clock Thursday evening, for the Niantic state camp ground, will be among the more than 50 aircraft which are expected to be on hand for the Yale-Harvard boat races today (Friday) on the Thames river. The Neponset has been chartered by a private party to view the several events in the morning and afternoon.

According to special regulations for the air during the races, which have been created to avoid past experiences, the pilots of private and commercial airplanes will be required to fly above the 2,000 foot level, while special permits will be given to photographers to fly at 1,000 feet. The blimp will be allowed to stay at a 700 foot level.

The Neponset before going to the field at Niantic Thursday evening circled over the city of New London. It was originally planned to use the airport at Groton, but Capt. Harry Generous, deputy commissioner of the state department of aeronautics, directed that the ship stay at the Niantic field. This was done as a means of reducing the danger of any accidents to a minimum, due to the large number of airplanes which are expected at the Groton airport.

The blimp was moved to the fairgrounds Wednesday evening, it is said, after it had nearly gotten away from the ground crew of 12 men Tuesday evening, due to the strong winds prevailing on the well elevated Gager farm on Mohegan hill, where it was first moored.

It made a number of trips over the city with passengers on Thursday and among those to take a flight was Secretary John Richardson of the chamber of commerce who declared that the sight of Norwich obtained from the air fully justified all that has been said of the beauties of the Rose of New England.

Secretary Richardson has put in a bid to have the Neponset return to Norwich in the fall, as it is felt many people would be interested to have it visit Norwich again.

MAGAZINE AGENTS LEFT CAR PARKED OVERTIME

A Ford touring car, R. I., Reg. 100-592, which had been let parked on Williams street since 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon, was taken in charge by the police department at 8 o'clock that evening and towed to police headquarters. Late in the evening a young man called at the station and claimed ownership of the machine. It was learned from him that he and two other young men from Woonsocket, R. I., had left it there early in the afternoon, while they went about the streets seeking subscriptions to a magazine.

PICNIC AT PARK BY LOYAL CIRCLE, K. D.

The committee in charge comprised Mrs. Julian Parker, chairman, Mrs. John H. Sherman, Mrs. N. Eugene Smith, and Mrs. Arthur M. Thompson.

With the president, Miss Helen Breault, presiding, the weekly meeting of the members of St. Veronica's society was held Wednesday evening at the society's rooms on Providence street.

At a recent meeting of the teachers and older scholars of the Taftville Congregational church school, plans were made for the annual picnic, which will be held this year on July 15th. Allan Boyle was named chairman of the transportation committee, with instructions to obtain two special cars to convey the entire school with their parents to Ocean Beach, where the outing has been held for many years. All scholars are to be presented with free tickets. Richard M. Oat was appointed to have charge of printing the tickets, and Rev. William Penner is to take care of their distribution. Mr. Oat, superintendent of the school, presided at the meeting.

Rundown?

MAYBE IT'S WORMS

YOUR "run-down" child may be playing host to vitality-sapping worms which rob her of nourishment and poison her with their secretions. Worms are much more common than most mothers think.

Look also for the following symptoms: grinding of teeth, picking the nose, crossness, crying in sleep, offensive breath, loss of appetite or weight, nausea or general restlessness. Any one of these signs may be your warning that worms are present.

Wise mothers take no chances with these dangerous and disgusting childhood pests. Even if worms are only suspected they give the child

YALE WINS VARSITY RACE, LEADING CRIMSON CREW FIVE AND HALF LENGTHS

Eli Crew Covered the Four Miles Downstream In 20 Minutes 9 2-5 Seconds, Winning By a Margin of 21 2-5 Seconds—Harvard Was Whipped Before the Half Mile Flag Was Reached—Yale Gave One of the Finest Exhibitions of Racing Ever Witnessed On the Thames—Was Ninth Victory For Yale In Ten Successive Years—Harvard Won Both the Preliminary Races.

NEW LONDON, June 20.—(AP)—Eight young stalwarts, rowing with all the automatic precision of so many robots as the sun glinted from their blue-tipped oars, swept down the old Thames river this evening to give Yale another magnificent victory over Harvard in this four-mile classic of American college rowing.

For the ninth time in ten successive years, the roar of the crowd and the screeching din of a multitude of naval sirens acclaimed the Blue of old Eli as the conqueror of the Crimson in the concluding event of the 68th regatta for these ancient rivals.

Leading almost from start to finish, Yale broke the hearts of a game Harvard crew with one of the finest races ever witnessed on the picturesque course from Bartlett's Cove to the railroad bridge. The Elis swept past the judge's boat with a margin of five and a half lengths, leaving their rivals struggling in the rear as they rowed the second fastest race in the 78-year-old history of naval rivalry between the Blue and the Crimson.

Yale, brilliantly paced by Woodruff Tappen of Pleasantville, N. Y., at stroke and by Captain Gus Blagden of Greenwich, Conn., at the vital number seven post in the "engine room," covered the four miles downstream in 20 minutes, 9 2-5 seconds. This was just a few seconds short of Harvard's course record of 20:02, set in 1916, but it surpassed anything else on record since these traditional foes first raced on Lake Winnipesaukee in 1852. It shaded by a fraction of a second the previous second best mark of 20:10, made by Yale's victorious 1888 boatload.

Harvard Whipped at Half Mark

With Harvard distanced and soundly whipped before half-way mark was reached, the varsity race resolved itself into a battle over the last two miles between these eight human rowing machines and old Pop Time. The sons of old Eli had the old man groggy and on the ropes throughout the last two miles, but even the spectacular finish they put on was not quite enough to put the ancient gentleman down for the decisive count.

As it was, Yale had to be satisfied and it apparently was, with the third straight overwhelming victory over the Crimson varsity, a triumph that closed another undefeated season for the products of rowing's miracle man, Head Coach Edward O. Leader, native of Portland, Ore., rowing product of Seattle, Wash., and conqueror of the east.

Yale won in 1928 by a margin of 14 2-5 seconds, last year by exactly 19 seconds and this evening by 21 2-5 seconds to complete a succession of decisive conquests unparalleled in the long annals of the regatta. Over this three-year period, the Eli margin has been something like an aggregate total of 60 lengths, if the figures are needed to prove the ability of Ed Leader's husky young men.

Against any combination but this magnificent Blue machine, Harvard might have rowed a triumphant race. The Crimson, gallantly stroked by Franz Colloredo-Mansfield of Vienna, Austria, with Captain Lawrence Dickey of Bedford Hills, N. Y., backing him at at number seven, made a game showing against heavy odds. The losers covered the course in 20:30 4-5, time good enough to have won many a race, but it required a record-smashing outfit to do anything with the Elis this evening.

Harvard, although yielding the principal prize as Yale registered its only major sport conquest of the college year over the Crimson, nevertheless checked the Blue sweep by winning both preliminary races in the morning in sensational fashion.

The Harvard freshmen romped to victory over the Eli yearlings by a good three and a half lengths and thereby finished an undefeated season. The Crimson junior varsity crew sprang a mild upset by jumping into an early lead and fighting off Yale's challenges to capture the second preliminary event by three-quarters of a length. Both morning races were rowed over the middle two miles of the varsity course, downstream, in choppy water. In both, the Crimson gave a fine display of oarsmanship, scoring their 1st double since 1928 and giving their partisans the first chance they had to cheer any Harvard victory since the varsity triumph of 1927.

The times for morning races:

Freshmen, Harvard 11:02 4-5; Yale 11:17 2-5.

Jayvee, Harvard 11:07 1-5; Yale 11:10 3-5.

Yale thus experienced the novelty of being obliged to wait all day to let loose its annual chant of victory, but the confidence of Eli partisans in their mighty varsity eight was not misplaced. The odds were 10 to 1 in the Blue's favor, with no takers, as the big crews went to the starting line off Bartlett's Cove. They were fully justified by subsequent events.

The Killing Spurts

After a pretty start in which Harvard stroked into a lead of a few feet for the first and only time in the race, Yale hit up a pace that soon had the Crimson groggy trying to match. The Elis virtually decided matters by two killing spurts, the first within the first half mile and the second as the rival crews neared the submarine base, clustered with war craft and crowded with uniformed experts of the sea who recognized a great crew when they saw it and cheered accordingly.

The first of these sprints carried Yale to an open water advantage before the race was hardly under way. The second dealt a death blow to Harvard hopes after the Crimson, with dogged courage and persistency, had clung within a few feet of the Eli's stern for more than a half mile. In fact, Harvard hopes were somewhat high, as Yale had barely a length's lead in the middle flag, but they were soon shattered by the Blue spurt that turned the race into another procession.

Ear-Splitting Din

The ear-splitting din from sirens and whistles of craft, packed closely on either side of the racing lanes from the submarine base to the bridge, was nothing new to Eli oarsmen. Tappen, the stroke, has heard it once before when he paced the 1928 varsity to victory. It was music, nevertheless, to his ears, and he needed no urging from the little coxswain, W. F. Gillespie of Stamford, Conn., to dig his oar in a trifle deeper and send the thin cedar shell sweeping further ahead.

Three lengths ahead at the two-mile mark, the Elis nearly doubled this margin in the last half of the race as they listened to noisy acclaim for a triumph that was quickly and convincingly theirs.

There was a mighty ovation for the Elis as their shell slid under the bridge, with nearly half of the colorful crowd of 50,000 spectators massed on boats, observation trains, shores and bridges to catch fleeting glimpses of the finish.

Where a year ago, Yale's eight in some disdain rowed off to their quarters after the finish without stopping to cheer the losers, the Elis this time rested on their oars just below the bridge and gave a hearty yell for their gallant foes, with Coxswain Gillespie leading the cheer.

DEMONSTRATIONS BY SCHOOLBOYS IN BOMBAY

BOMBAY, June 20—Extraordinary demonstrations by schoolboys in Bombay's fort area, with the police forced to charge with the sticks to stop disorder, marked the picketing campaign of the nationalists here today.

Sixteen demonstrators were injured during the melee, three of them seriously. At the same time two other processions by youths, one of them in front of a large store, were dispersed by the police sticks.

Following information that Pandit Motilal Nehru intended to inspect a rally of nationalist volunteers on the Mandan Esplanade tomorrow, the chief magistrate of Bombay presidency issued an order prohibiting volunteers from visiting or frequenting the esplanade for two months.

The barracks of Indian infantry men stationed in Bombay are at one end of the esplanade, and the magistrate's order says that the action of Bombay provincial congress volunteers in drilling, entrenching and otherwise appearing near the native regiments is of such a nature as to lead to "a breach of the peace, a riot or affray, the immediate prevention of which is desirable."

"This would avoid delay in enactment for which there is widespread demand," he said.

The only dissent in the senate came from Senator Vandenberg, republican, Michigan, who asserted the measure contains "ultimate commitments of between $335,000,000 and $400,000,000."

Another Chicago Gang Leader Slain

Lorenzo Juliano, a Reputed Lieutenant of Capone Clan, Was Latest Victim.

CHICAGO, June 20.—(AP)—Another king of gangsters fell today, the grim signature of a gangster that the banding of the county's forces against crime had not ended his bloody war for the profits of liquor and vice.

On the ledger of gang war casualties for 1930 was written another name, No. 40 for the year—Lorenzo Juliano, boss of a big alcohol syndicate, bomber, reputed lieutenant of the Capone clan, suspect in more than one murder. He was found dead in a wrecked automobile that had catapulted at full speed down a 50-foot embankment in suburban Blue Island.

He was indicted by federal grand juries at Indianapolis on a charge of transporting liquor between that city and the distilleries of the suburbs fringing Chicago on the south and he was the reputed concessionaire of the slot machine syndicate in Blue Island and Chicago Heights.

First reports said the Italian had been slain by machine gun fire, but after examination of the body, Coroner Herman N. Bundesen said the victim had been beaten to death.

Washington Greets Byrd As Conqueror

President Hoover Presented Medal to Explorer—Cheered In the Halls of Congress.

WASHINGTON, June 20—(AP)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and his band of sun-tanned Antarctic conquerors, the din of Manhattan's wild welcome still echoing in their ears, were claimed by the capital today as its own.

From President Hoover, who greeted the explorer twice, to the halls of congress where the legislators cheered the man they had elevated to rear admiral for his flight over the bottom of the world, Washington welcomed the heroes as it had greeted only Lindbergh before.

Only once was there a cessation in tributes from others—when Byrd led his band into his native state, Virginia, and on the hillsides of Arlington paid homage at the graves of Floyd Bennett, who piloted him over the North Pole, Admiral John Wilkes, Antarctic explorer 90 years ago, and E. Lester Jones, late chief of the coast and geodetic survey.

Byrd's first visit to his home state since his return, was most solemn in the tribute paid to Bennett. He and Bernt Balchen, who piloted him across the Atlantic and over the South Pole, together placed a wreath on his tomb in memory.

Earlier the men of Little America had been received in the capitol with an ovation of cheers and applause that rivaled the welcome of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh after his epochal flight to Paris.

Escorted to the speaker's dais in the house by Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the majority leader, while his command filed into the galleries, Byrd received such welcome that he was unable to talk.

Speaker Longworth eulogized him as "the most beloved son of our land" who had accomplished the heights as an explorer, scientist, leader, and aviator.

"He is the one man in all the world," the speaker continued, "who has no poles to conquer."

The chamber was swept with ringing cheers and the legislators leaped to their feet and waved wildly.

The senate recessed for 15 minutes to greet the explorers who had come by special invitation of Vice President Curtis. Earlier he had congratulated them on their success at luncheon.

Close to the heart of the rear admiral was his reception at the navy department where the men and women with whom he had worked while on active duty in the bureau of aeronautics crowded the walks and corridors to accord him a rousing welcome.

With the presentation at night by President Hoover of a special medal of the National Geographic society, the official receptions of Byrd's entire command were ended and naught remained to be done but the clearing up of loose ends so that the men might return to their families.

While the special train carried the band back to New York, Rear Admiral Byrd planned for a visit tomorrow to Richmond and on Sunday he will be back in the place where he was born, Winchester.

HOUSE HAS PASSED THE SECOND DEFICIENCY BILL

Carries $67,712,000 For Contingencies In Government Departments—No Provision Is Made For the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission—The Measure Includes $25,000,000 For Public Building Construction—Now Goes to the Senate.

WASHINGTON, June 20— (AP) — Carrying no provision for the Hoover law enforcement commission, the second deficiency bill appropriating $67,712,000 for contingencies in government departments, including $1,660,000 for Boulder Canyon dam, was passed tonight by the house.

The measure now goes to the senate where plans have been made for speedy consideration.

The measure carried $25,000,000 for public building construction and authorization for $51,000,000 to settle claims of German and Austria nationals under awards of the mixed claims commission.

HOUSE ACTION FAILS TO DISCOURAGE DRY LEADERS

WASHINGTON, June 20—(AP)—Although an item of $250,000 for the expenses of the Hoover law enforcement commission for the next fiscal year was stricken from the second deficiency bill in the house today, dry leaders confidently predicted its restoration and the continued life of the group.

Attacking the allotment on the ground there was no law authorizing the expenditure Representative Laguardia, republican, New York, a leader in the wet bloc, was sustained by the chair on a point of order.

Representative Chindblom, republican, Illinois, who was presiding, recalled that the authorization for the commission's investigation of law enforcement was only for the present fiscal year. In addition to the $250,000 the ruling eliminated the reappropriation of $50,000 remaining as an unexpended balance from the $250,000 appropriated for this year.

Representative Cramton, republican, Michigan, a dry leader, said he was confident nothing more would be done in the house to restore the item, but that he was equally certain the senate would reinsert it and the matter would go to conference.

Laguardia based his point of order upon a provision which forbids an appropriation which has not been authorized by law.

Quoting from the statement of George W. Wickersham, chairman of the commission, before the house appropriations committee that "our job was to see whether the 18th amendment was being adequately and efficiently enforced," the New Yorker declared "I will say that it is not necessary to have a voluntary commission to tell us what is going on in the way of prohibition."

Chairman Wood of the appropriations committee interrupted to explain that the creation of the commission had been suggested by congress and congress "should not stop the job which it put in motion, especially when it is only half through.

Laguardia declared that Wood had "warned and lectured" Wickersham as to the limitations of his powers and those of the commission when the allotment was sought before the appropriations committee.

Representative Linthicum, democrat, Maryland, a wet, said it appeared to him that "a half million dollars is a good deal of money for what we have gotten."

TINKHAM PUBLICLY REPEATS CHARGES AGAINST CANNON

WASHINGTON, June 20—(AP)—Taking up the challenge of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., Representative George Holden Tinkham of Massachusetts tonight dropped the cloak of congressional immunity and over his signature issued to the press a statement repeating all of the charges he made against the southern churchman on the floor of the house.

Termed by Cannon a "blustering cowardly congressman" for making charges while enjoying immunity the Massachusetts republican said he desired to repeat his accusations "lest Bishop Cannon shall delude any one into thinking the charges which I made against him in the house of representatives were unfounded."

The statement issued tonight was a condensation of an address delivered from the floor last Tuesday. In that speech he said that until Cannon had made an accounting of the $48,300 received from E. C. Jameson of eNw York for the 1928 anti-Smith campaign, the churchman "wil stand convicted in the eyes of all honest men of having appropriated that money to his own uses."

South of the Yangtse the nationalists blocked the advance of two southern armies upon Kiuklang and Shasi. With the government troops weeping a third rebel force south of Changsha, the tri-cities, Hankow, Wuchan and Hanyang were temporarily relieved of the threatened capture.

TWO SUSPECTS HELD IN "MANIAC SLAYER" CASE

NEW YORK, June 20—(AP)—Two men were held for questioning today concerning two recent Long Island slayings committed by a maniac who has written letters threatening to kill 13 more.

In Philadelphia detectives arrested Joseph Clark, an escaped inmate of the Creedmore State Hospital for the Insane in Queens. He is a man with a passion for writing letters.

In Newark, N. J., police seized a man who gave his name as John D Galvao, but who they said had some resemblance to Joseph Ustica, an insane murdered who escaped from the Kings Park hospital and who believed himself charged with some special responsibility for protecting American womanhood.

Both the men killed by the Long Island maniac were shot as they sat with women companions in cars parked in a lonely section of Queens borough. In each case the slayer escorted the woman to a car line after the killing. The women differed considerably in their descriptions of the man who killed their escorts and neither has been able to identify him from Rogues Gallery pictures.

Clark was arrested in a Philadelphia boarding house as he was about to leave the city after being informed by his landlady that some New Yorkers had called to see him.

"They'll never get me," he was quoted as replying to her. "I'm going to get out of here and go to the mountains."

MAY INSPECT BOOKS OF BETHLEHEM STEEL CORP.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, June 20—(AP)—Counsel for the opposition to the Bethlehem-Youngstown Sheet and Tube Steel merger today was given the right to inspect books and records of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, in a decision handed odwn in common pleas court.

The right to inspection was given by Judge David G. Jenkins, who granted a motion asking that Bethlehem's books be made available before the hearing, June 25, of a petition to enjoin the merger. Filed by Myron C Wick, Jr., and International Shares corporation against Bethlehem and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company.

The court's order does not require that Bethlehem's books be brought to Youngstown, but gives the defendants the right to inspect them and to make copies of such records as are pertinent to the injunction hearing.

The plaintiffs have contended that information concerning Bethlehem's bookkeeping and transactions is necessary to support their charges that the merger terms are unfavorable to Youngstown stockholders, and that the agreement amounted to a fraud upon these stockholders.

REUNION WEEK CLOSES WITH "OLD SCHOOL BANQUET"

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 20. — The "Old School Banquet," the final of a series of commemorative and progressive events that served to make up the program of Community Reunion week, was held at the Nathan Hale hotel this evening with an attendance of nearly 150 former graduates and educators of old Windham.

The ceremonials attending the banquet were most impressive and rich in interesting reminiscence and experience, many of them bringing to light the early school characteristics and later accomplishments of some of the best known pupils who went through the portals of the old Stone schoolhouse, old Natchaug and Windham high schools.

An excellent menu with chicken a la Maryland as the mainstay was served under the personal supervision of Manager Charles E. Mayo of the hotel. With the capacity of the main dining hall taxed, several were served in the coffee shop and auxiliary dining room.

For the exercises the "Question Before the House" related to matters recalling the Alexandrian Literary society. The first query was "What Is The High School Spirit?" To this a fitting response was made by Wilbur L. Cross, Natchaug, '10, Yale '85, now dean of Yale Graduate school and editor of Yale Review. Dean Cross made the presentation of the symbol, a torch of truth, which was accepted for the graduates, especially the Beede-Ites, by Horace J. Fenton, W. H. S., '94, Yale '99. Mr. Fenton, former associate professor, English and history departments at the Naval academy, Annapolis, Md., made response to the second query, "What Does It Mean to Graduates?" (High school spirit).

Principal Case accepted the symbol for Windham high which will remain its custodian until 1940, when the next old school banquet is expected to be held.

Allen B. Lincoln, Natchaug '75 and Yale graduate, who has won much gratitude for his promotion of the Old Home week of 1915 and the Community week just past, was schoolmaster for the round table of Reminiscence and Experience.

Old Natchaug, Dr. George Royal, Natchaug, '74, Amherst "Non Grad." '78, Hon. M. S. 1929. Dr. Royal is former president of the American Homeopathic association, native of Coventry and now resident of Des Moines, Iowa.

DANIELSON

DRIVER AGREES TO SETTLE FOR DAMAGES

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 20— A very minor automobile accident this afternoon was the means of starting a discussion between the operators of the cars concerned and Chief John McFarland that endured for about an hour, meanwhile holding the attention of a large gallery of curious persons who gathered to hear what it was all about.

Mario Del Pesco, operating one of the involved cars, had just started to drive away from the curb opposite Dowe's store and was barely out of the line of parked cars when a machine operated by Dora Allard of Central Village, a brand new Ford sedan, with a brand new driver, came along, traveling south, to have both fenders on one side raked and damaged by the bumper on the Del Pesco car, the front end of which was a little outbeyond the parking line.

The long drawn out discussion that developed had to do with where the responsibility for the accident happened. Finally, Chief McFarland made it clear that unless Mr. Del Pesco agreed to adjust the damage done to the Allard car it would be necessary for him to order him into court. So Mr. Del Pesco agreed that he would pay Miss Allard the sum of $13.50.

NAMED TEACHERS AT KILLINGLY HIGH SCHOOL

Announcement was made today by Supt. W. E. Parker of Killingly's schools that Miss Lillis N. Kappenberger, state supervisor of home economics education, has appointed Miss Esther Bales of Lindberg, Kansas, and Miss Nellie Dawes of Lewiston, Me., as teachers in the home economics department of Killingly high school for the ensuing year. Both of these teachers are highly trained specialists. Their salaries while they are on duty here will be paid by the state.

Because of its fine equipment and because of its proximity to the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs, the home economics department of Killingly high school is to be used during the coming school year for the practical training of young women who are in that department at Storrs, preparing to be teachers.

From one to three of these student teachers will come here in September to work under the direction of Misses Bales and Dawes and to assist them in teaching. After a stay of about a month these student teachers will be replaced by others from Storrs, and this process is expected to be continued right through the school year.

The arrangement is regarded as a particularly fortunate one for the local high school.

Rev. and Mrs. W. B. Williams of Berkeley, Cal., are guests of Mrs. J. H. Smith of Broad street. For a number of years Rev. Mr. Williams was pastor of the Westfield Congregation church here.

Inquiries from motoring tourists are almost daily now as to whether Danielson has a public camping ground—the sort that one encounters in many places in the New England states and other parts of the country. There are some private camping places in and near Danielson, but the inquirers seek for those that have the various conveniences that many communities provide.

JEWETT CITY

OLD FARM HOUSE BURNED TO GROUND

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, June 20.—The house on the one-time Henry Burton place, in the south part of the town, was burned to the ground early Thursday evening. The farm is now owned and occupied by Lester Blain. The fire became kindled in the attic, it is thought from the chimney, after a fire had been built to prepare supper. While the meal was in progress the flames made a good start, unnoticed by the family below until the crackling was heard coming from the rooms above. Everything was burned except a few articles of furniture that were gotten out from the lower floor. People saw the light of the fire from all the surrounding farming sections and about 50 hurried in automobiles to lend their aid, being, however, too late to save the property.

The house, once the home of the late Henry Burton, was of the old farm building type, built in the earlier part of the last century.

Girl "Captives" Rescued

Three local school girls, protected only by their pseudo-husbands, were camping in a local back yard Friday. During the early evening they were set upon by a band of four redskins, all decked out with feathers and daubed with crushed strawberry war paint. The women were dragged away to the Indians' camp while the men were promptly tomahawked and scalped. A few minutes later, all in true western movie style, a party of cowboys swooped down upon the marauders; the number of demises ran high, but the raid proved successful and the three captives were rescued. Following the coming to life of all the dead men, the whole party ate ice cream cones, sitting on the fence overlooking the scene of the terrible battle.

PUTNAM

EXPECT FINDING TODAY IN FATAL ACCIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 20—Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson after 22 days of investigation and consideration of the case of Haig Bayandorian of Providence will return a finding in this matter Saturday. Coroner Bill stated this afternoon that he was drafting the instrument this afternoon and that upon completion it would be filed with the clerk of courts Saturday.

Bayandorian was arrested on Memorial day by Patrolman Harry Wallen of the local police. The youthful Armenian was the operator of a motorcycle which crashed into a fence on cemetery curve on Grove street. A companion riding in the back seat of the vehicle was seriously injured. Bayandorian was held for court on a charge of reckless driving. Three days later the victim of the accident died at the Day Kimball hospital as the result of injuries sustained. In accordance with the statute in such case, the charge of reckless driving was automatically changed to a technical charge of manslaughter. The bonds for the release of the driver were increased. Bayandorian was unable to secure the necessary bond and has been forced to remain in the custody of the local police until proper disposition has been made of the case.

The Providence man's period of incarceration has shattered all previous records on file at police headquarters.

Haig is preparing for citizenship examinations and he spends a good deal of his leisure hours reading the current literature of the day.

Miss Edna I. Kent, a member of the class of 1930 Putnam high school was honored Thursday evening at the graduation exercises at the Bradley theatre when presented with a certificate of one year's perfect school attendance—the 10th cerificate she has received since beginning her school life. Miss Kent is the niece of Miss Edith L. Kent, assistant principal of Putnam junior high school.

Miss Kent is justly proud of her achievement. Principal E. L. Robinson in presenting Miss Kent with the certificate, signed by Governor John H. Trumbull commended her. Miss Kent has not been tardy, absent, nor dismissed during the past ten years she has attended school. In addition to receiving honors for her record of perfect attendance, Miss Kent was one of the pupils to receive a diploma bearing the Cum Laude seal, accorded all honor students in recognition of their high academic standing during their four years at school.

FISHHOOK LIFTS BOND FROM BROKER'S OFFICE

New York "Angler," Captured in Chicago, Has Securities and $1,000 in Currency.

CHICAGO, April 24—Fishing for gilt-edge securities with a yardstick and a fishhook through the barred window of a La Salle Street brokerage house today landed a man identifying himself as Leslie Merion, 39 years old, of 242 West Tenth Street, New York City, behind the bars at the detective bureau.

Dennis Rollin, a clerk in the office of Hornblower & Weeks, investment brokers, happened to glance into the rear room this afternoon and saw a bond mysteriously dangling in the air a moment and then vanish out the window into the alley. He then saw Merion, with a companion, getting ready to fish out another bond.

Mr. Rollin ran out to the front office and summoned a police... the two men ... they ...

VIGILANCE AND CARE BY ALL

When Motor Vehicle Commissioner Bloeckel urges special vigilance and care for pedestrians boarding and leaving street cars by motorists, he is simply directing them to obey the law which requires autos to stop at such times, which doesn't mean passing the trolleys on the left or honking the pedestrians out of the way.

The commissioner further declares that "simple courtesy on the part of automobile drivers will prevent serious injury to many persons and often avoid fatal results," all of which is apparent to the observant person but gets little attention from a certain number of drivers. The commissioner might also have added that the same simple courtesy and forethought on the part of pedestrians will likewise do much in preventing many of the accidents.

It has gotten so that all users of the highway, the auto driver, the person leaving an electric car or bus, the pedestrian hastening across the thoroughfare without looking, the children dodging into the highway or out from in back of other vehicles, must give heed to his own personal safety and contribute to the prevention of accidents in which he may be involved. There will be no disposition to challenge the view that a pedestrian is entitled to a lot of consideration from a motorist. There is no excuse in most instances for nearly running him down, frightening him to death by needlessly honking the horn or denying him his right of way or a share in the highway. On the other hand, there is no more excuse for much that the pedestrian does, through heedlessness in some instances, and through deliberate intention in others. When all highway users get so that they do their best to prevent rather than incite accidents, results will be obtained.

CROSSINGS CALL FOR CARE

In connection with the national conference on street and highway safety, it was inevitable that there should be consideration given to the grade crossing situation. At such points many lives are lost and, in order to reduce the danger spots, elimination is going on throughout the country to the extent of $50,000,000 yearly.

Those who have been studying the situation have found that in spite of the crossing removals the number increases each year because of new road construction. This makes the endeavor to get rid of grade crossings by elimination an endless one, to say nothing of the tremendous expense involved. So thoroughly was this recognized that the special committee dealing with this problem declared the cost of grade crossing elimination is too great for the problem to be met in that manner, and its recommendation was that the most practical remedy lies in establishing uniform warning signs and signals, protective measures and educating the highway users.

This is in keeping with what has been frequently urged. The crossing danger is so obvious that it can be minimized by giving heed to the warnings. In other words, if there is the proper amount of care used, there will be the desired reduction in the number of fatalities and corresponding increase in the safety at such points.

It is the refusal to be careful, the unwillingness to slacken speed, the contempt for danger, that results in so many deaths at grade crossings. All of which indicates that the highway users are not living up to their responsibility. They are expected to observe the rules of the road and those at the wheel of an automobile are duty bound to see that they do not endanger the lives of those with them. That duty involves the careful approach to railroad crossings so that the auto will be under full control and ready to meet such an emergency as that presented by the approach of a locomotive.

Getting auto drivers to do this is evidently part of the educational work to which the committee referred. The possible penalty for not providing this protection should be sufficient reason for driving carefully at such points. Greater care at crossings should mean greater care at all other points in the highway.

WASTE FOR FARM RELIEF

In a great variety of ways is it possible to check wastes. Fortunes have been made by discovering uses to which material which had previously been thrown away could be put, while the savings have been effected by utilizing the products of what had once been wastes. Necessity has forced it in instances, experiments have disclosed the chance in others, while luck has played its part in still other cases.

It is invariably the case that when there is such a great quantity of certain material being discarded that some chemist, or inventor, or expert begins to study it with a view to employing it for the manufacture of something that will provide a substitute for some more or less important necessity. It may even be put to use in new ways as an aid to industry, an encouragement for business or a help to agriculture.

In a great many ways has the last quarter of a century seen the development of important products from what had been waste. The manufacture of sugar from cane and beets has been going on for years. After the cane and the beets have been crushed and the juices extracted, there is a residue called bagasse, for which there is little use. A few years ago it was found that it could be used in the making of paper. Coarse paper could be produced but there appeared to be little use for it, but it was found that it could be used as a protection to crops by spreading it over the ground as a means of retaining the moisture and warmth in the soil. Particularly was this true in the fields where pineapples were being grown. It worked well and a market was developed for it.

The success of that experiment caused attention to be given in other lines of agriculture until it was found that this form of mulching was profitable in connection with other crops. The outcome of it all is that such paper mulching has turned attention to other waste materials for the production of such a cheap grade of paper for purposes of that kind. As in the case of cornstalks, it means, not only a use for farm waste, but the reemployment of it for further agricultural benefit prompts the Detroit News to declare that the adoption of such a scientific discovery certainly deserves more emphasis than political devices as a means toward tangibly achieving "farm relief," and there is much to support such contention.

KEEPING THE STREETS TIDY

This is the time of year when a city gets more visitors than at any other. It is, therefore, the time when it should be looking its best. The natural desire of any community is to make a good impression and it must be fully understood that in no way can this better be done than by presenting clean streets.

There has been an international gathering of street sanitation experts in Germany at which papers were read and improved machinery displayed in the interest of well-kept streets. Many an inspiration was doubtless secured at that session by those attending it, but it is questioned whether the impression made by the convention itself was any more favorable than the examples of street sanitation displayed in many European cities. And it is by no means the experts alone who pay attention to such conditions. The travelers abroad, as well as those at home, are mindful of all such appearances.

Where much of the work that was done in former years by manual labor is now accomplished by machines, it should be realized that much of this work is forced upon a community by the thoughtless actions of its citizens in throwing all sorts of conceivable litter into the streets. The wind isn't going to pick it up and carry it off, although it does help in distributing some of it, but much street cleaning work would be eliminated if there was a greater effort on the part of the individual in preventing bad appearances.

People carry papers, bags and the like, and drop them into the gutter. Storekeepers may do likewise, with the expectation that someone will clean it up, but without stopping to realize that such needless acts create expense and make the streets unpleasant to look at until the cleaners come around.

With general cooperation in this direction there would be less public expense, civic slovenliness would be greatly decreased, visitors would get a decidedly different impression of a community and there would e greater reason for civic pride.

It is all a matter of habit, and it is easy to adopt. While there are many who think and act for the prevention of such conditions, their good example gets too little attention from those who need it most.

ANOTHER PEACE

The signing of a new compact between Greece and Turkey might indicate that those countries had been engaged in recent combat. As a matter of fact, there has been no love lost between those countries since long before the World war. Probably it would not be correct to say that all has been forgotten now and that they will ever live in peace, though that may be the hope.

They have not been engaged in recent strife, but conditions have prevailed since their own difficulties which have been most unpleasant for large numbers. For years there have been 20,000 Greeks in Istanbul who were unable to obtain legal documents of any kind, including passports and marriage licenses. They were denied citizenship and have been obliged to make the best of a bad situation. Restrictions were also placed around twice as many more Greeks who were recognized as Turkish citizens during the last seven years but who were even denied many liberties, including the right to travel.

With the settlement of the status of these people much relief is bound to be experienced. With these neighboring nations getting together in an agreement over old-time difficulties, an important step has been taken. The signing of the accord means that the two countries have effected a compromise in which Greece will pay something over two million to Turkey because of its unsuccessful invasion of the latter country, but there will be terminated a long-standing dispute and needed relief for large numbers provided.

The effect in that entire region should be beneficial and there isn't any quarter of the world where the need of peaceful conditions exists more than in the Balkans, in which both of these countries figure prominently. The wish of the world must be that the fondest hopes in connection with the treaty will be realized.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: There are days when it is possible to feel blue and yet be happy.

Someone is always bound to be satisfied with the outcome of the race, but did it suit you?

It is a matter of ten days since James Reed spoke in Missouri but we haven't noticed Jim Reed clubs springing up all over the country.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

There are valid reasons why Christendom should celebrate the anniversary of the Day of Pentecost especially when that celebration is in honor of a centennial. A careful reckoning shows us that June 8th of this year marked the 19th centenary of that day when the disciples received their spiritual endument from on high. There is a special reason why we should emphasize the centenary of great events, because it is one great evidence of their intrinsic worth. Annually some attention is given to the Fourth of July, but what an affair it was in the summer months of 1876, its 100th birthday! The nation was justified in making it a mammoth affair. But think of an event that has reached its 19th century of existence! That in itself shows what it has meant to the human family.

The other day I ran across an editorial paragraph in The Yale Divinity News, from the pen of Professor H. H. Tweedy so impressive and pertinent that I pass it on to my readers. It is the closing paragraph: "Here is the test for the celebration of Pentecost: Is it a living reality, or merely a rather dubious record of history? There will be little use in keeping our wreaths upon the tomb of a dead past unless we can reproduce its values in life of the present. Cities which make Jerusalem look like a quiet country hamlet are waiting for the evidence. Peoples are crying out for this in nations striving to be born. If Pentecost is true, then the world can be taken for God, and it is the business of the church to take it. These are days for a genuine searching of spirits for the testing of our religion, for waiting before the throne of the Eternal until we, too, are endued with power from on high!"

At this season of the year the air is redolent with something besides roses. It is the atmosphere of the classroom during the final exams. I am not referring to the amount of oxygen in the air, but to the quantity of sulphur in the thoughts and feelings of those who are struggling with quadratics and other things that belong to the world of bliss. After all if examinations are a sort of inferno to many students, is it not, for the most part, to those who have not made study a really serious thing during term time? If one has just slumped along during the preceding period is he not usually the one who goes through purgatory at the exams? Not always, to be sure, but is it not generally true? Is it not in most instances true that those who have put conscience into the day's task are those who master the exams?

The question naturally arises what are the lads and lasses going to do before they go to the advanced schools in the autumn. The downright lazy boy and girl who have just slumped along during the school year ought to be put to hard work during the summer months so as to realize what its value is. Perhaps by fall they may learn the important lesson that nothing of value comes without hard work. But those who have made a real business of study ought to have a good, restful vacation just as much as those who have worked hard with brain and muscle at other occupations. All real workers are entitled to a season of rest and change from the ordinary toil. In the long run as much will be gained by these seasons of rest and change, and even more than by plugging away 365 days in the year.

There are many kinds of memorials that are erected in honor of the illustrious dead, but none more appropriate than the Bushnell memorial of Hartford erected to the memory of her celebrated father, Dr. Horace Bushnell by his daughter. Sometimes the graceful stone pedestal is the monument. Sometimes it is a beautiful building like the Hotel des Invalides, but the Bushnell memorial is not only beautiful but useful. It is in sympathy with the great spirit of the famous divine. And yet how he was berated in his own time because he dared to interpret the spirit and purpose of Jesus Christ somewhat differently from the harsh spirit of his day, and because he had a gentler theology than Augustine, Calvin or Jonathan Edwards he was bitterly opposed by the conservative theologians. But he built better than he knew, for his theology is that which is preached for the most part in the Protestant pupits today.

If there is any one phase of humanity that has been blessed by the advance of civilization more than any other, that phase is babyhood. I do not mean to say that modern parents love their children any more than their ancestors did. But within the last 40 years the science of baby life is so much better understood that parents are cooperating with this new knowledge and the result is a tremendous lowering of the death rate of the little ones. But in other ways apart from the physical the little ones are coming into their own. Whoever heard of such things as cradle rolls as a feature of our church work 50 years ago? The little ones are not only baptized but they form the first department of our Sunday schools. At a certain age they join the primary department, and hence they are in our Sunday schools as they are in our day schools.

According to the historical record, the second Sunday in June of this year was the 1900th anniversary of the Day of Pentecost. If the day was not generally celebrated as its long history deserves, it was not because of any lack of intelligent interest in the event but because this day has been set apart by most of our churches as "Children's day." The day, however, calls for special attention because this year marks another centennial, the 19th of its history. Philadelphia in 1876 made a successful reproduction of July 4th, 1776, when the Declaration of Independence was promulgated. But think of a 19th celebration! The very fact that the Day of Pentecost is recognized all over the world is a silent testimony of its inherent worth.

A certain man on one occasion was congratulated on his popularity in the community and he replied that he did not merit any special praise. "Now it is this way" he said, "I find that along certain lines I can help this community; I have something that the community needs, not necessarily money, but in some ways I can be helpful. Now I am morally bound to do good where it is needed if I can. But I have found the community very generous. It always pays me back is what I really need. Putting one's personality into the community is a form of investment. It pays a reasonable dividend on what it receives. Remember this that the community needs just what you can give, and you need the kind of coin that the community pays back. If I desire to help somebody there is always somebody that needs me."

"Where are you going, Jackie? Are you going fishing or are you on the way to school?"

"I don't know. I'm fighting with my conscience."—Hummel.

PASSING OF THE CENTURY MAGAZINE RECALLS ITS CREATOR, ROSWELL SMITH OF LEBANON

After a distinguished career of 60 years the independent existence of the Century magazine, the most important publication venture ever established by a native of eastern Connecticut, is ended through a merger with the Forum magazine. The Century was founded in 1870 by Roswell Smith, a native of Lebanon, in partnership with Dr. J. G. Holland.

Was Native of Lebanon

On April 21, 1892, the Bulletin published the following obituary of Mr. Smith:

"Roswell Smith, the president of the Century Publishing company of New York, whose death was announced in yesterday morning's Bulletin, was born at Lebanon, Conn., March 30, 1829. His father, Asher L. Smith, for many years lived in the historic Trumbull mansion at Lebanon.

"It is nearly a quarter of a century since, he, Dr. J. G. Holland and the firm of Charles Scribner and company founded the magazine corporation which in 1881, after the purchase by Mr. Smith of the Scribners' interest, became the Century company. Roswell Smith's best years were given to his work as business manager and president of that company, and the history of its success is the story of his life.

Joins Forces With J. G. Holland

"Mr. Smith had made a fortune in various business enterprises when he met J. G. Holland in Europe in 1868, and with him conceived the foster American literature and art. foster American literature and art. They returned to the United States, and with the firm of Charles Scribner and company, who at the time were publishers of Dr. Holland's books, formed the corporation of Scribner and company and in November, 1870, the first number of Scribner's monthly saw the light.

"Putnam's magazine was merged in the new venture as well as Hours at Home, which had formerly been published by the Scribner house, and Mr. Richard Watson Gilder, now the editor of the Century, who had been for a year the editor of Hours at Home, was associated with Dr. Holland in the editorial management of the new magazine.

"In 1873, at Mr. Smith's suggestion, St. Nicholas was established and in face of a financial panic Our Young Folks, the Little Corporal, and several other juvenile magazines were purchased and merged in the new venture. In 1881 Dr. Holland, who had broken down in health, sold his interest in the company to Mr. Smith and to some of his associates, and Mr. Smith was soon afterward offered the Scribner interest, which was then in the hands of Charles Scribner's Sons, the successors to the firm of Charles Scribner and company.

"Mr. Smith acquired the entire Scribner interest in the magazine firm. The purchase from the Scribners was coupled with the condition that the name of the company and of Scribner's monthly should be changed. Although loaded down with this prohibition and saddened by the death of his old associate, Dr. Holland, Mr. Smith started the Century, which met with almost instant success.

Published a New Dictionary

"The idea of the Century Dictionary occurred to Mr. Smith about ten years ago. He entered into the work with no thought of competition. The field was not occupied as he thought it should be, and the new dictionary was projected on entirely new lines. It grew far beyond the proportions of the original plan, but no thought of economy or retrenchment turned him from his purpose. At last he saw the work accomplished and it satisfied him.

"It was Mrs. Smith who sent the first telegraphic message, "What hath God wrought!" over Prof. Morse's trial line between Baltimore and Washington.

"Mr Smith was an earnest church man. He attended for many years the Madison avenue Presbyterian church, and afterward the Collegiate church, of which the Rev. Dr. Coe was pastor. He gave liberally to church and educational works. For several years he was president of the Congregational club. He was a director of the American Tract society.

"His wife and his only daughter, Mrs. George Innes, Jr., of Montclair, N. J., survive him.

"Mrs. Smith was a granddaughter of Oliver Ellsworth, chief justice of the U. S. from 1796 to 1800. Prior to entering the publishing business Mr. Smith practiced law for nearly 20 years at Lafayette, Ind. He was a graduate of Brown in the class of 1852.

Commenting editorially on the merger of the Century magazine with the Forum, the Providence Journal completes the history and gives an appreciation of the periodical which Mr. Smith published in the days of its greatness.

Contained Works of Genius

"Dr. Holland was succeeded as editor by Richard Watson Gilder, and he by Robert Underwood Johnson. Those were the triumphant years of the Century, when both its literary matter and its engravings attracted world-wide admiration. Some of the most famous names in American literature have been associated with its pages. Two of its greatest successes were the Battles and Leaders of the Civil war, the series being elaborately illustrated, and the life of Abraham Lincoln by Nicolay and Hay, also enriched with illustrations.

"The high-water mark of engraving in the Century is represented by the work of Timothy Cole, whose white-line engravings of the old masters began in 1889 and continued at intervals for half a dozen years. This may stand for the highwater mark of modern wood engraving, the culmination of that fascinating art which was suddenly wrecked by the invention of the half-tone process engraving.

"The Century magazine at the close of the nineteenth century will stand historically as one of the highest representatives of American culture in letters and art. Many a reader cherishes its volumes on his shelves and goes back to them with an interest heightened by the pathos of the reflection that the world produces no more such work.

Merger Typifies Changing America

"The fact that the Century has been purchased by the Forum, which is a journal of discussion, and a periodical of abounding vitality, is typical of the change that has come over America itself. The Forum was founded in 1886 and was made famous by the work of Walter Hines Page, who was first its business manager and afterward its editor. Its editor since 1923 has been Henry Goddard Leach, a scholar and author, especially devoted to Scandinavian studies. For some years Dr. Leach has made a contribution for the purchase of Scandinavian books for the Germanic library at Brown university.

"As is well known, the Century entirely changed its character a few years ago. To the lovers of the old Century this was a painful experience. They felt that the Century had stood for something definite, as individual as a human personality, and to change it seemed to them little short of sacrilege. To such readers the present incident and the closing of the publication of the Century as a separate magazine will not bring a shock, for to them the Century had already disappeared."

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Peter Has His Turn

Whate'er to others you may do
Be sure they will return to you.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit didn't know whether to be angry or to laugh. At first he felt angry. Yes, sir, Peter felt angry. You know, there are very few who can laugh at jokes on themselves. The joke really was on Peter and he knew it. He had spent a lot of time hunting for Jerry Muskrat's new house and all the time he had been looking for the wrong kind of a house. Then he had been told that he was sitting on the roof of that new house, when all the time he was sitting on the bank of the Smiling Pool, where he had sat many times. Of course, he hadn't believed that he was sitting on the roof of a house. He hadn't believed it and had said so, and now it had turned out that after all he had been sitting on the roof of Jerry's house. You see, Jerry's new house was in the ground. It was in the bank of the Smiling Pool, with the entrance under water, and it was exactly under where Peter had been sitting.

Peter wisely decided not to be angry. He presently saw how funny it all was and he began to chuckle. Redwing the Blackbird chuckled with him. It was Redwing who had finally explained the joke to Peter. Finally Peter looked up at Redwing. "I suspect that Jerry Muskrat is laughing at me right now, said Peter. "I know I would be laughing if I were in his place. But I am going to get even with Jerry and then it will be my turn to laugh."

"How are you going to get even?" Redwing asked.

"Watch me!" replied Peter. "Just you watch me and you'll see how I'm going to get even."

Now, Peter knew that in all probability Jerry Muskrat's bedroom was up quite near the surface. He knew that there must be a long hall from the water leading up and that a little way under the sod must be Jerry's very comfortable bedroom. So Peter hopped back a little way and suddenly he thumped the ground with his stout hindfeet. He thumped as only Peter can thump. Then he hopped on a step or two and thumped again. He hopped off to one side and then to the other side each time he thumped. He thumped and he thumped hard all around where he thought the roof of Jerry's home might be. Finally, he hopped over to the edge of the bank and looked down into the Smiling Pool. Jerry Muskrat was just starting to climb up the bank and it was plain to see that Jerry was in a bad temper. Peter chuckled.

"Hello, Jerry!" said he, pretending to be surprised. "Where did you come from?"

"So it was you!" snarled Jerry, for he was still very angry. "So it was you pounding on the roof of my house! I might have known it. I'll teach you not to try that trick again!"

"I was thumping, if that's what you mean," said Peter, "I often thump. How was I to know I was on the roof of your house?"

"I told you you were on the roof of my house when I saw you last," retorted Jerry.

"True enough," replied Peter. "I remember now. But you didn't explain what you meant. I have thumped on this bank many times and there was no house here then. Don't you think we are even, Jerry?"

Jerry Muskrat started an angry reply, but changed his mind and finally grinned. "I guess we are, Peter," said he. "I had a lot of fun with you and now you've had a lot of fun with me. So I guess we are even. Be a good fellow and don't thump on my roof again."

"I won't," replied Peter good-naturedly.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 20—When radio broadcasting was just getting a good start, Washington used to have a station invariably designated by the announcer as "The Voice of the Capitol."

It is gone now in more modern groupings, but Washington still has a "voice" in the person of Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce and by far the most vocal member of the "little cabinet"—or even the cabinet itself, for that matter, if you exclude Secretary of Labor Davis, vanquisher of "ol' Joe" Grundy.

Speaks Often

Dr. Klein is heard from early and often by radio and in person. He's the most prolific speechmaker not in the senate. And invariably he has things to say and says them well.

Every week you can hear on the air the doctor expound some aspect of American business opportunity or enterprise.

Dr. Klein does not ask pay for the job. He does it free. And he does it wherever he happens to be. The microphone just follows him about the country, so to speak, for in addition to his radio activities this former right hand man of Herbert Hoover in the commerce department is continuously showered with invitations to address business organizations and what not. He accepts most of them.

Picked Early

Secretary of Commerce Lamont is a man of another stripe. He makes no speech that can be avoided. His motto, apparently, is "let Klein do it," and in that policy no doubt he conforms to President Hoover's own ideas.

For it is an open secret that Mr. Hoover had Klein picked for assistant secretary long before he drafted Lamont to head the department.

Many observers thought Mr. Hoover would pick Klein to fill his shoes as commerce secretary. The doctor was abroad on a survey when the Hoover administration came in. He found it advisable, during the sort of ad interim tenure of Secretary Whiting, picked by President Coolidge to sit in for Hoover after the latter was nominated for the presidency.

Klein and Lamont make an efficient pair in high command. For one thing, they share in admiration for Hoover abilities.

So Klein is the voice of the commerce department, certainly, and no doubt to a large extent the voice of the Hoover administration in commercial and industrial economics.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

National Folding Box Company, New Haven.

The history of the folding box industry dates back to 1875 when Thomas L. Cornell cut out the first folding pasteboard box for the Shelton Tack Co. of Derby. Mr. Cornell lived in Birmingham, (now Derby) and so successful was the business from the start, that in 1885 the company, known as the Cornell and Shelton company, moved to Shelton, occupying larger quarters there.

The Cornell and Shelton company remained as an independent manufacturer of folding paper boxes until 1891 when it consolidated with four other box manufacturing firms of Connecticut, Massachusetts and New Jersey into the National Folding Box company. The five paper box concerns in this organization were the D. S. Walton company, J. S. Nugent company, Munson company of New Haven, the Benton and company and the Cornell and Shelton company.

In May, 1891, the owners of these concerns decided to form the present company. A charter was obtained and on July 16 the company was organized and the following officers and directors elected: David S. Walton, president; Thomas L. Cornell, vice president; J. S. Nugent, secretary; Frederick H. Benton, treasurer; Harvey S. Munson, director; and John F. Remig, manager of the sales department.

Inventories of the several companies were then taken and adjustments made so that by February, 1892, everything was arranged for the company to begin functioning. The capital was estimated at $1,250,000. The main office of the company was situated at East Orange, N. J., and arrangements made to carry on manufacturing folding boxes in the three states. The organization had two factories in New Haven, one in Derby, one in Springfield and one in Brooklyn at their disposal, and within the next year the Dayton Paper and Novelty company of Dayton, Ohio.

The folding box making industry grew by leaps and bounds, necessitating enlargements in the factories and in the purchase of more and better equipment. It is interesting to note that at a meeting of the board on February 3, 1893, Mr. Cornell reported that he had succeeded in producing all the cardinal colors for coloring manila lined straw board in fast colors, and that the process discovered by him then is still in use.

In spite of the general business depression of 1895 the business of this concern increased consistently and at an annual meeting of the board, held in February, the president suggested that the New York office be moved to New Haven and that one of the floors in factory five, Brooklyn, be moved to the New Haven plant. This was done within the year, and was the first movement toward gathering the scattered plants under one roof in this city.

The present site of the company was purchased and in 1905 the original building of the National Folding Box company on Alton and James streets was built on the Shore Line railroad, giving two railroad sidings. Since that time four other buildings have been constructed until the company now occupies five buildings.

The entire box and boxboard industry alone provides employment for 1,400 men and women here and the pay roll for this business is estimated at more than $150,000 a month. The plants engaged in box manufacture occupy over 20 acres of land with a combined floor space of 15 acres, loading platforms for 65 cars and privately owned side tracks for 275 cars.

Six million gallons of water are used in the production of 375 tons of paper boxes made each day in New Haven, and 11 crafts, from a clay coating to glueing are employed in the production of these boxes and cartons. Indeed so great is the total yearly output of paper boxes here that if the production of a single year were laid end to end, the line would encircle the globe eight times.

Perhaps one of the most unique advertisements in New Haven is the large electric sign on one of the company's buildings. Each month one of the boxes manufactured for the concern's customers is painted on the sign with the caption, "Yes, we make this box." The sign is maintained by the company. Thirty thousand dollars has been offered the National Folding Box company for use of this sign but the company refused to let it as it is regarded as a beneficial investment not only to themselves but to the manufacturing concerns for which folding boxes are made.

The present officers of the company are: Hutchinson S. Hakkle, president; David S. Walton, chairman; George W. Mabee, vice president and secretary; Morris T. Lynch, vice president; David S. Walton, Jr., treasurer; David W. Mabee, assistant secretary; Fred G. Sims, assistant treasurer. Sales rooms are maintained in Boston and New York city.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

Our Kingdom

Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and His righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you. Matt. 6:33.

This verse directs our thoughts to the true riches. There are treasures upon earth and also treasures in heaven, but it is not hard to conclude that true riches are the treasures in heaven which the Master urges his followers to lay up for themselves. There are many masters asking for our allegiance in this world. It is a most important and vital matter to find the right Master. Down through the centuries we hear the voice of Jesus saying, "One is your Master, even Christ," and in these words we find the summons to give Him our supreme allegiance.

We cannot serve two masters. Christ does not want a divided heart. We must yield ourselves entirely to His service or He cannot use us at all.

Among the treasures in heaven that we may lay up there is none more valuable than that of a noble Christian character.

The best master we can choose is the one who said of himself: I am the light of the world." Let the birds and flowers and all the wonders of His creation give testimony of His power and care.

What is the kingdom after which you are seeking? There is only one kingdom to which we can joyfully belong for time and for eternity, and that is the kingdom of God.

POETRY

Name

From Somerset and Devon,
Brom Kent and Lincolnshire,
The younger sons came sailing
With hearts of steel and fire. . . .

Out of the gray-walled cities,
Away from the castled towns,
Corners of thatch and roses,
Heathery combes and downs,

With neither crown nor penny,
But an iron will they came.
Heirs of an old tradition
And a good old English name. . . .

"Plymouth, Exeter, Bristol, Boston, Windsor, Wells," Beloved names of England
Rang in their hearts like bells.

They named their rocky farmlands,
Their hamlets by the sea,
For the mother-towns that bred them
In racial loyalty.

"Cambridge, Hartford, Gloucester, Hampton, Norwich, Stow."
The younger sons looked backward
And sealed their sonship so. . . .

Now over friendly waters
The old towns, each to each,
Call with the kinship in a name;
One race, one truth, one speech.

—Abbie Farwell Brown, in "Heart of New England."

Not Dissatisfied

Sometimes I weary at the kicks
Against the world's stupidity;
I know this land is full of hicks,
I know it's always going to be.
I'm conscious that my friends and I
Are much superior to the race—
Deserving, when we come to die,
To go to some more highbrow place.

And yet, just as my thoughtful fear
Is coming closest to despair,
I think I may be happier here
Than I can quite imagine There;
For here, I have a lofty pride
In being Brainiest and Best,
While over on the Other Side
I'll be no better than the rest.

So let me strut my little day
Among my foolish peers, and be Filled full of gratitude that they
Can furnish pleasant sport for me;
And when I go to my reward,
I hope in my pride's behalf
A gracious and indulgent Lord
Will tell the angels not to laugh!

—Ted Robinson, in Cleveland Plain Dealer.

OBITUARY

Irving J. Willis

Irving J. Willis, 50, former well-known local building contractor, died Friday morning at 2 o'clock at the home of his son-in-law, W. E. Jones, in Wequetequock, Stonington, as the result of a severe shock suffered last Wednesday. He had been living with his son-in-law since last winter, following a slight shock received at his home in the West Side section of this city, where he had lived for practically all his life.

Mr. Willis was the son of Calvin G. and Mary A. Willis and for many years was engaged in the occupation of building contractor, from which he was retired about 16 years ago. He was also prominently identified in local political circles, having been a member of the common council for two terms and for a short period superintendent of the water board. He was at one time a member of the Norwich chamber of commerce.

IRVING J. WILLIS

Fraternally, Mr. Willis was a member of Norwich lodge, No. 430, B. P. O. Elks, and was a charter member of the Colonial club, continuing his membership to the time of his death. Surviving him is a great-granddaughter, of Wequetequock. A daughter, Mrs. W. E. Jones, died at Stonington several years ago. He was especially well known among the older residents of the city, by whom he was held in high regard. His many friends were saddened to learn of his death.

Miss Mary J. Cronin

Miss Mary J. Cronin died in this city Friday afternoon after a short illness. Miss Cronin was born in Norwich, the daughter of the late Arthur T. and Mary J. Griffin and was a graduate of Broadway public school and Norwich Free Academy. For many years she was employed in the toy shop of the late Mrs. Edwin Fay, but lately had been employed in Nowatzky's newsstore.

Miss Cronin is survived by an aunt, Mrs. Catherine Griffin of 22 Bath street, with whom she has made her home for many years, and a cousin, Mrs. Ansel J. Lamb, also of this city. She was a member of St. Patrick's church and was of a pleasing personality, having a large number of friends who will extend sympathy to her relatives in their bereavement.

Louis Piche

Louis Piche, 83, died Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the home of his son, Oscar, in Montville. Mr. Piche was born in Canada and had resided in Montreal up to three years ago when he came to live with his son in Montville. His occupation had been a millwright. His wife died six years ago at Upton, Canada.

Mr. Piche is survived by two daughters, both nuns, belonging to the order of Presentation of Mary, located at Drummer Villa, St. Hyacinth, Canada. He also leaves four sons, Oscar of Uncasville, I. Piche of Worcester, G. W. and J. W. Piche, both of Montreal.

FINAL BROADCAST IS GIVEN IN NORWICH SERIES OVER WTIC

Very appropriately at this season of valedictories, the Norwich radio broadcasters made their final contribution Friday evening in the "Boost Norwich" series of ten evenings from station WTIC, Hartford.

The concluding half hour by the Doctor an' the Schoolmaster presented the following entertaining dialogue, with its musical interludes, as the series came to an end:

ANNOUNCER: This is the "Rose of New England" program, ladies and gentlemen, presented by the Merchants bureau of the city of Norwich, Connecticut. Tonight, we find the Doctor and his old friend, the Schoolmaster, wandering disconsolately about the lawn of the new Norwich Inn. One of them, the Schoolmaster, is a trifle more dejected than his companion. The Schoolmaster is an old man, and this afternoon, along about sundown, won the famous classic, the Yale-Harvard boat race which is held annually on the River Thames, a few miles below Norwich.

The Doctor is disconsolate for another reason, although he is an old man. Norwich, the shopping center of eastern Connecticut, is the natural headquarters for many of the visitors and the street of the city are crowded, most of the out-of-town people stopping at the Wauregan, historic hostelry of the "Rose of New England." A few miles south of the city, is the new Norwich inn, overlooking the Thames river, with every room full and to the old Doctor's disgust, not a vacant chair on the porch. As we tune-in, we hear the old gentlemen utter the first word for the past ten minutes.

DOCTOR: If you should happen to see any place to sit down, let me know, will you? I have something to crow about and I can't crow standing up.

SCHOOLMASTER: You're an old sort of bird, doctor!

DOCTOR: This spoils my afternoon! A perfect day up to now!

SCHOOLMASTER: I'd call this a wonderful evening if I could walk around this beautiful lawn and talk about the race this afternoon.

DOCTOR: The less you say about it, the better.

SCHOOLMASTER: Well, next year it'll be a different story!

DOCTOR: I'll bet that race didn't cure your headache!

SCHOOLMASTER: That was gone before we left Norwich. I bought some tablets in that drug store, the place where the clerks knew you.

DOCTOR: Oh, yes, Lee and Osgood company. Say, professor, there's a drug store a hundred forty-two years old.

SCHOOLMASTER: It certainly didn't look it! But of course there's no reason why a drug store shouldn't look youthful. We usually think of youth and drug stores in connection with each other.

DOCTOR: Yes, sir, that place was started by Doctor Ripley, in 1788. For 42 years, the store was known as Ripley's Drug store. In 1830, Charles Lee began working for Doctor Ripley and 12 years later, Colonel Hugh Osgood came into the firm.

SCHOOLMASTER: A colonel? how so, doctor?

DOCTOR: Civil war. He was on the staff of War-governor Buckingham. Colonel Osgood was also mayor of Norwich. But his chief fame, in my estimation, rests on his connection with a drug store a hundred forty-two years old.

SCHOOLMASTER: Naturally you would think that way. You're very partial to drug stores.

DOCTOR: Lee was one of the pioneers in the patent medicine business. Grandad and grandma used to keep a box of Lee's pills on the mantle beside the clock. And in 1850, Lee and Osgood used to have the eastern Connecticut agency for kerosene oil. As far as I know, it's the only firm in the drug business which has been doing business in the same location for a hundred forty-two years.

SCHOOLMASTER: It's a landmark and a record in one!

DOCTOR: You've been hanging around Norwich for ten weeks now, what do you think of our climate?

SCHOOLMASTER: I've seen it at its best, I think, early summer.

DOCTOR: We get very few bad storms here in this area. During winter, Norwich has a moderately cold climate and very seldom does the thermometer touch zero. But I wish you could see these rolling hills of Connecticut when the red and gold season comes around! Spring and early summer are beautiful, but you haven't seen anything yet, professor!

SCHOOLMASTER: I can imagine! But I have seen something, very much of something. I've seen the largest municipal gas and electric plant in the state!

DOCTOR: Yes, we're rather proud of our municipal plant. It serves a 26-mile area.

SCHOOLMASTER: They were telling me the city took over a private gas plant in 1851. The first gas-mains were laid in 1853. Along about that time, there were two companies in operation here. Did you ever hear of the battle of the shelalleys?

DOCTOR: Don't believe I ever did.

SCHOOLMASTER: Whenever one of the companies dug a trench, the other company hired men to come around that night and fill it up. I suppose that is why the city took over the gas business. Otherwise, there'd be no gas in Norwich today. Anyway, the modern plant is up-to-date and progressive.

DOCTOR: Did you happen to notice the card I was reading while we were in the drug store?

SCHOOLMASTER: No, I didn't doctor.

DOCTOR: Interesting notice! The Byrd expedition to the Antarctic took along a Thermos equipment. So we can say that Norwich products have gone over the south pole.

SCHOOLMASTER: Why not! The name Thermos has gone a long way over the rest of the globe. Where did they use this equipment, in camp?

DOCTOR: In camp, in the dog-sleds, and in the planes.

SCHOOLMASTER: There was a Thermos bottle in the drug store that I'm going to buy on the way back.

DOCTOR: Now thing of that, will you! And right in the same store, hidden back in the records, you'll find a prescription one hundred years old, number one. Doctor Ripley must have made some money on prescription number two.

SCHOOLMASTER: How's that, doctor?

DOCTOR: It was a heart stimulant and cost to make up exactly six cents. By the way, Doctor Ripley, who started that drug store, was a descendant of Gov. Bradford, of Plymouth.

SCHOOLMASTER: Oh, yes, the Plymouth Colony!

DOCTOR: We take as much pride in our descendents as we do in our ancestors. Now, for instance, take Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt. Her grandfather was General Daniel Tyler, of Norwich.

SCHOOLMASTER: Just the same, doctor, you sometimes make a bungle. You were telling me some time ago about General Moses Cleveland, the man who founded the city of Cleveland, Ohio. Did I understand you to say that he was born in Norwich?

DOCTOR: Let's see, Moses Cleveland, he was born over in Canterbury! The house is still standing, too.

SCHOOLMASTER: I've visited the place. Say, why doesn't some Cleveland man sponsor a movement to see that the old place is taken care of? You must have thousands of Cleveland residents through here every year.

DOCTOR: We do. I agree with you. The house isn't beyond saving and a few dollars would make a monument to the man with foresight enough to select the site of a city now above the million mark.

SCHOOLMASTER: Any more surprising descendents?

DOCTOR: Well, there's George Hayes, a Scotchman. He settled, at Windsor, Connecticut in the late sixteen-hundreds. His great-great-great-grandson, Rutherford Hayes, married Sophia Birchard, and in 1817 they went west to Delaware, Ohio.

SCHOOLMASTER: Are you referring to Rutherford B. Hayes, the 19th president of the United States?

DOCTOR: That's the man. He was their son. Do you know what the B in his name stands for?

SCHOOLMASTER: The B? No, I don't know his middle name.

DOCTOR: Birchard, after his mother, Sophia Birchard. And she traces her line back to John Birchard, one of the 35 original founders of Norwich. South-pole or in the white house, you'll still find Norwich represented.

SCHOOLMASTER: John Bichard, eh? That's more interesting than you realize. There was a John Birchard who taught school in Norwich, along in 1677. In fact, his name is the first mentioned of the school-teachers. He received 25 pounds for a term of nine months, payable in provisions.

DOCTOR: That's pretty close to working for his board.

SCHOOLMASTER: Colonial youngsters must have had a tough time getting an education. By colonial law, every town of thirty families was required to maintain a school to teach reading and writing. Every county town supported a Latin school.

DOCTOR: I suppose that was the ancient equivalent of a high school.

SCHOOLMASTER: Yes, in a way! And it wasn't anywhere near equal at that! A grant of 500 acres of land was made to each county to assist in establishing the Latin school.

DOCTOR: They gave away land with reckless abandon in those days.

SCHOOLMASTER: The lower schools couldn't have been very good, good enough for the times, perhaps, but woefully slack as an educational institution. Women were the principal teachers and their subjects did not go beyond reading, writing, spelling, and the Westminster catechism.

DOCTOR: There was a copy of the old Westminister catechism in the New England Primer, a part of the book. The Primer was the universal class-book for children. Published about 1660. I'm sure.

SCHOOLMASTER: Speaking about education, you haven't mentioned Daniel Coit Gilman yet.

DOCTOR: Didn't I? I mentioned his father once. The elder Gilman was the man who established the Nail Factory at the Falls. His son was a professor in some university, if I'm not mistaken.

SCHOOLMASTER: You're not far wrong, but you're terribly casual! Daniel Coit Gilman stands with the leading educators of the land. And he was born and he died in Norwich.

DOCTOR: Mebbe I've missed that one!

SCHOOLMASTER: You muffed it. He was a Yale man, and a professor of Yale college from 1856 to 1872. In turn, he was president of the University of California, John Hopkins university, and Carnegie Institute.

DOCTOR: He read an historical address at the Norwich bi-centennial celebration in 1859. And while we're on the subject of history, did you ever read the History of Norwich, by Frances Manwaring Caulkins?

SCHOOLMASTER: No, but I'm going to, when I go home.

DOCTOR: She was one of the pupils of Lydia Huntley, or Mrs. Sigourney, as most people know her. The Caulkins History was written in 1845, and expanded by 100 pages in 1866.

SCHOOLMASTER: Is she one of your surprising ancestors also?

DOCTOR: Yes, she's one of them. Her line goes back to the original founders. We've always had a good supply of Caulkins in town. Back in Revolutionary days, there was one Caulkins family of 13 children.

SCHOOLMASTER: Unlucky?

DOCTOR: No, they had no jinx on them. The father was a captain in the war. He served for a time under Benedict Arnold. The story goes that Captain Caulkins received some orders from Arnold and a little later came into possession of additional information. He disregarded the orders of Arnold and was able to capture a large party of stragglers.

SCHOOLMASTER: Which pleased Arnold very much!

DOCTOR: Not so you could notice it! General Arnold was so burning mad for the disobedience of orders that he pulled his sword and banged the captain with it. Captain Caulkins held Arnold fast until he could escape. He went back to his tent and waited for arrest.

SCHOOLMASTER: Well, from the standpoint of military discipline, I think Arnold was right.

DOCTOR: Mebbe so, but a few hours later, Arnold walked into the captain's tent with his hand held out, and he offered a handsome apology.

SCHOOLMASTER: One of the few good things he did!

DOCTOR: I would that his loyalty had been equal to his horse-sense!

SCHOOLMASTER: You've been telling me all along that Norwich never does things by halves, but how about the Union Bank and Trust company of New London.

DOCTOR: Well, what about it?

SCHOOLMASTER: In 1792, both Norwich and New London applied for a charter to start a bank. The legislature of that day would not consider two banks in one county. And they didn't dare give the charter to our town or the other, for fear of being accused of showing partiality.

DOCTOR: Why didn't they think of any-meeny-miny-mo?

SCHOOLMASTER: They found a better way than that! They induced New London and Norwich to merge their claims. New London was to have the bank location, but half of the board of directors were to be chosen from Norwich.

DOCTOR: A little one-sided for a perfect compromise.

SCHOOLMASTER: That was taken care of in the name, the Union Bank of New London and Norwich. The Union bank claims to have opened its doors earlier than the two other banks chartered in the same year, so it is probably the oldest bank in the state, and the fifth oldest in the country.

DOCTOR: How the times have changed! One bank in a county!

SCHOOLMASTER: They couldn't have managed with one tavern in a county!

DOCTOR: Hardly, or if they could have, they didn't try! But any Tom, Dick or Harry couldn't open a tavern in those days. He had to be a man of substance, with property, and of good repute.

SCHOOLMASTER: Yes, the colonial tavern-keeper was considered as a town officer.

DOCTOR: The first tavern-keeper we know of was Thomas Waterman. He didn't ask for the position, but the town voted that he be desired to keep an ordinary. As encouragement, the town granted him four acres of pasture land.

SCHOOLMASTER: How they did throw away the land!

DOCTOR: Yes, and they left it to him to find it! According to the records, the four acres were left to his selection, where he could conveniently find them about the valley, going from his house to the woods.

SCHOOLMASTER: How they did throw away the land!

DOCTOR: Yes, and they left it to him to find it! According to the records, the four acres were left to his selection, where he could conveniently find them about the valley, going from his house to the woods.

SCHOOLMASTER: Liberal enough!

DOCTOR: The most famous of the old taverns in Norwich was the old Leffingwell inn, which was known far and wide. It was opened in 1701 and was in continuous operation for a hundred years. At the north door of this inn, slave auctions were held long before the Revolution.

SCHOOLMASTER: There is something about the mention of a colonial inn that seems to make me hungry!

DOCTOR: Eating was a feature of the period. When taverns began to increase in number, they entered into competition with each other and the result was an endless stream of dinners and suppers and club-meetings and how they did eat!

SCHOOLMASTER: How many inns did Norwich have in their hey-day?

DOCTOR: Let's see whether I can name some of them. On Bean Hill, the tavern of Major Durkee rose to considerable fame.

SCHOOLMASTER: Appropriate location for an inn, Bean Hill!

DOCTOR: Down on the Plain were two that were greatly favored by travelers, the Lathrop inn and Peck's inn. On the Great Plain, Morgan's inn was noted for its accommodations. Down at the Landing, the two inns of Ebenezer Fitch and Jeremiah Harris had a reputation throughout the state.

SCHOOLMASTER: I could have enjoyed a meal at any one of those inns. Take a cold winter's night, with the wind and snow lashing at the windows, a fire roaring on the hearth, a table glimmering with pewter, serving-wenches busy between kitchen and guests, and afterward, the thumping of mugs in the tap-room, jovial company, talk of politics and the crops, and perhaps a snatch of a tune by the village fiddler.

DOCTOR: When you mentioned the Westminister catechism, you recalled to me the name of a Norwich man very few of our residents of today have ever heard.

SCHOOLMASTER: Who's that, doctor?

DOCTOR: Joseph Lemuel Chester. He was born in Norwich, in 1821. He spent a few years in journalism in Philadelphia. Then he went to London, England where he died years later.

SCHOOLMASTER: What was his work that entitles him to fame.

DOCTOR: An antiquarian. He made a life-time study of the genealogical history of New Englanders. He wrote several books, but his fame rests principally on his work: "Marriage, Baptismal and Burial Records of Collegiate Church, Westminister."

SCHOOLMASTER: Certainly a useful work, doctor!

DOCTOR: So useful, in fact, that his memory is perpetuated by a tablet in Westminster Abbey. A Norwich man, mind you!

SCHOOLMASTER: There is another man of Norwich very little known, I'll bet, but whose memory is perpetuated on every package of cigarettes, every box of cigars, every package of snuff.

DOCTOR: You've slipped a cog, haven't you, professor?

SCHOOLMASTER: No, I'm still hitting on all four. I'm thinking of David Ames Wells, the economist. He lived in Norwich for more than 20 years, he died here.

DOCTOR: I've heard the name, of course, but where does he connect with the tobacco business?

SCHOOLMASTER: His book: "Our Burden and Our Strength," written in 1864, helped to restore our national credit after the Civil war. As a result of the book, he was appointed chairman of a congressional commission to devise a revenue taxation system. David Ames Wells is the man who introduced the stamp system for taxes on tobacco and liquors.

DOCTOR: Well, well, I never knew that!

SCHOOLMASTER: No, it takes an outsider to tell these little points. He organized the Bureau of Statistics for the U. S. treasury. And he redrafted and perfected the internal revenue laws. So every time you break the seal on a package of cigarettes, think of David Ames Wells, citizen of Norwich, Connecticut.

DOCTOR: Did you ever hear of Senator Leland Sanford, of California?

SCHOOLMASTER: Why of course! Who hasn't? He founded Leland Sanford university in memory of a son. Both the Senator and Mrs. Sanford contributed property, an eighty-three thousand acre tract valued at eight millions of dollars.

DOCTOR: I see you know all about it. Well, I just want to remark that Mrs. Leland Sanford was a member of the Lathrop family of Norwich.

SCHOOLMASTER: I knew you had something like that up your sleeve.

DOCTOR: And I mustn't forget that one of the world's greatest physicians, a distinguished instructor and author, was born in Norwich, Dr. William Thompson Lusk.

SCHOOLMASTER: Yes, I've heard of his reputation, a prominent figure in his profession.

DOCTOR: Talking about figures, remember the bronze statue of John Winthrop? the one you were so struck with at New London?

SCHOOLMASTER: Yes, I remember!

DOCTOR: The man who made that statue made a number of works which are of national reputation. He began modeling and drawing when he was a youngster. Later, he attended the School of Fine Arts at Yale, studied under St. Gaudens, in New York, and under Chapin and Falquiere, in Paris. He took three medals and two prizes in the Ecole des Beaux Arts, in Paris.

SCHOOLMASTER: A Norwich man, of course, doctor?

DOCTOR: I'm not boasting, professor, but just to remind you that our city is also represented in art. Let me tell you the man's name, Bela Lyon Pratt, son of Norwich parents and a native of the Rose of New England.

SCHOOLMASTER: Well, doctor, here is where we part.

DOCTOR: I can't begin to tell you how much I've enjoyed your visit here, professor.

SCHOOLMASTER: Not any more than I have enjoyed it, doctor. Some day, I hope we will meet again.

DOCTOR: Why not? Some time or other, they all come back to Norwich for another look.

SCHOOLMASTER: I suppose I will, then. Good-bye, doctor, good-luck!

DOCTOR: I wish you the same, professor! Remember Norwich!

ANNOUNCER: We bid farewell, ladies and gentlemen, to the old Doctor and his old friend, the Schoolmaster, for the last time. This was the concluding program of the series sponsored by the Merchants bureau, Chamber of Commerce, Norwich, Connecticut, the "Rose of New England."

One again, we extend to the world an invitation to drop in on Norwich this summer. You will find, in Connecticut some of the best highways in the land, our accommodations are of the best, our hospitality the warmest. We welcome especially old residents of our state, and sons and daughters of old residents. HEALTH PROBLEM IS SOLVED FOR MANY

They Eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Daily

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is positively guaranteed to relieve and to prevent both temporary and recurring constipation. If it does not, money will be refunded.

The Army and Navy club will cross bats with the strong Cuban Stars at the Providence street grounds this afternoon at 3.15 p. m. This will, positively, be the only appearance of the Stars in this section this season as they are to make a tour of the middle states, starting next week.

The Army and Navy club have secured the services of Joe Jabalowsky, who was the star pitcher of the University of New Hampshire. Joe has been going good all season. He has pitched against some of the best college nines in New England and is reported to have a load of speed and fast breaking hooks. The rest of the team will consist of some of the local boys who are attending various colleges, Jarvis of Holy Cross, Lacroix and Greene of William and Marys, Tombari of Conn. Aggies, Paradise of Assumption and Yerrington of Springfield college, Lamory, Dugas, Finn, Raymond and Pepin will round out the team.

The Cubans have the pick of the winter league of Cuba with such stars as Oms, Chacon, Pedros and Big Dehigo. The fans are sure to receive a treat in these alone. Massip, the first baseman, who played here last year and one of the best seen here in the past and Oms, who has the reputation of being the fastest fielder ever seen in this section will be added attractions.

Don't miss this game because it will be one of the best to be played in this section this season.

The umpires will be Taft and Labarre.

LARGE CROWD EXPECTED AT BENEFIT GAME TODAY

The baseball fans of the city will be given an opportunity to witness a good game and at the same time help out a worthy cause this afternoon at the Academy campus. Two of the City league teams, the Polish Citizens and Italian Young Men's club will play an exhibition game and all money taken in will be contributed to the "kiddies beach fund." Later in the season the playground children of the city will be given an outing to Ocean Beach similar to that of 1929. The game is part of the local program in the observance of Child day, a day being observed throughout the country.

While the outcome of the game will not have any bearing on the city league standing the contest should be a hotly contested affair inasmuch as the contestants are anxious to make a good showing if nothing else.

The probable starting lineups of the two teams will be as follows:

BENTON OUTPITCHES VANCE IN 2 TO 1 DUEL

CINCINNATI, June 20.—(AP)— Larry Benton returned to the form that brought him fame two years ago today and bested Dazzy Vance in a pitching duel to give the Reds a 2 to 1 victory over the Brooklyn Robins.

Benton pitched shutout ball after giving three hits and a single run in the first inning and granted but two more blows. Only one runner reached third after the first inning. Cincinnati could do but little with Vance's pitching but Robin errors aided in the Red scoring. Two misplays came together in the sixth, preceeded by Stripps' bunt and followed by Kelly's double to produce both Cincinnati runs.

MALONE TURNS BACK BRAVES WITH 6 HITS

CHICAGO, June 20.—(AP)— Pat Malone turned Boston back with six hits today and the Cubs, aided by Woody English's and Kiki Cuyler's homers won, 7 to 3. The victory moved the National league champions to one and one-half games behind the leading Brooklyn Robins.

The Cubs got to Ben Cantwell early and amassed a safe lead in the first four innings. Wallie Berger, Brave outfielder, rattled off two home runs to bring his string to twenty and assume the league lead. The homers by Cuyler and English were their second in two days. Two other Boston hits were for extra bases, Maranville and Welch each getting a triple.

Scene: Somewhere on the banks of the Thames about 7:30 on June 20, 1930.

Characters: Betty and Clarence, seeing their first Yale-Harvard boat race.

Betty: "Now Clarence, you must tell me all about the race; you know I never saw one before. And I want to be able to tell the girls back home all about it."

Clarence: "That makes it unanimous, I never saw one either, so we'll tell each other."

Betty: "Which do you pick to win the race, Clarence?"

Clarence: "I think Yale should win from what I've read, so I'll pick Yale."

Betty: "Well, then I'll take Harvard, but I like blue; it's so much more becoming to me. Now, Clarence, go buy some feathers for our hats, that's a good boy."

Clarence: "Here's the feathers, Betty. Here's the red one for you and the blue one for me."

Betty: "Oh, Clarence, just let me try that blue feather on my dress. Oh, that goes so much better; I guess I'll pick Yale and you can have Harvard. Here's your red feather."

Clarence: "Oh, look, here come the crews. See them over there paddling this way?"

Betty: "Oh, what funny looking boats. They're so narrow and low down in the water. I thought they rowed in regular rowboats."

Clarence: "No, they call them shells."

Betty: "What kind of shells and why do they call them shells?"

Clarence: "Shells, that's all I know. Look, they're getting ready to go. Look, Yale's in the lead."

Betty: "I thought Yale was in a shell."

Clarence: "Oh, gosh, one of the Harvard men just caught a crab."

Betty: "Caught a crab? I thought they were racing, not fishing. Come on, Clarence, let's run along the bank so we can see them if they catch any more crabs."

Clarence: "For the love of Heaven, Betty, will you sit down? We haven't got a chance to run along with them. And Betty, you just sat down on a sandwich somebody threw away. Well, I guess Yale will win all right, they are leading by a good deal now. Let's go."

Betty: "What do you mean, go? Don't they came back around here again like they do at horse races? Well, can you beat that, and I thought we'd see the finish of the race."

Clarence: "Wait a few minutes now and we'll know who won. There, hear that, they say Yale won."

Betty: "There, didn't I tell you so. I knew which color feather to pick. Now I can tell the girls how I picked the winner."

Clarence: "Yes, you can."

PIRATES POUND FITZSIMMONS FOR WIN OVER GIANTS

PITTSBURGH, June 20.—(AP)— The Pirates turned the tables on the New York Giants in the second game of their series today as they blasted Fred Fitzsimmons from the mound with six runs in the sixth inning and won 8 to 4.

Adam Comorosky opened the big frame by hitting a home run to break a 2-2 tie. Pie Traynor did the big job when he hit a double with the bases full to drive in three more counters. George Grantham accounted for the first two Pirate runs with a pair of triples.

Ray Kremer pitched the entire game, allowing ten hits. Genewich and Pruett finished for the Giants after Fitzsimmons was driven out.

CARDS OPEN HOME STAND BY TROUNCING PHILLIES

ST. LOUIS, June 20.—(AP)—With a regular infield on duty for the first time in several weeks, the St. Louis Cardinals opened a long home stand by defeating Philadelphia here today, 7 to 5.

Frankie Frisch, out for nearly two weeks from injuries, was back at second base, but only one regular outfielder, Taylor Douthit, was doing duty.

Jim Lindsey, big Cardinal relief hurler, went to the aid of Grabowski and was credited with the win.

The game lasted two hours and 28 minutes, stopped frequently for arguments, one of which resulted in Manager Street of the Cardinals and Ray Blades being ordered from the field.

YOUNG STRIBLING KNOCKS OUT VON PORAT IN FIRST

CHICAGO, June 20—(AP)—W. L. (Young) Stribling, the ex-school boy from Georgia, fighting the surprise battle of his heavyweight career, knocked out Otto Von Porat, crushing puncher from Norway in the first round of a scheduled ten round bout in the Chicago stadium tonight.

Von Porat never before stretched on the floor for the count, was knocked out with a smashing left hook to the chin—the same left hand that Stribling said was injured while training for the match.

The sudden knockout stunned the crowd, estimated at 21,000, a new indoor record attendance for professional boxing in Chicago almost as much as that smashing punch stunned Von Porat. If there was any drug injected into Stribling's left hand, as he claimed there would be to deaden pain, he lost no time in transferring it to Von Porat's chin

ITALIAN CLUB WINS SLUGFEST FROM IDEAL TEAM IN CITY LEAGUE GAME

The boys who like their hitting in big doses had a Roman holiday Friday evening at the Academy campus in the Dusty league, as the Italian Young Men's club and the Ideal Service Station manufactured hits and runs in a manner that had the fans dizzy. When the smoke cleared, the Italians had a 17 to 9 victory under their belt. It was the first start in the league for each club and served warning on other teams that they will both make plenty of trouble.

Liberty Hits Homer

It was not a night for pitchers, although Lefty Lucier for the Italians and Bob Shaw, managed to last the distance. The Italians slammed out 17 hits and the opposition 12. Ten of the drives were doubles, one was a triple and Nap Liberty connected for a home run, driving the ball onto the Manual Training building. Gil Kampf and Ray Yerrington led the sluggers with three safeties apiece. Every one of the winners, except Dorsey, who had one, scored two runs. Lucier, leading pitcher of the circuit in 1929, was not himself last evening but with the aid of his heavy-sticking supporting cast, gained a victory.

Nine-Run Italian Rally

The Ideals scored four runs in the first but were overhauled in the second. Nothing daunted, they went right out and collected four in the third, making it 8 to 4, but the Italians put on a big nine-run splurge in the fourth and went out in front, 13 to 8. The Ideals collected one more in the sixth, bringing the score up to 13-9, but the Italian representatives made their margin more secure with another four-run total in the seventh.

By FRANK H. KING
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

HOYLAKE, Eng., June 20. — (AP)— Bobby Jones, scoring 291 and holding a two stroke lead over Leo Diegel, and MacDonald Smith, tied for second place, today won his third British open golf championship crown after one of the great battles of the golfing centuries.

Horton Smith and Fred Robson, veteran British pro, tied for fourth place with scores of 296 for the 72 holes of the championship competition. "Long Jim" Barnes, with 297, tied for sixth.

With the amateur title taken last month at St. Andrews, Jones has matched the feat of the famous Hoylake amateur, John Ball, who 40 years ago won the British amateur and open titles the same year. Ball was in Hoylake today but did

WESTERLY

COL. NASH MARSHAL ST. JOHN'S DAY PARADE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, June 20.—Col. Arthur N. Nash, past commander and master of ceremonies of Narragansett commandery, No. 27, K. T., of Westerly, will be the marshal of the St. John's Day Templar parade, Westerly Wed. evening. The Sir Knights will form, following a chicken dinner at the Grace M. E. church, at the armory of their asylum, 88 High street. Headed by the Westerly band, Charles O. Savitt, leader, the line of march will be as follows:

High street, Grove avenue, Granite street, Broad street, and West Broad street to Elm Tree Inn, countermarch through West Broad and Dixon square and High street, where the lines will dismiss and work in the temple will be conducted by Narragansett commandery officers, assisted by Em. Sir Frank S. Congdon, prelate of Calvary commandery, No. 13, K. T., of Providence. Other officers of the Providence commandery who will be in the Templar street parade will be Em. Sir Horace G. Belcher, commander; Sir Forrest E. Dean, generalissimo, and Sir Alpheus S. Place, captain-general, and Past Commander George E. Phillips.

For the second afternoon of the week a sudden thunderstorm broke over Westerly on Friday afternoon about 5 p. m., when, to the accompaniment of sharp flashes of lightning and peals of thunder, there was a downpour of rain. The rain caused many passing automobilists bound for New London and the Yale-Harvard boat races to slow down and proceed with more caution. Motorists on the Boston Post road from Westerly to New London reported more autos than ever before. There were many state police officers on duty patrolling the state highways to see that motor traffic laws were obeyed.

OBITUARY

Robert Drysdale

Shortly after 8 a. m., Friday, at the Margaret Edward Anderson hospital, occurred the death of Robert Drysdale in his 79th year. He was proprietor of a Westerly plumbing shop since 1886, and a resident of Norwich before coming to Westerly.

Mr. Drysdale was born at Kleuady, Scotland, on July 18, 1851, being the son of Robert and Eliza (Stevens) Drysdale. When a boy he came to this country with his parents and settled at Norwich in 1864.

In 1886 he came to Westerly and opened a plumbing establishment in Dixon House court. Mr. Drysdale retired from active business about 18 years ago.

He was a member of Franklin lodge, No. 20, F. and A. M., and Palmer chapter, No. 28, R. A. M., of Pawcatuck.

While a resident of Norwich, he was married in 1874 to Mary McCracken. She died in 1893. He later married Mrs. Ella J. Booth, of Westerly, who survives him. There are also four children, all by his first marriage, they being John Drysdale, of Atlanta, Ga.; Robert Drysdale, Jr., Mrs. Mary D. Lueck and Mrs. Isabel D. Bavier, all of Westerly. There are also a brother, David S. Drysdale, of Orange, Mass., and a sister, Mrs. Mary D. Chapman, of Westerly.

Many motor traffic violators of Rhode Island laws were before Judge Oliver H. Williams on Friday in the regular Third district court session. Oses Lallain, of Pawcatuck, pleaded guilty to operating an automobile not equipped with proper brakes on July 13 and was sentenced to pay a fine of $10 and costs.

Vernon Lee Scales, of Hopkinton, charged with operating an automobile without a license, told the court he had an expired Massachusetts license in his possession and had not had an opportunity to procure a Rhode Island license.

Judge Williams found the accused guilty as charged and sentenced him to pay a fine of $50 and costs, which he paid.

Three Hopkinton residents, Stanley Barscz, John Christ and Bolick Pianki, whose places were raided a week ago by Chief of Police Frank H. Brown, of Hopkinton, were arraigned before Judge Williams in the Third district court this morning on charges of illegal possession of liquor. Pleas of not guilty were entered by the trio through their counsel, Attorney M. Walter Flynn.

The cases were continued until next Friday.

On complaint of State Trooper Florance J. Harvey, who states that conditions of a parole have been violated, Elmer J. Fagan, aged 24 years, of Richmond, R. I., was charged with breaking and entering in the daytime the dwelling of Henry Whitford in Richmond, and larceny of $30 in banknotes belonging to Isabelle Frasier. A plea of not guilty was entered by the court for Fagan and on waiver of examination, he was adjudged probably guilty and bound over to the September session of the superior court for Washington county.

Graduation exercises of the West Broad Street grammar school in Pawcatuck were held on Thursday afternoon when among the awards made were those to the Peleg E. Barber essay writers as announced in Friday morning's Bulletin. The exercises were held for the February and June classes of the West Broad Street school. The exercises were held in the school assembly hall and were largely attended by relatives and friends of the graduates.

An athletic letter was awarded by the Stonington High School Athletic Association to Edward Collins for work done on the Stonington high school track team and was presented by Roy Savitt, manager of the team. This is the first award of its kind to be made in the athletic field.

Diplomas were awarded by Supt. W. R. Snyder, who this year retires as superintendent of the Stonington schools after a long period of devoted and faithful service. In his farewell remarks, Mr. Snyder stated he had awarded 1,174 diplomas to pupils graduating from the Stonington town schools.

As a preliminary in the drive of the Westerly Chamber of Commerce to secure a new Pawcatuck river bridge on the Broad street crossing of the Boston Post road, and at its request, on Friday morning representatives of the Automobile Association of America began the making of a three-day check up of all automobiles passing over the Pawcatuck river bridge. Checkers are stationed in one of the offices of the Briggs building at the corner of Broad and Main street.

YOUTH PLAYS AT LOVE AND LEARNS THAT EVEN A BLUNTED DART FROM CUPID'S BOW MAY PIERCE A VULNERABLE HEART

"I WANT that!" Jerry Marsh stood at one end of the stag line gazing eagerly at a lovely, slender blond girl in a green evening dress as he spoke. "That's delicious—she sure is a wow!" He turned to his nearest companion in line. "Who is she, Bill? Quick, tell me all!"

"You mean the little blonde over there dancing with Ted Sloan?"

"Right!"

"Oh, that's Joan Marston." Bill Heath grinned as he heard what the orchestra was playing. "There they go and here am I—broken-hearted," he hummed softly. "That's the answer!"

"Meaning she gave you the gate?" asked Jerry.

"Gate! Son, she gave me the whole fence, including the barbed wire." Bill shook his head. "That lovely femme must have Indian ancestors!"

"Scalp-hunter, eh?" remarked Jerry.

"You said it! Chief of the tribe, and I fear she found I was becoming slightly bald." Heath laughed rather ruefully.

"Personally, I think you're twins and both of them are liars!" said Jerry, starting out onto the floor. "I'm going to get a full confession with pictures!"

A touch on the shoulder of Ted Sloan, a word and Joan Marston slid into the arms of Jerry Marsh.

"Where've you been all my life?" demanded Jerry, gazing down into a pair of wistful big brown eyes.

"Why bring that up?" Joan studied the face of the good-looking dark-haired chap who danced beautifully and unconcernedly as he held her in his arms. "The question is, why didn't they tell me about you?"

"Be yourself, sweet child!" Jerry smiled. "You're among friends—do you know you're beautiful?"

"Don't be dusty!" Joan's soft red lips parted in a smile that revealed a row of pretty white teeth. "That line was used to drive horse cars way back in the dim ages before I was born!"

"Said ages certainly were dim if you weren't there," remarked Jerry. "I—oh!"

A hand on his shoulder, a voice saying "Cut" and Joan was swept away amid the many couples on the crowded floor of the country club.

JERRY moved slowly back to the stag line and sighed.

Bill Heath, also returning from having been cut in on, heard him and laughed.

"You show all the earmarks of sinking fast," he said. "Thought you were a woman-hater?"

"Sure I am!" Jerry smiled. "But that's no woman—that's an angel on shore leave!"

Jerry glanced out on the floor, observed that Joan had changed partners and proceeded to cut in again.

"Were you lonesome while I was away?" he asked calmly.

"Frightfully." Joan laughed. "But then parting is such sweet sorrow!"

"And with that you ring the bell on the horse car." He looked at her eagerly. "Have you seen our moon? I've had it shined up especially for delicious little blond morsels."

They were dancing close to one of the doors leading out onto the wide porch of the country club. "I insist upon a personally conducted tour of inspection."

Banteringly they strolled out across the porch and down onto the grounds of the club into the shadows.

A slender young moon threw a mantle of silver rays over the rolling hills about them. A soft breeze fanned their cheeks and whispered of youth and love and romance as it brought faintly to their ears the distant pulsating throbbing of jazz that was part of the rhythm of their souls.

"Oh, I wish you hadn't done that!" said Joan quietly, wistfully, as Jerry kissed her. "You men are such fools. Now you've spoiled something that might have been very beautiful!"

"Nothing could be as beautiful as you are," said Jerry gently. "I love you, Joan Marston!"

"I knew you'd say it!" There was an odd hint of sadness in Joan's smile. "But you don't mean it, Jerry Marsh. How could you? You have never even seen me before. It's just the night and that slender, fragile moon up there. Tomorrow you'll probably say. That little Marston girl? Oh, yes, I kissed her last night at the club; she's a heavy necker, all right.'"

"Oh, don't!" he protested. "That isn't true, you know it isn't! I don't play that way! You're so adorable—I just couldn't help it, that's all! But to say that I'm sorry would be sacrilege—you are so sweet."

"All right!" the glad, silvery laughter of youth. "Let's forget it ever happened!" Joan turned toward the clubhouse. "Come on, Jerry, I want to dance and dance!"

As they moved slowly up the steps, Joan turned to Jerry, her face a lovely, wistful white blur in the shadows.

"Oh, Jerry," she said softly. "I do like you lots—never let me hurt you."

"Be your age!" Jerry smiled and pressed her hand swiftly as they stepped once again upon the dance floor.

Scalp-hunter, Bill Heath had said, but Jerry was past believing that.

"I'll be seeing you," said Joan as some one swept her from his arms, and to Jerry the words were a promise.

He wandered slowly back again to the porch and stood there for an instant puffing on a cigarette, gazing at that fragile moon. He did not want to dance with any one else now. He had meant it—he did love her!

He finally dropped down on the grass beneath a big tree near the first green of the golf links. The shadows hid him as he sat there.

It was intermission now and there were many figures wandering about the grounds, nearly always in pairs, a man and a girl chatting gayly, faint laughter stealing to his ears. He stiffened as he spied a couple who approached a bench a short distance away from where he sat. Even in the pale light of the moon Jerry could see that they were Joan Marston and Ted Sloan. As they settled themselves comfortably Jerry could hear their words plainly. He felt rather guilty, but he did not move.

"YOU'RE so foolish, Ted," said Joan, evidently continuing a conversation. "I've told you that he doesn't mean a thing to me—won't you believe me?"

"Well, of course, if you say so, Joan," came Ted's voice. "But he thinks that he's a wonder with the fair stuff—he hands out an awful heavy line—and if the girl falls for it he brags about it afterward."

"So I've heard," said Joan. "Oh, I was very foolish, Ted—and I'm sorry now. I let him kiss me once tonight just because he seemed such a good egg!"

Jerry frowned. Talking about him, were they? Ted Sloan certainly was knocking him pretty strong. He'd always thought Ted was his friend.

"I'm sorry about that, too, infant," said Ted. "We've been pals a long time, you and I, and I hate to see you make any foolish breaks! He'll talk tomorrow—he always does. But not to me—he knows he'd get a good licking if he did."

"So the gang tell me," said John. "Listen, Ted, you say he thinks I'm a scalp-hunter? Well, all right; as far as that young man is concerned I'm going to be one! He needs a good lesson—I know that now—and little Joan is going to give it to him. Ted, do you think I'm pretty?" Her voice was wistful.

"None lovelier, Joan."

"Then I'm going to make that man like me," she laughed, "and he's going to be sorry afterward!"

"That's all right with me," Ted echoed her laughter. "I'm sorry—for him, that's all. One can't recover from liking you very easily, Joan!" He rose as the orchestra started. "Want to go in? This dance is taken, isn't it?"

"Yes, I have it with Johnny Golden."

JERRY'S face was drawn as he sat there and watched them go. It had been such a beautiful dream while it had lasted. He had not thought that Joan Marston was like that. Her lovely voice had seemed so hard, so ruthless. So she was going to make him like her and then find out what a fool he had been!

Ted had put it a bit thick. Jerry had never boasted of his conquests. There had been none of which to tell about; he had always been too much of a woman-hater for that. It hurt him to think that Ted, a fraternity brother of his, would knock him the way he had. They had always been such good friends. Had planned to run around together a good bit this summer now that they were both home for their vacation in Clearview, but now Jerry intended to leave Ted pretty much alone.

As for Joan Marston, he tried to tell himself that he did not love her now—it had been the glamour of the girl he had thought she was that had attracted him. So she was going to make him like her—and then make it hurt. Well, two could play at that game.

He moved back into the clubhouse. He stood in the doorway until he caught sight of Joan dancing with Golden, then he cut in.

"Oh, it's you," said Joan, smiling at him. "I thought you'd deserted me and I was just beginning to think the most awful things about you."

"How you wrong me!" Jerry grinned. "Oh, he could play the game her way! "I have been wandering about lost in blissful thoughts of you."

"I don't believe it, but say it again!"

"Well, I repeat you sure are delicious. How about a date—soon?"

"That's a beautiful brain-throb," said Joan. "When?"

"Shall I phone you in the morning?"

"Not in the morning," Joan smiled. "I'm going to try to catch up on some sleep." She looked at him. "How about dropping around tomorrow night about 9?"

"I'll be there!" said Jerry as some one cut in on him.

Joan smiled at him over the other man's shoulder and was gone in the crowd.

The next night Jerry went to Joan's aunt's house and found the girl waiting for him. They sat and talked for a while and finally went dashing off in Jerry's roadster. The evening proved delightful, and the boy had to stop and think more than once to make himself realize that, after all, Joan was only handing him a heavy line. He made no further attempts to kiss her and he finally left with the surprised sensation of having had a very lovely time. There was no doubt about it, Joan was very sweet—at times it seemed as though it must have been some other girl that she had heard talking out there on the club grounds. Yet that conversation lingered in his mind, and with it the desire to teach her the lesson that she had planned for him.

The evening dates and tennis in the afternoon increased as the summer wore on. Not more than one or two of them a week, for Joan was very popular with all the men in the gang that were home from college and her time was well occupied. Yet Jerry knew that she gave him more chances to be with her than she did any one else. In spite of himself, he found the idea gratifying. She was so attractive—and she played a mighty good game of tennis. He had always considered himself fair at the game, but he had to work hard to beat her.

Bill Heath, even though he said that Joan had crossed him off her list, had become a very frequent caller at her house, while Ted Sloan, Johnny Golden and the rest of the boys had developed the habit of dropping around often. Jerry wasn't pleased when they crashed his date—which they did frequently—even though he still felt that Joan was playing a game.

Finally there came a night when Jerry took Joan for a ride in his roadster. There had been many rides since that first date, many times that they had gone to the movies and to dances together, and once or twice to the spoken dramas and the musical comedies which had played Clearview's little theatre on tour. But this night was different, somehow, from all the rest.

A pale moon hung over the winding river. Jerry parked the car near a mossy bank by the river's edge and sat there staring at the rippling waters.

"It's been a sweet summer, hasn't it, Jerry?" said Joan as she sat beside him, her eyes also on the water. "You've been so nice, boy."

"It hasn't been hard to be nice to you, Joan," said Jerry quietly. He wished those words that she had said at the club did not still haunt him. He wanted to believe that she meant it now, but he did not dare; the fear of being hurt lingered. "You've been mighty dear."

"Jerry?"

"Yes, Joan?"

"Could you say what you said that first night at the club again—now?"

He turned and looked at her. She was gazing at him rather wistfully, a soft expression in her brown eyes. The old fear clutched him. "Scalp-hunter," his brain whispered. "She wants to make you say you love her, so that she can laugh at you."

"You mean, 'I love you'?"

"Yes, Jerry," she said softly.

"Well, I've said it!" he laughed harshly, bitterly. "I hope you're satisfied! Now go on, rub it in! Tell me what a heavy line you've been handing me all summer."

"Line?" She looked so hurt, if he had not heard her words that night at the club he would have believed that she did care. "What do you mean?"

"Just what I said." He had to let her know that he had realized the game she was playing. "I hear! what you said to Ted Sloan out on the club grounds that night. So you were sorry that I kissed you, were you? You were going to make me fall for you—and then be hurt when you gave me the gate. So it's all been part of the game—this summer of ours." He could not look at her now, for it did hurt more than he wanted her to know. "Well, I've been handing you just as much of a line as you have been giving me, Joan."

"Then you haven't meant all the nice things you said—the sweet things you've done for me?" Her voice was very low. "Is that it, Jerry?"

"Of course I haven't meant them, any more than you have meant being sweet to me." His voice was a little husky, for he realized that he had meant them so much, but he had to play the game her way. "It was all a part of the line, that's all."

"Please, Jerry, will you take me home?"

There was a note in her voice that hurt him, made him want to take her in his arms and tell her that nothing mattered save that he loved her, but his brain still whispered, "scalp-hunter."

He started the motor and they drove home very swiftly and silently. He looked at her once. She sat, a little silent figure staring straight ahead into the night, and he turned his eyes again to the road ahead.

"Good-by, Jerry," she said, getting swiftly out of the car as they drew up in front of her aunt's house, and before he could even answer she had rushed up the steps and into the house and closed the door.

HE FROWNED as he drove away. She acted as though she were hurt, that he did mean something to her, after all. He was worried now, and because he was he drove directly to Ted Sloan's house. He was going to have it out with Ted. The latter had appeared rather surprised at the way that Jerry had been avoiding him all summer. Very well, now he would tell him the reason why!

"Well, that little game that you and Joan planned at the club, went through all right," Jerry said as Ted greeted him.

"What little game?" asked Ted, apparently puzzled. "I don't get you?"

"Oh, you know, all right! I heard you tell Joan all about me; nice reputation you gave me, too. I'll say. I heard her planning to teach me a lesson—"

"Teach you a lesson?" demanded Ted.

"Yes, I heard her plan to make me fall for her and then give me the air. But she didn't get away with it. I told her that I knew all about it and that I was just handing her a line, too."

"Why, you poor fool!" exclaimed Ted. "Joan wasn't even talking about you! She meant Bill Heath. He had been doing a lot of bragging about how well he rated with her just because he kissed her once."

"Bill Heath?" demanded Jerry. "You mean that she planned to hand him an awful line?"

"Sure, that's why he's back in the fold." Ted grinned. "But she couldn't even go through with it with Bill. Joan's too darn square to play the game that way. I wouldn't blame her much. Heath's been doing a lot of talking all summer about what a scalp-hunter she is!" He frowned. "But he knows better than to say it to me; he'd get a good sock in the jaw if he did!"

"He said it to me," said Jerry, "and I was fool enough to believe him." He turned swiftly away. "I want to have a few words with him right now."

Ted laughed softly as he watched Jerry leap into the roadster. So that was the reason he had been so distant all summer. Well, he knew the truth now.

"I'm sorry for Bill," he said. "Jerry's words are going to be mostly action!"

An hour later Jerry rang the doorbell at Joan's aunt's house. He was insistent when Joan's aunt told him that the girl had gone to her room. Finally Joan appeared. There was a strained expression on her face as she came down the stairs and she looked as though she had been weeping.

"Jerry!" she gasped as she caught a good glimpse of his face in the light of the hall. "What happened?"

Jerry smiled a bit crookedly. One eye was black and he bore a gash on the side of his face.

"Oh, Joan, dearest," he said. "I've been such a fool, and I'm so sorry. I love you so!"

"Sorry you love me so?" asked Joan a bit doubtfully. "What do you mean?"

"All those foolish things I told you about handing you a line—I didn't mean it, Joan. I do care. Can't you forgive me for being such an idiot?"

"Jerry, you've been fighting," said Joan sternly, but her eyes were very tender.

"Yes," Jerry grinned. "Bill Heath said you were a scalp-hunter, so I licked him. Won't you forgive me, Joan?"

"Oh, Jerry, you're such a stupid idiot!" said Joan, and suddenly she was in his arms. "But darling!" she added adoringly, as he kissed her.

Prate to me not of your life-giving cereals,
Ready-cooked breakfast foods—"Oat Chips" and such,
Mode of bizarre unsuspected materials,
"Alfalfa Shavings" don't int'rest me much.
I don't eat food 'cause the magazines asservate
It contains ten vitamines to the gram,
Give me the grub you just taste to appreciate,
Odorous, luscious, delectable HAM!

HAM!—when the snow flies and cold winds are blowing!
HAM!—when the golf balls of summer are going.
HAM!—when I meet it I humbly salaam,
Nice and nutritious and Doubly delicious and Best of all dishes is—HAM!

CHEAP AND SERVICEABLE GARDEN SET

Social Corner Sisters: I have not written for some weeks and as the page looked so forgotten these last two weeks will try and fill a bit of space. I have made a garden set and will tell you how I did it. I used a crate that quart milk bottles come in, and made a table with a shelf mostly closed in. This was done by using some of the bottom slats for legs and shelf, I covered the top with table oilcloth that I had on hand. Other crates I made backs on with pieces taken from the bottom and made seats from an onion crate. I took out the bottom and crossed the side pieces and made a stool, painted them all green with some left over paint from another job, took burlap bags and filled them with hay (excelsior would do) and covered them with grain bags dyed orange with tintex for cushions and backs of seats. I have a discarded willow rocker that I added and have a very useful and comfortable set. The men often rest a few minutes on their way in from the fields when they are hot and tired. I put some magazines out there and the boys enjoy themself. I put the set in the orchard just back of the house where it is shady. The whole outfit cost 15 cents for a package of tintex.

I enjoy reading letters about gardens, have a perrenial border and spend all my spare time in it and then I can't keep up with it. Iris and peonies have been beautiful, but this rain spoiled them.

We had a good meeting yesterday with a wonderful dinner and good program. Time for Amos and Andy. Good-night.

MILKY WAY. (Club No. 6).

ENJOYABLE TIME WHEN CLUB 6 MET

Dear Editor and Sisters: We had a very pleasant meeting last Tuesday. There was not a very big crowd but there was plenty to eat and Ignatz gave us a fine dinner. Ravena had charge of the program which consisted of readings and contests. A surprise feature was two musical selections by Country Sister who brought her violin. We also had two baby visitors, one five months and the other a month and a half, and neither one cried while they were there. Perfect Corner members in the making. Ravena was appointed secretary to take E. L. M.'s place. The next meeting will probably be at the beach.

It seems as though every year we see some new pest we have never seen before. My experience with flowers has not been over large and what I don't know about bugs would fill a big box. As I sit writing this, I was looking at a bowl of roses in front of me and discovered the buds were alive with tiny green worms, not much larger than a thread. They have spun webs across some of the blossoms. I hate worms and, believe me, I shall never go to call on Omaha bee! Pernickety's garden must be lovely. I am going to try to make a perennial border this summer. Milky Way has iris and peonies that are lovely. I have some iris, peonies, and two or three other things to start with and Beers has promised me a lot more, if I ever get it started. If I could only remember everything I have read on the subject of perennials and borders I would be an expert. At the last Pomona meeting Dr. Ann Waite told us how to prepare the ground for a border but not what to put in it. I expect this damp foggy weather is ideal for transplanting.

Cosmos: We missed you Tuesday. Will try to sign the right name this time.

LADY SLIPPER'S GOOD IDEAS

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: Well here I am again after a long silence. There were so few letters in the Social Corner page the last two weeks that I thought it time I did my little bit.

My white oleander blossomed the 13th., and it was so pretty, but the rain last night spoiled the blossom. There are several more clusters that will be in bloom in a few days if they get enough sun. I have a pink one also but I nearly lost that by putting it outdoors too soon. It got frost bitten but it's got all new leaves and buds just beginning.

I have noticed that plants need plenty of air and grow better upstairs where there's no steam from cooking.

Here's how I have nice dry salt in my shakers this damp weather. I have a tray on table all the time for sugar dish, salt and pepper, mustard and toothpicks and it saves a lot of steps. I keep a towel folded in half making two thicknesses over the tray and it keeps the dampness out so we have no trouble with damp salt and sugar. The last towels I got were of a poplin cloth with colored stripes. This is my own idea. I also take small pieces of clean white cloth and, if its thin, I double it several times and put it around the top of the salt shakers with an elastic, taking care the elastic is good and tight, and they are ready to use at a minute's notice for the dining room.

One more of my own ideas, then I'll close and do some sewing.

I get white-headed thumb tacks 50 to a block for 5c., and use them to tack curtains under the edge of window sills and it keeps them from blowing against the screens and they last longer as well as keep clean longer. I use the white tacks because my curtains are white. There are the brass-headed ones for the ecru colored curtains.

Aunt Susie: I've finished that tatted portiere and have it up and like it very much but will let up on tatting for a while as it's bad for my eyes. I trust this finds you and your's in the best

LADY SLIPPER.

STILL BUSY WITH THE GARDEN.

Dear Social Corner: The middle of June? Where has the month gone so quickly? I hardly realized that it was here and now it is half gone—dear me—I really must get busier. There are all those annuals in the hotbed just crying to be set out and all the seedlings in the garden smothering to death and crying to be rescued from the weeds that are so ready to drive them out. O, there are a dozen and one things to be done in that garden of mine but when, O, when am I ever to get time to do them? For strawberry season is here and those berries must be picked and gotten ready for market whether anything else is done or not and my poor garden suffers as as well as other things.

My lilies, poor, little, struggling things, died after a hard struggle for existence in my pool. I rather think that it was too shady and that the water was too hard for them there. Just as an experiment I set two callas, pots and all into the pool instead of laying them on their sides to dry off as I usually do at this time of year. To my surprise buds have appeared on both of them and one is half open. Now I am wondering if they would have come if the callas had been laid down, or if they will bloom again every year if kept growing longer or if—their place wet, feet had anything to do with those fat buds.

Yesterday there were 36 oriental poppies in full bloom and today there are not half that many. The hot weather forces them to open quickly but then they go by quite as rapidly and one does not get the full enjoyment of them. I have three clumps and I expect to divide them this fall and reset them. I have a number of tiny plants in the wilderness of my seed bed.

My garden, Scottie, is in the northeastern part of the town of Sterling and the Rhode Island-Connecticut line is but a few feet from it. It is hidden from the road by a stone wall so you will have to keep your eyes wide open to see it. The hollyhocks will be peeping over a little later. I hope. I'd love to show you, or anyone else the garden but I warn you not to be disappointed in it for I see it through rose tinted glasses.

Try-Again: Sorry to hear that you are sick and hope that you are better soon. Did you see the blue and white lupine I sent mother? I have a large clump of it filled with bloom and I like it much better than pink or, the blue and brown.

Here is a question for you: What is a good name for my garden? I've thought and thunk and thinked till my thinker is nearly busted and I can't conjure up any name that fits it to my satisfaction. Can you help me out?

PERNICKETY.

MUCH THAT AMOUNTS TO LITTLE

Dear Social Corner Friends: It would seem from the scarcity of letters that most of us are suffering from that "tired feeling." I for one have been its victim for some weeks and find it harder to bear than a real pain is in cooler times. It does seem a pity for our page to be unfilled because so many look to it for a bit of amusement, help of various kinds and a general uplift. Therefore, there is much disappointment in eastern Connecticut and beyond as well when writers fall down on their job.

I don't seem to get pep enough to go abroad much but when the household duties are done I betake myself to my flower garden or read. I have had quite a donation of magazines recently, Literary Digest, Outlook and Independent Forum and so forth. While I found much interest in these I could but think what a blessing it would be if a lot of stuff that is being printed was tossed into the waste basket instead.

What possible good can one get from reading "The autobiography of an exthief" for instance? Could any young person get any benefit from learning just how a young man became expert in stealing fur coats and then squandered the money received for them on intoxicants and unworthy women? The details of his various imprisonments also had better never been printed. How fed up we are on that Digest poll on the 18th amendment. It is really disgusting. One can almost fancy that many of the editorials of the day are conceived in liquor and written to the accompaniment of liquor. One recalls Lowell's words:

"Truth forever on the scaffold, Wrong forever on the throne!"

The power of the printed word is mighty either for good or ill. I soon lose faith in any publicity that gives the public wet editorials. How easy it is to fathom the specieuaness of most of these editorials. Only the would-be blind could fail to see through them. Among the people I meet in my humble sphere I find few whose brains are so keen that they will bear the effects of liquor. Mediocre at best, befuddled by alcohol they are a public nuisance, far lower in companionship than a dog or cat. The pens wielded on the side of evil are never allowed to rust frim disuse but all too often those who would uphold righteousness allow theirs to be inactive. While evil is working unceasingly it behooves those on the opposing side to be equally active.

"Let us then be up and doing,
With a heart for any fate;
Still achieving, still pursuing,
Learn to labor and to wait."

Why be selfish? Why not open one's eyes to the wondrous beauty of the sentiment in Paul's words:

"Wherefore if meat make my brother to offend I will eat no flesh while the world standeth, lest I make my brother to offend."

PEN AND INK.

OUGHT TO KEEP PAGE FULL

Dear Social Corner Readers: Once more I will contribute a letter to our favorite page in The Bulletin. I thought I would give my pen a chance to cool. I have used it so often, and besides I thought it would be nice to give our new members a chance. Weren't we disappointed to see in last week's Social Corner page one-half given to a story? Can you imagine that? With our membership so large and with so many interesting writers, let us keep our page full and not fall back. Do as I do sometimes, when I have to sit and rest. I always have my pad and pen near and write a few minutes then get up and go on, and before I know it my letter is written.

I thank those who took such keen interest in sending magazines and pictures for the children in the hospital, but as I have a sufficient supply, I am asking the kind sisters not to send any more until I make another request.

A sister requests a recipe for New England Indian meal pudding, so will send it in as near as I can remember it.

New England meal pudding: One quart milk, two cups meal, one cup molasses, one cup chopped suet, one cup raisins, one cup chopped apple, a little salt, one teaspoon cinnamon, two eggs beaten. Mix well and bake until by trying with a knife, it appears clean. If I recollect the pudding is supposed to whey. I trust those who try this will be successful.

OMAHA BEE.

PLEASED WITH RECIPES AND SENDS MORE.

Dear Social Corner Editor and Members: I wish to thank the members for the many useful recipes that you have sent in.

Cosmos: Your sour cream pie is the best I have ever eaten.

Topsy: Your sour milk cake—"never fail" I call it—never fails to turn out well and never fails to disappear. I use Mrs. Moody's fudge frosting on mine. One cup sugar, ¼ cup cocoa (I use less), ¼ cup water, 2 tablespoons butter and boil one minute without stirring and then remove from fire and beat until thick.

Keziah Doolittle: Thanks for rhubarb pudding.

Here are two rhubarb recipes some might like to try:

Orange Marmalade: 1 lb. rhubarb (cut in inch pieces), 1 lb. sugar, 1 orange, juice and rind (put through meat chopper), 1 cup water; boil until thick.

Rhubarb and Raisins: 1 quart rhubarb cut in inch pieces, 1 cup raisins, ¾ cup sugar; put in layers in casserole and bake. I canned quite a bit cooked this year.

Aries: I beg your pardon. I was misinformed.

Rosary: No, I attended the Hollow school and still live in same town.

Pernickety: Enjoy your letters about flower gardens and all other garden letters.

I wonder if the Corner members aren't interested in vegetable gardens. I am. It took my parsnips five weeks to come up but now they are doing fine. I shall be eating peas by the time you are reading this.

I fear this letter is rather long. Hope all members are enjoying these beautiful June days.

WOODSIDE.

GRATEFUL FOR HELP DURING YEAR

Dear Cornerites: I wish to thank all those who so willingly helped during the past ten months that Club No. 2 met in Buckingham Memorial, on the company arrived about 1:30 we were all dressed in our very best lawn, dimity and muslin dresses (no silk ones then). Our braids were plaited extra smooth and tied with pink or white ribbons. You just bet we were proud of ourselves.

Soon the tap of the little bell on the teacher's desk announced the time to begin our exercises. As our names were called and the title given we walked proudly up the aisle and very carefully stepped to the center of our fern rug and delivered our recitation, or whatever we were called upon to do, cheerfully and never thought of being stage struck.

After our programme was finished we quietly sat in our seats, almost holding our breath, eagerly waiting to receive the long-looked for gift we were so sure of receiving from our dear teacher.

Every Friday night we received a small picture card for our weekly work. (I mean if we deserved it.) Then on the last day we received a very large embossed picture. Weren't we pleased? I'll say we were. Then for a surprise gift, the boys received something alike; also the girls. I still have some of my gifts. One is a lovely blue rose bowl, another is a book "Dewdrops and Diamonds." The teachers have both gone to their rest that gave us those remembrances. Another gift was the dearest little green-handled pen knife. Do you wonder we used our hankys just a bit shyly in back of the entry door when we had to say "good bye" to our teachers who took so much pains and were so patient with us? To be sure there were no "cats" but it seems to me in those days our "school-breaks" were almost sacred.

CLOTHING AND KITCHEN IDEAS

Dear Social Corner Members: When storing away winter clothes this spring I found that in order to place one garment only, in a bag, I needed 12 bags. The cost amounts to about 36 and that is only 35 cents per bag.

Instead of buying regular bags, I went over to my neighborhood tailor and for 25 cents purchased 24 of the paper bags tailors place over clothes they have cleaned. I used one bag with the closed end at the top, (of course the hanger is bushed through) and then over that I placed a bag with the closed end at the bottom, sprinkled moth crystals in bottom, and sealed with the transparent paper adhesive.

I hope this suggestion will help someone else.

When preparing a pineapple I twist out the top and cut the pineapple in disks with a sharp bread knife before peeling. I have noticed quite a number who peel the pineapple first which is hard to do.

What is a kitchen without a waste basket? I took a banana basket and some left-over printed material to cover the outside of the basket. On this I put a draw string around the top and bottom. Now I have a splendid waste basket under my sink, the cover of which can easily be taken off and washed. The inside can be lined with paper or oilcloth.

DORIS

POTATO YEAST.

Dear Corner Members and Editor: As our Corner page has looked rather slim the last three weeks I will try and do my bit. As I've been so busy packing, moving and trying to get settled I had my hands full and today, Sunday, I am trying to read two weeks' Corner pages and watch a happy little family on the veranda near my door. The mother has become so tame she almost eats out of my hand. I bring my birds out and she lights on first one cage and then the other. I have greatly enjoyed myself going to all clubs 1, 2, 4, 5, 6 this past winter and I hope it will be so I can some time in the future be able to give a picnic on the lawn.

All the sisters who have my name and address in their books will please change it from 22 Church street, Norwich, to R. F. D. 1, Plainfield, and all who pass by will be welcome to stop and rest in the shade. It seems more like living here to me than in the city. Am having radishes and lettuce out of the garden I planted myself.

Will some of the members tell me how to dispose of a wood-chuck which is trying to destroy my garden of beans, corn, cabbage and tomatoes? Have had a steel trap set in the hole nearly a week now.

Alvernon: I suppose you are so busy with digging clams, fishing and dyeing rags you simply don't get time to write. We have no telephone in yet.

Rosalind: Here is a very nice yeast from potatoes. It has been in the family a good many years and never failed yet.

Potato Yeast: Grate 4 or 5 large potatoes, add ½ cup sugar, ½ cup salt. Pour on 1 quart boiling water. When most cool add 1 cup yeast or (1 yeast cake), dissolved in not quite a half cup of warm water. Then set to raise in a warm place in quart jars, half full each. One cup of yeast goes as far as one yeast cake for bread. Save back one cupful to put into your next batch of yeast.

Canning Strawberries or Raspberries: Hull and wash and pack, fill jars as tightly as possible without crushing the fruit. Have ready a syrup made as follows: For each pint can use 1½ cups sugar to 3-4 cup cold water, bring to a boil and boil 2 minutes. Stand the fruit cans in 2 inches of hot water. Now fill cans with hot syrup until they run over. Put on covers, seal tightly. Dip in wax 3 inches deep. Cool, set away in dry place.

Hope sisters try these and find they prove as good as I have.

Best wishes to all.

ARTIFICIAL FLOWERS

THE CONSTANCY OF A LITTLE BIRD

Dear Editor and Social Cornerites: I am going to try and write about the constancy of a little bird as I remember it.

Some five or six years ago two little birds came to our yard. The kind I do not know, but they were so small with a little head, almost no body, with a small tail and wings which seemed joined to the neck. That is the way they looked. They were gray in color and oh so small. They came early in the spring to my piazza and commenced to build a nest in a clothes pin bag which hung at the end of the piazza. But the little male bird did not seem to like the bag for a home, and he scolded and scolded, and the next day they had changed from the bag to up in under the piazza on a beam. There was no more scolding. They both labored building another nest.

There is a pear tree close to the end of the piazza, and they took resting spells on some branches of the tree. Sitting side by side first one would sing and then the other.

They would look at each other admiringly. Each would fly away occasionally and the one remaining would call and call till the other returned.

Well, before the nest was completed, one morning early, the cat had caught Mrs. Lady bird. I went out and saw the tiniest little feathers on the ground and I was sick at heart. I knew what had happened. How I felt, but could do nothing. Well the male bird stayed up and called and called. He kept it up all the season. I thought I should go crazy. I felt so sorry for the dear little fellow left alone.

The next spring and the next and so on, and this last spring just the same, he came early. (I hear him from by bedroom window) as a robin sits in an apple tree and sings and sings, but never calls any more. No other bird has his song.

Does any body know what kind of a bird he is?

I suppose Thornton W. Burgess of the Radio Nature league, could tell, but I shall not trouble him.

And the cat? Do you think we destroyed her? No, never. She is one of the nicest cats, a wonderful hunter, pure white in color, but no tail. When she was a kitten she looked just like a little polar bear. Thus her name, Pola. She is very intelligent, and is seven years old this month.

The bird never comes to the pear tree or piazza after the first season of his sorrow.

Now goodbye for this time.

TURQUOISE (Club 4).

HAPPY HOUR GARDEN BLUES

Dear Social Corner: Last week my letter was about that popular blue flower, the delphinium. This time I am going to write about some other blue flowers. Find your autumn bulb catalogue and look for scilla or squill bulbs. There are two blue kinds and both are so lovely that it is hard to choose the best, so let us have both. I have mine set near the yellow crocus as they bloom at the same time and look delightful together.

Following the scillas in time of bloom come the muscari or grape hyacinths. These require no special care and increase rapidly. The regular hyacinth blooms about the same time but is not so dependable. Of course you have some blue and purple pansies and violas in bloom at this time. If you want a blue viola that all your friends will admire, try Jersey Gem. I raised my plants from seed and everyone thinks the flowers are wonderful.

And let's not forget the violets. I have some wild plants that bloom more freely than the English ones. I missed the forget-me-nots in my garden this spring. It was so dry last summer that the plants dried up. There were no seedlings so I had to beg some from Pernickety. Somewhere I read that forget-me-nots seed themselves only when in a moist spot.

The early dwarf iris is a mass of blue along the last of April. For an intermediate dark blue iris, try Black Prince. This will have blooms large flowers and in my garden blooms just before the common Florentina Alba. I don't know the names of all my German iris but I have a number of blues and purples to contrast with the yellow varieties. As these begin to fade, the Siberian iris comes into the picture with its small but intensely blue flowers. Japanese iris comes next and these may be had in lovely blue shades.

The month of May brings double columbines in dark blue and purple shades. Hardy verbena or blue vervane and spider lily are old time favorites that bloom in May. The pale blue flax is a dainty flower for garden effect but worthless for bouquets. Although bachelor buttons are not perennials, once planted and allowed to seed themselves, they are always with us. Some of this year's seedlings will live through the winter and bloom early next season. Plants from spring sown seed will furnish bloom late in the summer after the early ones have finished and black goldfinches like to feed on the seed of bachelor buttons? Don't they look pretty flying about the blue flowers?

It is now the middle of June and the delphiniums are coming into bloom. A little later come the bright blue flowers of veronica spicata or speedwell. Then from July to September we may enjoy our veronica longifolia subsessilis. This furnishes blue flowers while the delphiniums are budding for their fall blooming. Lupins bloom in June but you will have to ask Pernickety how to raise them. I planted some seed and my plants had a few blooms last year. They did not survive the winter but Pernickety has some handsome blue ones and is going to give me some seed.

The Chinese forget-me-not, heavenly blue petunia, larkspur and aster are some annuals that furnish blue flowers in late summer. You see I have plenty of blue in my garden throughout the season. But in looking through the catalogues I find many other blue flowering plants that I want to try. What are your favorites?

SISTER RHODY

LENGTHENING SKIRTS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Formerly only mothers with growing girls were concerned with skirt-lengthening problems. Now mothers are concerned with their own skirt lengths. Fashion says "longer skirts," and all women are thinking about it, more or less. That is if they wish to be smartly gowned and not go hard on the bank account at the same time.

A survey of the fashion shows flounces to the fore. And smart shops are showing some dresses with circular flounces of white or some colored material that harmonizes with the dress. And some have flounces of different material the same shade of the dress.

Flounces such as these can, in most cases, be put around the bottom of old dresses. By binding the edge of the flounces with the dress material it will look as if it were part of the dress pattern instead of the necessary addition it really is.

The bottoms of some evening gowns have wide ruffles of net or point d'esprit the same shade of the gown. Here again is inspiration for lengthening.

The ruffle or circular flounce can be shaped longer in the back to give that smart drooping effect. Or the ruffle can have long points. These ruffles are usually cut on the straight of the material thus making it easy to fashion an uneven hem-line.

Uneven hem-lines are well adapted for lengthening and adding fullness to skirts at the same time.

Divide the skirt in four parts, one coming each side of a front panel, and one each side of a back panel. Slit the skirt from the bottom to the hip-line, or waist-line, whichever best suits the figure. Into these slits insert v-shaped pieces of goods, cut longer than the skirt. Straight pieces can be used instead of the v-shaped ones, in that case narrow the pieces at the top with rows of shirring. Of material as that used for the insets, add a piece to the bottom of each panel portion to make them the required length. To have the inset pieces curved or in deep points will add much to the smart effect.

The most hopeless old dress can, with careful thought, a bit of patience, and willing fingers, nearly always be transformed into an up-to-date frock, as the following will show.

It was an old, straight two-piece dress of black crepe-backed satin. It had a front and a back panel hanging loosely from the hips in overskirt fashion. Not only was this dress a short one it was also badly worn at the wrists, the elbows, and under the arms, not to mention the soiled parts. Altogether it looked hopeless. Nevertheless an experiment was decided. One dollar was all that should be spent on it. Even that seemed more than the dress was worth. The think-box, not the cash-box, was to do the work.

The hem and all the seams were carefully ripped. An old safety razor blade proved excellent for this. It is a relief to know there is "something" those old blades are good for. Even throwing them away is a problem. However, should any of you try using them and they are the double edged blades, lay a match stick along one edge and bind it on with adhesive plaster. This gives a firm hold and prevents cut fingers. Or you can attach the blade firmly to a pencil or penholder by means of a wire run through the holes on the blade and fastened securely to the stick.

After ripping, the material was washed in lukewarm water and ivory cuds, and hung up to dry. The crepe side of the material looked like new, so it was chosen for the right side of the dress-to-be. The pieces were laid on an ironing board, satin side up and a damp muslin cloth was placed over them and pressed with a moderately hot iron until the muslin was quite dry.

There were six pieces in all. A back, a front, 2 sleeves, and two panels. The back piece was tackled first. An inch and a half was trimmed off at the neck, shoulders, and underarm; sort of lowering the pattren, as it were. This cut away the worn part under the arm. From neck to waist-line was measured, two inches more allowed for a bloused effect, and the piece was cut across, thus making a waist and a skirt part.

A skirt yoke five inches deep was cut from one of the panels. The yoke was in two parts, a front, and a back, seams coming at the sides to correspond with the waist and skirt seams. The bottom of the waist was gathered and eased to the yoke. The yoke was joined to the waist and the skirt with faggoting.

The front was taken next. The top was cut off to yoke depth, thus eliminating the worn underarm. A waist yoke was cut from the panel and faggoted to the front. The yoke was open at the center. Two tie-ends, also cut from the panel piece, were sewed to the openings. The tie opening made it easier to slip the dress over the head. The waist-line was marked off, and several inches allowed for blousing, just as it was done with the back. Only three inches were allowed at the center front gradually tapering to two inches at the underarm seam. The extra inch in front being for the take up of the bust. The piece was cut across, making a front waist and a skirt part. The bottom of the waist was gathered and faggoted to the skirt yoke.

The skirt front was cut in two at the middle, and a straight piece 14 inches wide, cut from the other panel, was inserted. This was laid in pleats and stitched in place to a depth of four inches, and the skirt section was faggoted to the yoke. Then shoulder and side seams were sewn up.

The torn part at the elbow and wrist of the sleeves was cut out and bands inserted with faggoting. By the way, this is an excellent way to patch worn elbows on any dress. You might call it a "glorified patch." It looks so like a smart trimming no one dreams it is a patch. Faggoting also answers an admirable purpose. It breaks the line of joining. If new material must be combined with the old, the difference between the two will then not be noticable at all.

The yoke added length to the skirt but as the dress was to be as long as possible, no hem was turned. Narrow blas bindings were made from the cuttings. With these the bottom of the skirt, the neck, and the sleeves were bound. A final pressing completed the job.

The pattern cost 45 cents. Embroidery floss for the faggoting 15 cents. A spool of sewing silk 20 cents. All in all an outlay of 80 cents. Not even the alloted dollar was used. A lovely new frock for it all!

Amly: The barrel of potatoes is started. Not one, but two of them. They have already been filled to the top with the successive layers of soil, and fine husky plants bursting into bloom are topping them. If the roots are doing as well as the tops, all will be well at harvest time. We also have a patch of potatoes planted in the ordinary way. They were planted fully three weeks before the barrels were started. Strange to say, those in the barrels are much further advanced and look finer in every way than those in the patch. Same sort of seeds were used in both places. At first everyone laughed at my barrel of potatoes. Now, however, all are keenly interested. It may prove to be "intensive" as well as "intentive" farming after all.

REPAIRING GOLD BANDED CHINA

Dear Social Corner Friends: So many women have china which is edged by a gold band that this suggestion may prove helpful to them. A year ago while washing my china for housecleaning I found nine or ten plates and saucers of varying sizes with a chip in the gold band around the edge. Although otherwise good, the gold caught the eye and made the dish seem unfit for use. The chips were small and were all at the extreme edge where it was very unlikely any food would ever touch them and it seems a waste to throw away one's best French china for such small defects.

I bought a small can of gold paint at a hardware store for about 25 cents. The container is in two parts, one containing a liquid and the other the gold powder. These are mixed just before being used. With this paint, I touched up the chipped places and found that to ordinary observation the place defied detection and the saucer or plate could be used again without apologies. After two years of the ordinary use that one's best china gets, the gold is just beginning to wear off and darken. This spring I will paint those spots and any others which have been chipped in the meanwhile, and will have my set of china practically complete again.

Perhaps some will like this salad:

Spanish Salad: One can grapefruit, 1 canned pimento (cut in strips), 4 ripe olives, mayonnaise and lettuce. Arrange segments of grapefruit on a bed of lettuce to form a star. Broadway Theatre

Adapted almost in its entirety from "The Ramblers," that riotous musical comedy which swayed New York for two full years, radio's newest hit "The Cuckoos," which opens today at the Broadway is literally the last word in screen entertainment. With a gigantic cast of over a thousand headed by that lunatic trio, Bert Wheeler, Bob Woolsey and Dorothy Lee of Rio Rita fame, and with that giant six-foot flapper, Jobyna Howland and Mitchell Lewis for good measure, with a singing and dancing chorus of over 200 lovely girls, tremendous scenic settings and cascades of beautiful technicolor, with ten tickling song hits, and such outrageous slapstick comedy as has never been filmed before, "Cuckoos" rates everything that a good picture should have. Woolsey and Wheeler are actually goofy in their hilarious comedy bits which follow one another with amazing rapidity, Mitchell Lewis is a roaring giant of a gypsy king with a yen for knife throwing, and with the hapless trio as his shivering victims, and Jobyna Howland as a lovesick jane of uncertain age it howlingly funny. There is a huge hotel setting in which two "nuts" utilize every room for their gags, a cabaret scene with ten orchestras and over a thousand guests, an actual gypsy colony of over 200 swarthy thieves and gyp artists, and a tremendous scene in "the hot place" with some of the cutest devils imaginable dancing in great tongues of actual flame! Differing from all other musical shows in that it actually tells a connected story with the music and dancing as a mere background, "The Cuckoos" is the greatest slapstick comedy production that has ever tickled the talking screen into hysterics. The additional attractions include the latest Paramount Sound news, showing Thursday's reception in New York to the Antarctic conqueror, Rear-Admiral Byrd, "Salt Water Ballads," a breath from old ocean, and other selected short subjects.

INTENTIONAL SECOND EXPOSURE

MARKET LOST ABOUT TWO-THIRDS OF THE ADVANCE OF THE PREVIOUS DAY

NEW YORK, June 20—(AP)— With July wheat down to a new low at 43 3-4 cents, speculative sentiment turned bearish on the stock exchange today.

After a brief continuation of the Thursday rally, based on the large decrease in brokers loans and the reserve bank rate reduction, prices broke sharply and the market lost about two thirds of yesterday's advance. A couple of minor rallies, one of them near the close, checked the descent and fina. prices were slightly above the day's lows. However, net losses in active shares ranged from 3 to 7 points.

There had been little expectation that the gains made on the Thursday rise would long hold in view of the absence of any improvement in the general business situation. The cut in the bank rate, followed today by a downward revision in time money to the lowest levels in 15 years, was generally seen as a stimulant to the bond market and as a signal that the banking authorities were working to facilitate business recovery.

Bonds made a prompt response to the exceedingly favorable developments in the money markets. Prime investment issues especially the United States governments and the first grade rails, moved up on a larger turnover.

Grain closed virtually at the bottom in the Chicago market. July finished at the low of the day for a set loss of 2 3-4 cents, other months showing declines of 2 1-8 and 2 1-2. Corn was less weak, yielding about a cent. Cotton was irregular, but closed at net advances of 50 to 90 cents a bale. Sugar was steady.

Stocks opened strong and the pivotal industrial and utility shares soon showed improvement of two to three points. Traders were quick to take profits on the rally and the reaction from the early highs found the short interest pounding away at U. S. Steel, American Can, General Electric and others. There was little support for the leaders and the list gave ground steadily until early afternoon when a small and short lived rally interrupted the decline. The bears soon regained the upper hand, and efforts to halt the movement in the late trading brought out renewed selling.

The week-end trade summaries pointed to the continued quietness of business. Bradstreet's said that several lines of industries were assuming "the appearances of mid-year slackness," continued liquidation in stocks, it added, had accentuated the lower trend in cities, while rural trade was affected by the easiness of farm produce prices. Dun's reported that "a decisive and general trade recovery plainly remains in abeyance, and the opening of summer, while it may be stimulating to certain lines, is calculated to have the usual influence of repressing most industrial activities."

U. S. Steel yielded readily when pressure was applied and broke to 157 3-8, closing at 158, or 3 points net lower. American Can came within 1 5-8 of its year's minimum, made on Wednesday, and was more than 5 points off at the close. American Telephone, making up its 2 1-4 point dividend at the opening price of 211, sold down to 204 3-4. The net decline was 2 5-8. Shares losing five to six points included New York Central, Johns Manville, North American, Standard Gas and Electric, Auburn Auto and A. M. Byers. Westinghouse lost 7. Union Pacific, American and Foreign power 4 and Electric Power and Light 4, and General Motors, Radio, General Electric, Standard Oil of N. J., Paramount and Warner Brothers 1 to 3. Allied Chemical had an extreme drop of 14 points recovering only moderately. J. I. Case closed 14 points lower and Eastman Kodak 12 3-4. Rails making new lows included Delaware and Hudson, Atlantic Coast Line, Great Northern Preferred and Kansas City Southern.

The loss in the weighted price index based on 90 leading stocks dropped 4.3 points against yesterday's advance of 7.3.

Foreign exchanges were firm. Most of the European rates advanced slightly, but the Spanish peseta dropped several points.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, June 20—(AP)—Fixed income bearing securities made a quick and strong response today to the reduction of the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate to the lowest point in history.

Under the leadership of United States governments which broke through the previous year's high prices, all grades of prime investment issues moved upward. Prime rail issues, showed the greatest vitality, as banks, life insurance companies and investment trusts displayed renewed interest in the yields available on high grade bonds at prevailing money rates.

The average showed that railroad bonds gained 4-10 of a point, representing the largest rise in a day's trading in several months. The rails now are 7-10 of a point under the year's high established in March.

The same firmness was demonstrated to a lesser degree among other domestic bonds. Many foreign issues responded to a better inquiry but more irregularity characterized the movement of this group than was evident in domestic bonds.

The rate reduction of the Federal Reserve rate to 2 1-2 per cent from 3 was seen as a measure designed to end the dormant state of the bond market, and to give assurance that the cheapest credit in many years probably would continue throughout the summer.

Also, following the rediscount rate reduction, adjustments were made in other sections of the money market. With time money, bankers acceptances and commercial paper quoted at lower levels.

Convertibles, sympathetic to the trend of the stock market were irregular, rallying at the start, then reacting, and gaining at the close, with a few exceptions.

New highs were reached by Canadian-Pacific 4s, Chesapeake-Ohio general 4 1-2s, Illinois Central (Louisville division) 3 1-2s, New York Central 4-1-2s, and Union Pacific 4s, gains among rails ranged from 1-4 to 1 point generally, and in some instances advances of 2 and 3 points were registered. Establishment of additional utility issues as legal investments for New York Savings banks was reflected in the trading but the gains were nominal.

All United States governments were marked up sharply to new 1930 highs, but only the Liberty 4th 4 1-4s and Treasury 3 3-8s of '43-'47 closed at the top.

NEW YORK, June 20—(AP)—Commercial failures in the United States during the week totaled 487, compared with 489 last week and 485 two weeks ago, R. G. Dun and Company reports. During the corresponding week last year 427 defaults were reported. Fewer insolvencies occurred this week than last week in the east and the Pacific coast, but these decreases were almost offset by higher totals for the south and west.

The Republic Steel corporation announced that approximately two-thirds of the new installations projected in the connection with the merger recently effected had been completed. The announcement said the most important of these developments included a new electric welding pipe mill, with a capacity of 30,000 tons in the Youngstown district, goes into operation this month and will cost about $5,000,000. In the same district remodeling of the open hearth department from 95 ton furnaces to 250 tons is underway at a cost of about $1,000,000. A new electric welding plant for thin wall tubing practically has been completed in the Warren division and the sheet mills at Massillon have been changed to the double mill system.

Cotton exports for the week were reported as 25,334 bales, compared with 49,767 last week and 80,121 for the like week last year. Exports so far this season total 6,587,578 bales, against 7,907,971 in the corresponding period in 1929.

(STERLING HILL)

The Ladies' Aid of Sterling Hill met in the vestry Tuesday afternoon and tied a comforter.

Benjamin Hall of Rockville, R. I., spent Sunday and Monday at his farm here.

School in the Wylie district closed last Friday with a picnic in a grove in Voluntown.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Tanner of Malden, Mass., and Mrs. Emma Wilcox were callers Monday at George Tanner's.

All are glad to learn that Miss Clara Frink is gaining in the Lawrence Memorial hospital in New London.

About 40 members of Ekonk grange attended the church service at the Ekonk Congregational church Sunday evening. Miss Lydia Hartig, pastor, opened the meeting with a song service and welcome to all, in which she emphasized the cooperation of church and grange for the good of the community. The sermon of the evening was by Rev. Charles A. Downs of Goodyear, chaplain of the Connecticut State grange, who spoke from the text, "Keep Thy Heart With All Diligence." During the service Miss Gilbert Randall san : "I'm a Pilgrim," in fine voice and Mrs. Charles Gibson and Byron Young sang a duet.

Many parents and friends of the Sterling Hill school pupils attended the Flag day exercises last Friday afternoon. A pageant, "The Making of the Flag," by all the pupils was given in a very fine and creditable manner. The display of the junior achievement work showed much talent. Mrs. Hilird is deserving of much praise for her painstaking work. She treated all to ice cream.

Miss Hartig entertained the 4-H Girls' club Friday at her home after school.

Russell Gallup attended the reception of the Willimantic State Normal school last Friday.

Here's our Answer to your Question

1 14,000 MILES over all kinds of roads . . . and the side wall is still free of cracks and spots. Never was a tire so age-free as Silvertowns, due to their special, long-lived, long-wear tread and sidewall rubber compound.

2 NO SIGNS HERE of cupping or uneven wear! Silvertowns have a dense, tough, slow-wearing tread that wears down slowly and evenly. Wonderfully makes the last bit of tread rubber wear as slowly as the first.

3 SEE THAT EDGE? Sharp and clean, even after enough service to satisfy any truckers. No question here of traction or anti-skid protection. That's why the Silvertowns used is known as the finest in the field.

Publicly Established Mileage Records Show You what Silvertowns can do on your car

LOOK at the picture above . . . study the captions just below it. See the condition of this Silvertown after 14,000 miles.

That's the answer to your question! That's the proof of what Silvertowns can do!

Not claims . . . not nice phrases . . . but facts. Facts that show you what your dollars buy!

This Silvertown is one of the 62 stock Silvertowns that toured the country with the Silver Fleet last year. It was photographed after 14,000 punishing miles.

And look at it! Know any other tire that looks as good after that much service?

That tire is just one of dozens we could have shown. You can get exactly this sort of service with Silvertowns on your car.

We have the blood brothers of this tire in stock right now. Ratings identical to it. Quote . . . see what price than. They cost less than you think . . and mile for mile, are the lowest priced tires you can buy. Yet . . we have your size! By all means see us for exceptional tire values.

RACE CROWD WELL HANDLED BY NEW LONDON POLICE DEPT.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 20—The Yale-Harvard races did not attract the attendance that previous races have attracted. That is the throng on the streets was not as great. The throng came here, if they were present by autos and by train and they did not tarry as they have in the years that are passed. The observation trains carried more than the usual number of cars, but there was accommodation for more passengers than occupied the on them. The number of yachts in the harbor was large but there was an absence of the big steamers and schooners that were conspicuous in former years. The Pierpont Morgan Corsair was conspicuous among the splendid craft. That steamer had anchorage directly opposite the union railway station and was admired by all who saw it. Along the immediate course there was a line of boats either side of the lane through which the racing shells passed. There was no accident of a serious nature during the day. All the arrangements for the contest were perfect and they were praised by those who were connected with the crews and by the throng who looked on.

The number of autos was of tremendous proportion. Every state in the Union almost was represented.

The crowd got away as soon after the race as they could leave and by 10 o'clock there was little evidence that the races had attracted thousands of strangers to the city. No robberies were reported to the police nor was there any report of pickpockets.

Every member of the police department was pressed into duty this afternoon and early evening in order to handle the crowd. Captain Charles A. Pinney had traffic officers on additional streets so as to rush the automobiles through with the least possible congestion. All of the motorcycle and automobile patrol officers were held at police headquarters or where they could be communicated with in the vent of an emergency.

At the union station a score of special agents of the New Haven railroad were on duty throughout the entire day.

Not an arrest was made by the New London police today, but at the Hotel Griswold, Eastern Point, several arrests were made because of the demonstrative conduct of the men and as a result they will be presented in the Groton town court next Monday or forfeit bonds by non-appearance. The men, for the most part were allegedly intoxicated and they not only caused a series of disturbances, but they were guilty of perpetrating considerable damage.

David Beebe, 149 Blydenberg avenue today reported to the police that his bicycle had been stolen. It is painted green and was stolen while the youth was at Green's harbor beach, Pequot avenue, earlier in the day.

Spencer Borden, Fall River, Mass., of the crew of the yacht "Sally," reported to the police this afternoon of the loss by theft of the boat's tender. The tender was stolen while moored at the Hotel Griswold pier last night. It is 12 feet in length, round bottom and has an outboard motor. The name, "Sally Ann," is on the stern of the tender.

Agnes C. Woods, 85 Union street, Rockville, this afternoon made complaint against a hit and run driver. Miss Woods said that while driving her automobile on Bank street, it was hit and damaged by the colliding auto and the driver instead of stopping to ascertain the extent of the damage he had caused, speeded away. Miss Woods, however, noted the markers which she gave as L-2932. This registration was taken out by Forrester L. Bruton, stationed at the submarine base. He was not found.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the suspension of the drivers' licenses of George C. Allen, No. 105 Crystal avenue and John P. Anderson, No. 51 Pequot avenue.

Auto Stolen

Frank Platt, 53 Windsor street, Cambridge, Mass., last night informed the New London police that his automobile had been stolen in the former place and requested that a lookout here be maintained for the auto for he was of the opinion that it was taken by Harvard students and that they would come to this city. No trace of the auto was found.

Thomas J. McCarthy, Norwich, was presented in the police court this morning, charged with two counts of violation of the state motor vehicle law, passing an automatic e danger signal and driving without having his license signed. On the first count a fine of $5 and costs was imposed and on the latter charge, McCarthy paid $3 and costs. He was arrested last night by Patrolman George Goldberg.

Charles Blount, colored and residing at 28 Hill street, was charged with breach of the peace and intoxication. The case was continued until the 28th inst. Blount went to his home last night. He had been drinking, was ugly, and started to abuse his wife. Mrs. Blount made complaint to the police. He was arrested by Patrolmen Harry Watterson and Dennis Murphy. Four cases of intoxication comprised the other business to claim the attention of the court. Three of the men were given suspension of judgment and the other, an old offender, was fined $5 and costs. He could not pay, so he went to jail.

In making the announcement Mr. Reeves said that Mr. Buell had been elected to the board in recognition of long and faithful service. He has been a teacher at the institute 39 years.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Another of those hilarious comedy dramas which movie fans have come to expect when Marie Dressler and Polly Moran play together in the same picture is now being presented at the Palace theatre. The title of this uproarious event is "Caught Short," a comedy of the great stock market crash of last fall. This picture comes to Norwich at a particularly significant time. We don't need to tell the reason why. The front pages of almost every newspaper in the country during the past few days have been screaming the news of another disastrous break in the market.

Whether you too were "caught short" or whether you weren't, whether you read the stock quotations or whether you don't know United States Steel from Death Valley Copper, Pfd, it doesn't make any difference. If you lost in the market crash you will want to come and learn how to be cheerful. If you didn't lose come anyway and take a lesson in what to do if by any chance your gilt-edged securities should ever take a nose dive.

It is screaming satire on human emotions. Rich man, poor man, beggar-man, thief, they were all "caught short" on that now famous "Black Thursday." What they did when they heard the news of the crash, how they reacted when they learned that their paper-profits were after all just paper is laughingly demonstrated in this wild and unrestrained panorama of human hopes and weaknesses.

But don't think that the picture is entirely clowning. Funny as Marie Dressler and Polly Moran are they don't take up the whole picture. After all their foolery is done there still remains room for a lovely stock-market romance featuring Anita Page and Charles Morton. In addition there are two fine songs in "Caught Short." One of these Miss Dressler sings. It is called "I'm Spanish Now." Imagine that one! The other song is "Somebody," and Charles Morton sings it.

This great feature is a show in itself, but to make a complete day of real entertainment there is a great program of added Vitaphone Varieties together with short subjects of merit, a show that the town will be talking about

FUNERALS

Dr. Paul F. Gadle

The funeral of Dr. Paul F. Gadle, whose death occurred suddenly Wednesday evening, was held Friday morning from his residence, No. 196 Central avenue, at 9:30 o'clock, followed by a solemn mass of requiem at 10 o'clock at St. Mary's Memorial church with Rev. John Boylan, of Long Island City, N. Y., a cousin, as celebrant, and Rev. John J. Reilly, deacon, and Rev. Terrence F. Finnegan sub-deacon. Rev. Arthur Sullivan was master of ceremonies and seated in the sanctuary were Rev. Henry F. Murphy and Rev. Edward J. Morrison, of Colchester. The musical portion of the mass was in charge of Mrs. Michael J. Farrell, church organist, and she was assisted in singing by Edward T. Connelly. Pie Jesu was sung at the offertory by Mr. Connelly and as a waiting hymn he rendered When Evening Comes. Chopin's Funeral March was played at the recessional. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery and Rev Father Boylan, assisted by Fathers Reilly, Finnegan, Murphy and Morrison, conducted the committal.

Honorary bearers were Drs. James J. Donahue, William T. Driscoll, Louis T. Cassidy, John W. Callahan, Kopland K. Markoff and George Thompson. The active bearers were Edward F. Gadle, of New York; Frank P. Murtha, of Melrose, Mass.; James J. Murtha, Frank E. Eggleton, William A. Pitcher and James P. Service. The high esteem in which Dr. Gadle was held was evidenced by the large attendance of mourners present at the services and the profusion of beautiful floral tributes and spiritual bouquets. Mourners were present from New London, New York, Springfield, Worcester, Boston, Melrose, Mass.; also delegations from the Norwich Medical association, White Cross council, Knights of Columbus, W. W. Backus Hospital Alumnae association, and the Public Health Nurses. Undertakers Hourigan Brothers were in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Leon Buzenski

Friday morning at 8:30 o'clock, the funeral of Leon Buzenski was held from his home on Sixth street, which was followed by a requiem high mass at the Divine Providence church on Golden street, at 9 o'clock. Rev. Father Miklasewski, of New London, and Rev. Father Lesniak, the pastor, were officers of the mass. Burial was in the family plot in Divine Providence cemetery, where Rev. Fathers Miklasewski and Lesniak conducted the committal services. The bearers were Joseph Wojtkowski, John Kraiewski, Raymond Mazurkewicz, Bronislaw Gesmonth, Albert Jablonski and Philip Sadzewicz. Mourners from out of town included many from Willimantic, New London, Mystic, Groton, East Thompson, Mass. The floral tributes were both numerous and beautiful.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Seddon of South B street have returned from New York, where they went to bid bon voyage to their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest G. Stranz and their little son Jackie, who sailed on the S. S. Europa for their home in London, England.

The Feast of Corpus Christi, the festival instituted in honor of the Blessed Sacrament, which occured on Thursday, is to be observed on Sunday at Sacred Heart church. If the weather is pleasant, an outdoor solemn procession, is to be held directly after the high mass of the day. In former years the procession moved to suitable places on Hunters avenue or Merchants avenue, but because of heavy traffic it has been deemed advisable to march south on Hunters avenue, entering the Providence street grounds on South B street where benediction of the Blessed Sacrament is to be given. The parochial societies are to take part in the service, which always draws a large congregation from out of town to witness this survival of an old continental custom.

NORWICH HAS QUIET NIGHT AFTER THE YALE-HARVARD BOAT RACE

Except for the heavy automobile traffic through the city Friday night, Norwich experienced little to indicate that the big college boat race had been going on within a few miles of the city.

In spite of the heavy motor traffic that was occasioned by the Yale-Harvard boat races not a single accident was reported nor was there a single infraction of the rules of the road here, according to police headquarters. The bulk of the traffic was seen here after the varsity race, between the hour of 8:30 and 9:30 o'clock, when 506 machines, by actual count, passed through Shetucket street, coming in from Water street and Laurel Hill avenue. On that street alone the average per minute was a little better than nine cars.

Among the long line of machines were many from the state of New York, New Jersey, Maine, Rhode Island and others, the two most distant cars coming from Oklahoma and Colorado. Practically all of them were decorated with Yale or Harvard banners or other insignia, the former predominating. Few of them stopped, as most kept on their way to make points, more or less distant before the night was over, as the boat race crowd no longer lingers over night here or in New London.

JUDGMENT FOR McCOOKS ENTERED IN COURT

Judgment in accordance with the decision of the supreme court of errors, which reversed a previous judgment by the superior court in which the right of the state to condemn certain land near the Seaside sanatorium in East Lyme was upheld, was filed by Judge Allyn L. Brown at the short calendar session of the superior court here Friday.

The suit was brought in the superior court some time ago by the state against John J. McCook, and others. The defendants contended that the special act of the state legislature which provided for the condemnation of the land in question was illegal because Governor Trumbull did not sign the bill until more than three days after it was passed. The superior court ruled that this did not invalidate the bill and the defendants took an appeal to the supreme court which reversed the finding of the superior court. The judgment entered Friday was in the nature of a formality adhered to by the superior court when its decisions are reversed by the supreme court.

Reich lists his assets at $40, which is the value of carpenters' tools, but these are exempt. WOMAN HELD FOR ASSAULT WITH INTENT TO KILL

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 20.—Mary Zemba, 55, is under arrest here tonight on a charge of assault with intent to kill. Mrs. Zemba, who is known in Putnam and Danielson but has no definite residence, was taken into custody late this afternoon by Sergeant A. J Sponcey as she was walking down Grove street in the direction of Danielson. The arrest of Mrs. Zemba ended a county-wide search which began at 3 o'clock this afternoon after, it is claimed, she had ambushed Mrs. Mary Zella of Park street, firing three shots at her while she was walking to her home along the railroad tracks of the Norwich and Worcester branch at a point near the city dumping grounds, on Killingly avenue. Two of the shots took effect, one grazing Mrs. Zella's neck and the second entering her hand between the thumb and forefinger.

Peter A. Gardner, city health officer, was at the dumping ground at the time of the shooting. His attention was attracted by the shot and, investigating, he found the wounded woman. She was taken to the Day Kimball hospital by Mr. Gardner, where she was given medical attention and discharged early this evening in an improved condition.

Mrs. Zemba escaped at the time of the shooting. State officers of Danielson barracks started a systematic search for her. After questioning Mrs. Zella, it was learned that Mrs. Zemba had some time ago placed some furniture in her custody for safe keeping. She agreed to pay Mrs. Zella for the storage.

A few days ago, Mrs. Zemba called at the Zella home on Park street and demanded her property. She was refused when unable to settle for the storage charge.

Leaping out of the brush, according to Mrs. Zella's story, Mrs. Zemba thrust the gun against Mrs. Zella's stomach and said, "I got you now." Stepping back about a distance of seven feet, she fired the shots in rapid succession. She denied being implicated in the affair when questioned at the police station following her arrest tonight, although Mrs. Zella identified her as the woman who shot her this afternoon.

JUDGEMENT FOR $53,646.25 FOR FRAUDULENT TRANSFER

In a suit in which fraudulent transfer of property at Lord's Point was alleged, Judge Allyn L. Brown of the superior court handed down judgment Friday for the plaintiff, Antonio Leo of Everett, Mass., for $53,646.25 against Antonio and Margaret Vito and Edward Vito, all of Thompson.

On Jan. 14, 1929, at Worcester, Mass., Antonio Leo obtained a judgment against Antonio Vito and Margaret Vito for $49,405.62 and at the time of the judgment the Vitoes were owners of property located at Lord's Point, namely lots numbers 59, 60, 64, 65, 66 and part of 67, with cottages thereon.

On Dec. 17, 1923, the court finds that the Vitoes with the intent to defraud, delay and hinder Leo in the collection and satisfaction of the judgment, conveyed the property at Lord's Point to Edward Vito.

AN INFORMATIVE LETTER BY HOOVER ON VETS RELIEF BILL

On the Eve of Vote In the Senate, President Hoover Writes Senator Watson of Facts Which Congress Should Consider — Bill Would Add $181,000,000 to Government Expenditures the First Year, Then Increase Annually Until It Would Mount to $400,000,000 Per Year—Calls Attention to the Fact That Legislation Proposed By the American Legion Calls For But $35,000,000 Per Annum—Passage of the Bill Before the Senate Would Entail Positive Increase of Taxation At Next Session of Congress.

WASHINGTON, June 22. — (AP) — President Hoover today announced unequivical opposition to the veterans relief measure to be voted upon tomorrow by the senate and already approved by the house.

In a letter to Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader, made public at the white house, the president quoted Secretary Mellon as stating the measure implies positive increase of taxation at the next session of congress."

Mr. Hoover said the government already had incurred a probable deficit next year due to relief of unemployment through the public building program.

The executive also enclosed a letter from Director Hines of the Veterans bureau asserting that the legislation to liberalize compensations to World war veterans creates "grave inequalities, injustices, and discriminations among veterans" and creates "future dangers to both the public and the veterans."

The presidential pronouncement was regarded as definite assurance of a veto of the veterans bill should it be sent to him by congress. Mr. Hoover's warning upset the program of congressional leaders for an adjournment this week.

The senate already has agreed to vote on the bill tomorrow and no hope was held out tonight of stopping the passage of the measure in the senate. However, house leaders have called a caucus for Tuesday night to determine a course on the veterans bill. Some would frame a new bill acceptable to the administration at once.

The president notified congress "we should either have a sound plan now, or should have more time for determination of national policy upon established principles in dealing with these questions for the future."

This sentence was regarded as notice to congress either to adopt a bill suitable to the administration, or to put the question over for future consideration.

Congress once this session overwhelmingly overrode a veto of the president on a Spanish war veterans bill but advocates of the pending veterans' relief measure were not so certain tonight of success on such a venture. A course will be adopted probably tomorrow in congress.

Mr. Hoover in his letter to Senator Watson declared the measure to be voted upon tomorrow by the senate would add $102,000,000 next year to the present annual expenditure of $811,000,000 for World war veterans by the government. He said the ultimate cost of the measure would be $375,000,000. The bill passed some months ago by the house was estimated as costing $181,000,000 next year and $400,000,000 ultimately.

The president further contended the legislation went far beyond anything proposed by the various veterans organizations. He said the American Legion had proposed a bill costing $35,000,000 annually and "thus these measures represent an implied increase in expenditure of from three to ten times what these veterans themselves would consider just."

"There are cases of veterans who are in need of help today who are suffering and to whom I earnestly wish to see generous treatment given," said the president, "but these situations do not reach anything like the dimensions of these measures.

"We have stretched government expenditures in the budget beginning July 1 to the utmost limit of our possible receipts, and have even incurred a probable deficit principally for the relief of unemployment through expansion of public construction. Every additional dollar of expenditure means an additional dollar in taxes. This is no time to increase the tax burden of the country. I recognize that such considerations would carry but little weight with our people were the needs of our veterans the issue, and were we dealing with sound measures; but as General Hines presents, there are conclusive reasons for opposing an unsound measure which is against the best interests of the veterans themselves and places and unjustified load upon the taxpayers at a time when every effort should be made to lighten it."

Asserting that the principles in both the house and senate bills "depart absolutely" from the original conception of assistance to World war veterans, General Hines said that "if we are to depart from the sound principles of payment of compensation for injury and disease resulting from war service, then it would appear to me that the real problem before us is whether the nation is going to assume responsibility for disabilities among the four and a half million veterans which originate as ordinary incidents of life."

Mr. Hines said one of the results of the legislation would be that men suffering with diseases not presumed to have been acquired in the service if developed prior to January 1, 1925, would have such diseases presumed to have been acquired in the service if they developed prior to January 1, 1930, and other men suffering with diseases which have not heretofore been afforded the benefit of any presumption by law would be presumed to have acquired their diseases in the service if they arose prior to January 1, 1930. He estimated that this provision alone would probably affect approximately 100,000 veterans not now in receipt of compensation benefits for these disabilities.

The medical council of the Veterans' bureau, he added, has reported the inclusion of the diseases contemplated by this provision is unsound medically and "it cannot be presumed that the diseases involved are the result of service during the World war.

"Therefore," the general said, "the theory upon which these benefits are extended is false." Holding it has always been the policy of the government to take care of veterans when they are overcome by permanent disabilities or age so they are unable to earn a support, General Hines pointed out that the veterans of the World war average now about 38 years of age.

"If it is claimed that the time has been reached when it is necessary to give consideration to the matter of a pension for this group of veterans, along the same lines that we have cared for veterans of other wars, then the policy should be based upon the fundamental principles of pension legislation adapted to what the nation can afford to do for the entire group of veterans who will eventually have to be cared for," General Hines said. "Most certainly we should distinguish clearly between those veterans whose injuries and disabilities were incurred in service and whose disabilities have been brought about by other causes after service.

"To approve a measure which will simply take care of 400,000 of these men under a presumption which we know is unsound, where their disabilities are not due to service, without extending to their comrades in the larger group the same measure of relief, is manifestly inequitable."

Another provision opposed by General Hines would give a cash allowance to men in hospitals not suffering from a service-connected disability and while they are in a hospital to also pay an allowance to their families and dependents. Pointing out that hospital facilities of the government are at this time inadequate to provide care for all veterans and that there is at all times a waiting list of veterans, the general said "we are faced with the proposed policy of paying the veteran fortunate enough to secure a hospital bed an allowance for himself and his dependents" without providing for the men who fail to obtain a bed."

Elimination of the question of inequality, even to the point where the bureau's peak of hospital load is expected, the general said, would, according to current estimates, indicate an ultimate need of 29,400 additional beds, the cost of construction of which would approximate $137,900,000 with an annual maintenance cost of $59,100,000.

He added that "even with all these provisions we would not have taken care of old age and many other fatalities that may happen to our World war veterans."

DEFICIT IN TREASURY OF $100,000,000 IDICATED FOR 1931

WASHINGTON, June 22.— (AP) — Secretary Mellon said today that a deficit in the treasury of $100,000,000 at the close of the fiscal year of 1931 is now indicated and that if the present reduced rate of income tax is made applicable to 1930 incomes, a deficit of $150,000,000 is likely.

In a letter to President Hoover upon the pending World war veterans' relief legislation, the secretary said receipts for the fiscal year of 1931 would be inadequate to support the additional burden estimated by the veterans' bureau at $100,000,000 for 1931, and $225,000,000 annually in ultimate cost.

"In fairness to the country," Mr. Mellon said, "I feel that congress should be informed that if expenditures are further increased now, taxes must be in December."

Secretary Mellon said his estimates are "predicated upon a not unhopeful attitude in respect of future business developments."

"The present state of business, he continued, must be accompanied by an inevitable reduction in government income and that the treasury was vitally interested in not closing the door to hope of continuing the tax reduction. He said he hoped conditions would improve so he could recommend to congress next December a continuation of the reduction.

Mr. Mellon called the attention of President Hoover to the fact that 2,095,000 persons would be affected if the tax reduction was not continued. This number of persons, he said, whose net income is less than $10,000, would have to pay approximately $23,000,000 more in taxes if the old rates were restored. Corporations also, he said, would be required to pay $90,000,000 more "at a time when the government should endeavor to relieve rather than to increase the burdens on industry."

The reduction for the calendar year 1929 of 1 per cent upon normal and corporation incomes cut approximately $80,000,000 from the incomes for the fiscal years of 1930 and 1931.

TO ATTEMPT HARNESS GULF STREAM FOR POWER STATION

MATAZAS, Cuba, June 22—(AP)—Within the next 24 hours, weather permitting, Professor Georges Claude, famous French scientist, will take the first step to test a device he has invented for harnessing the Gulf stream to a power station and converting the warmth of its waters into electrical energy.

Professor Claude has completed construction of a long tube that will extend out into the ocean and through it cold water will be pumped to condense the vapors of water superheated by vacuum.

The tube, which will stretch 5,400 feet, or more than a mile, into the Gulf stream, has been placed on wheels and will be rolled to the shore, then floated into position with the use of compressed air tanks late tonight or sometime tomorrow.

Professor Claude said he would know the success or failure of his invention within the next two weeks.

Police Have Solved The Slaying Of Lingle

James "Red" Forsythe Has Been Identified As the Man Who Shot Reporter.

CHICAGO, June 22.—(AP) — A source of the unified law enforcement agencies working on the Lingle murder case today was thrown into the intensive hunt for four fugitives in the belief that their arrest will solve the slaying of the Tribune reporter.

Chief among those sought was James "Red" Forsythe, who police said has been identified by witnesses as the man who shot Lingle to death in a Michigan avenue subway 13 days ago and then raced to freedom across the traffic-jammed boulevard.

The others are Frank Foster, to whose ownership police claim to have traced the short-nosed revolver which the killer discarded as he fled; Simon J. Gorman and Frankie Noon, associates of Forsythe.

The search for Forsythe confirmed rumors that authorities laid the murder to the Moran-Aiello gang. Within an hour of the slaying, Lieut. William Cusick and his squadron were dispatched to the organization's bailiwick by former Police Commissioner William Russell to corral all known gunmen.

Forsythe was one of the members of the Moran-Aiello gang taken last December in a raid on their Loop headquarters and is recognized by officials as a dangerous gunman despite the fact he is but 24 years old.

Authorities did not accuse Gorman, Noon or Foster of active participation in the murder, but insisted they could advance valuable information.

Detectives who traced the pistol said Foster had purchased it from a North Side hardware merchant a year ago. They believe he left the weapon behind when he deserted Moran and Aiello some time ago, and the killer recovered it. Following the slaying, they agree, the assassin tossed the revolver aside to throw suspicion on Foster.

Charles F. Rathbun, Tribune counsel who last week was appointed special prosecutor in the Lingle case, was indignant because the identities of the suspects had become known through a "leak in the police department."

He declared the revelation of developments in the investigation, meant to be strictly secret, would hamper the actions of the investigators.

BOY ROBBER ESCAPED FROM BOSTON CITY PRISON

BOSTON, June 22.—(AP)—A boy of 17, accused of stealing a revolver, of robbing one store, of trying to rob another and of shooting its owner, was arrested and tried to hang himself, and then escaped from City prison—all within 48 hours.

The boy, who said he was Frank J. Page of the Astoria district of New York, but who, police officials said, came from South Boston, stole the keys of the policeman stationed as a guard outside his cell last night. Then, biding his time, left his cell, apparently waited for a moment when the office of the prison was deserted, and slipped out into the street.

The police, resuming their hunt for the boy, said that they had records showing that, although young in years, he had been in trouble with the law since he was 10 years old.

One of the remarks the boy made, but to which the police gave little credence after his arrest yesterday, was:

"Make it a good story. Tell them I'm the guy that killed all those people in New York."

BISHOP CANNON SENDS REQUEST TO REP. TINKHAM

WASHINGTON, June 22—(AP)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., said in a statement today that Representative Tinkham, Republican, Massachusetts, had not said in his signed statement some of the things the Bay state member had stated in the House under congressional immunity relative to the churchman's handling of funds contributed for the anti-Smith campaign.

Tinkham recently accepted the challenge of the Methodist leader growing out of the investigation of the bishop by the senate lobby committee to repeat the things he said about the churchman on the house floor. In his statement today, Bishop Cannon said the acceptance was carefully worded and that it omitted several accusations made in the house.

Bishop Cannon challenged Tinkham to have several copies of his entire speech typewritten, signing them personally, then sending one to me and one to each of several other indicated persons, thus effectually disclaiming immunity for his entire speech as actually delivered."

Involuntary Flight Of Graf Zeppelin

Members of Landing Crew Climbed Aboard As the Dirigible Broke Away.

BERLIN, June 22.—(AP) —With her deserted commander pursuing her by airplane from Hamburg, the Graf Zeppelin this evening arrived safely at Staaken airfield after an eventful excursion to the great seaport.

Captain Ernst Lehmann and Captain Hans Von Schiller were through an accident left on the ground at Hamburg. They and 31 passengers had just landed from the airship, when under fierce heat, the Graf gained excessive buoyancy, broke loose and rapidly rose. Some of the landing crew clambered aboard, but the officers were unable to make it.

After cruising about vainly for half an hour, the subordinate navigating officer wirelessed that he was unable to make another landing for two officers and 45 passengers who hoped to make the trip back to Berlin.

Captain Lehmann and Captain Von Schiller were obliged to charter an airplane to fly back to Berlin and rejoin their errant airship. The Graf safely reached the Staaken airfield at 9 p. m.

The accident had no untoward consequences, barring the humorous pursuit of the airship by the Zeppelin's officers.

AVERAGED 140 MILES AN HOUR IN FLIGHT TO MEXICO CITY

MEXICO CITY, June 22.—(AP)—Rested from his long grind at piloting his airplane in the first non-stop flight from New York to Mexico City, Col. Roberto Fierro today went to Dolores cemetery here to place wreaths on the graves of three flyers who died pioneering air trails.

After paying this tribute to Pablo Sidar, and his companion, Lieutenant Carlos Rovirosa, killed in an attempted non-stop flight from here to Buenos Aires last May 11, and Captain Emilio Carranza, killed while attempting the flight Colonel Fierro made yesterday, he called on President Ortiz Rubio at Chapultepec castle. Reports say the president was greatly thrilled by Fierro's exploit.

The flyer granted newspapermen a short interview, in which he said he was tired, and glad to get away from the roar of his plane's motor. Examination of the plane today showed that there was only 15 gallons of gasoline left—enough for about half an hour's flight—when Fierro landed.

"From my departure from New York on, I encountered bad weather," said Colonel Fierro, in his interview. "Throughout the flight I was up against adverse winds, heavy rains, and constantly ran into banks of clouds. I expended more gasoline than I had foreseen, and a slight deviation from the direct route I had planned would have caused failure of the flight.

"The motor ran irregularly most of the way, and repairs evidently failed to reduce the gasoline consumption. I hope to make further alterations here that will reduce gasoline consumption." Fierro estimated that he flew 2,152 miles at an average speed of 140 miles an hour.

ALL-UNION CONGRESS OF THE COMMUNIST PARTY

MOSCOW, June 22.—(AP)—Delegates to the all-union congress of the communist party, scheduled to open here next Wednesday, today crowded the accommodations of the red capital.

Almost three thousand delegates, representing every nook and corner of the soviet union, will be assembled in the Kremlin palace for the start of what is regarded as one of the most important congresses the party has ever held. Nearly 100 different nationalities and races within the soviet union will be there, presenting an extraordinarily picturesque appearance in their colorful, variegated national dress.

Among the arrivals here are many women delegates — women having equal rights with men in soviet Russia.

The congress, which is the first held since Leon Trotzky's expulsion from the party more than two years ago, is expected to vindicate completely the policies and practices of Joseph Stalin, secretary-general of the central party committee, as Russia's "strong man." Stalin is generally credited with having saved the country from disaster last March by his famous manifesto calling a halt upon soviet village officials and party members in their excesses designed to hasten the collection of the peasantry on large state-controlled farms.

CONFLICTING REPORTS OF WARFARE IN CHINA

SHANGHAI, June 22—(AP)—While nationalist government armies locked with rebel Shansi and Kuominchun troops in Honan province in a new nationalist general offensive, conflicting claims of important victories on three fronts were made today by both nationalist and rebels.

Previous Hankow dispatches asserted Kuominchum forces north of Chumatien, Honan, on the Peiping-Hankow railroad, had attempted a surprise attack against the Nationalists, but were repulsed with 700 rebel officers and men killed, and 600 captured. The Nationalists also claimed capture of numerous horses and large quantities of ammunition.

Catholic missionary reports from Honan, however, failed to substantiate Nationalist claims of victory. Instead the missionaries stated, Kuominchun troops established a strong advancing line slightly north of Chumatien and were moving southward.

The rebel objective was the region of the sister cities of Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang in Hupeh province. Southern rebels recently menaced these cities in three great drives from the south.

THRONGS VISIT CLIFF FROM WHICH MAN THREW FAMILY

Demented War Veteran Hurled His Wife and Four Children to Death From West Rock, New Haven—Two Hours Later the Man, Richard C. Spang of Ansonia, Leaped to His Own Death—Spang Had Escaped From a U. S. Veterans' Hospital In the Bronx, N. Y.—Family Was On a Picnic to Celebrate His Home-Coming.

NEW HAVEN, June 22.—(AP)—Thousands of the morbidly curious today gazed in horror at towering West Rock from which Raymond C. Spang, demented World war veteran, yesterday pitched his wife and four children to their death and climaxed the tragedy two hours later by leaping after them.

In Ansonia, far removed from the blood-stained 410-foot cliff, the bodies of the victims lay today in a morgue while plans were made for their burial Tuesday morning.

The father and mother, Mrs. Gertrude Spang, 34, and the children, ranging in age from 3 to 12 years, will be laid to rest in a single simple funeral service.

Only a strict watch maintained by police today prevented the more daring of the crowds from making the precarious climb down the face of the rock to the narrow ledge on which Spang took refuge for two hours after hurling the last of his children to their horrible fate.

Thousands yesterday saw the man, plainly outlined against the dark brown surface, remove one shoe, cross himself and leap out into the air, to land at their feet. All the while, a fireman, lowered from the summit by a rope, was perched within a few feet of him, vainly attempting to reason the man out of his mad plan.

The crowds today came from all sections of the state, and looked in awe at this mountainous rock, long noted as a beauty spot in the city's park system.

It was this scenic attraction that Spang selected yesterday, a day after his escape from a United States veterans' hospital in the Bronx, N. Y., for a picnic to celebrate his home-coming.

No one saw him park his automobile; no one saw him lure his wife and children to the edge of the cliff, and no one saw him lift the first bewildered daughter high into the air and send her spinning to the jagged rocks below.

It was the agonized shrieks of the mother as she attempted to save her second child that brought to those below the first intimation of the tragedy. Looking up, they saw Spang hurl the child downward, then saw him push his wife off the edge of the precipice.

A moment later he cast the remaining two children down the cliff's side, but they landed on a ledge part way down. Spang followed them, picking his way from ledge to ledge, until he reached them. Seemingly caressing each child, the demented man hesitated a moment, and then flung them to the bottom of the declivity where the other bodies lay.

He continued to climb down to a point about 125 feet from the ground, and there he perched, mumbling and throwing stones at the fireman who had been lowered to rescue him. For two hours he sat there, a white shirt visible against the sandstone cliff, praying and muttering something about his children being changed into Negroes. Then he poised himself, and dramatically carried out his maniacal plan of self-destruction, to the horror of thousands attracted to the spot.

Spang was not regarded as a violent patient when he was admitted to the hospital in New York on May 1. After his escape, he left a train at New Rochelle, N. Y., hitch-hiked to Bridgeport and then boarded another train. At West Haven, he narrowly missed death when he jumped from it while it was traveling at a rate of 40 miles an hour.

Excursion tickets were found in the Spang home today, and it developed that his family was to accompany him to New York on his return to the hospital.

After his death-defying leap from the train, Spang went to the home of a friend in West Haven, where he had supper on Friday night.

The friend, Harry Nicholas, said that the veteran ate a hearty meal, spoke rationally of his experiences in the hospital, particularly about the fine food he had and the splendid view he enjoyed of the Hudson river from his window.

When Nicholas told that he was foolish to leave the institution, Spang replied that he wanted to see his family.

It was in the Nicholas home that he was joined with his wife that night. She was in high spirits, Nicholas said, when they went to their home in Ansonia.

Mrs. Spang was aware that her husband had escaped from the hospital, and it was understood that they planned to use the excursion tickets to return to the hospital today. It is believed that Spang acquiesced to the plan.

The picnic at West Rock was in celebration of their "reunion," and Spang borrowed an automobile for the occasion.

When the man was seized with his mad plan for destroying his family is unknown. No one will ever know if it was in his disordered mind when he left the hospital or whether he was gripped by his mania as he led them up the path to the summit of West Rock.

LEGAL TROUBLE OVER MIAMI'S BATHING BEAUTY PAGEANT

MIAMI, Fla., June 22.—(AP)—Miami's bathing beauty contest troubles are expected to start on the way toward solution tomorrow, when officials of the Bathing Beauty Pageant association open a two-fold, but formal, investigation into charges that prize winners of the contest held March 11 were illegally entered.

G. A. Trice, president of the association, declined tonight to comment on a suit for $10,000 filed yesterday against the city of Miami by the Seaboard Air Line Railway company for railway fares for participants in the contest. The suit disclosed that several contest entrants did not travel from the states they represented.

R. B. Brossier, Orlando, Fla., publisher, said he would appear before pageant officials tomorrow with Miss Margaret Ekdahl of Tampa, who as "Miss Florida," was awarded third prize in the contest.

Brossier said he would present affidavits at the meeting to the effect that Miss Janet Eastman, representing Texas, was ineligible to enter the contest, or to receive first prize as "Miss America" because she was married. He will present similar papers asserting that Miss Alberta McKellop, who carried off second prize, was not selected as "Miss California."

Trice said tonight that he expects officials of the pageant association to take formal action on Brossier's claim that Miss Ekdahl should be designated Miss America because of alleged ineligibility of the other two girls.

RAIN HELPS SUBDUE DISORDERS IN INDIA

BOMBAY, June 22—(AP)—Rain came to the assistance of the authorities today and prevented the holding of a procession planned by the Bombay provincial congress in sympathy with 17 members of the 18th Garhwal Rifles who were imprisoned for disobeying orders in a riot at Peshawar.

So continuous was the downpour that volunteers were sent out to beat drums and announce that the procession would be held some other day. Elaborate police arrangements had been made to block all exits from the Congress house to the main road, but they proved unnecessary. Later in the day the police were withdrawn, except for a small force stationed near the building, where a crowd had collected. A company of the East Lancashire regiment was kept ready for action at the nearest police station.

HOME TOWN WELCOMES REAR ADMIRAL BYRD

WINCHESTER, Va., June 22.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd came home today to Winchester, where he is known as "Dick."

His home town welcomed him in obvious contrast to the tumultuous affairs of New York, Washington and Richmond, with a celebration of the quietness and sacredness of home.

Open air thanksgiving services, "for the safe return of our heoric citizen, Admiral Byrd," a city resolution said, was the simple welcome.

He with his family, Mrs. Marie Ames Byrd of Boston, his wife, and Richard, Evelyn Byrd III, their son, and former Governor Harry Flood Byrd, Thomas B. Byrd, of Winchester, his mother, Mrs. Richard E. Byrd, Sr., and Mrs. H. F. Byrd, motored here this morning from Richmond, where last night the state at its capital city welcomed his return from the frozen wastes of the Antarctic.

They arrived at noon, home again after nearly two years that carried him to the southernmost ends of the earth and the aerial conquest of the south pole. At 3:30 he and his family attended the religious services in Handley high school stadium, conducted by Dr. F. T. McFaden of the Presbyterian church.

Virtually every citizen of Winchester was present to hear warm words of greeting from an improvised pulpit, and give thanks for the return of one of the most famous Virginians of his generation.

A dog owned by the dead couple died in the plane.

The plane left the Mathewson airport, Detroit at 3:30 p. m. The ship was owned by the dead couple. Aber had been hired by them to fly to Toledo.

CENTRAL VILLAGE

Miss Dorothy Bennett of Moosup has been visiting her aunt, Miss Minnie Bennett at Riverview farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Dean were in Putnam Thursday evening.

Many people in New England have visited Evergreen cemetery for the purpose of seeing the monument erected by Gurdon Cady. They will recall that on one side of it is the following inscription, "Mary J. Lee — Kind to Dumb Animals." Miss Lee passed away last evening at the home of friends in Putnam to which she went several weeks ago to be cared for. When a young girl she was taken into the family of the late Mr. and Mrs Gurdon Cady and for a long time the farm of Clarence Daggett was their home and Mrs. Cady passed away there. Miss Lee remained as housekeeper for Mr. Cady who built a new home nearer the village, but lived but a short time afterwards. Miss Lee remained in the home until she went to Putnam. True to the inscription, Mary, as she was known to young and old, was kind to dumb animals and none left her without a kind word, a gentle pat and a bit to eat. She was also a lover of flowers. The body was brought here to the undertaking rooms of F. W. Tillinghast and Sons. She was 90 years of age.

Miss Minnie Newport of Hartford is with relatives, called by the death of her step-mother, Mrs. William Newport.

DANIELSON

HUNDREDS PARTICIPATE IN CORPUS CHRISTI OBSERVANCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 22—There were several hundreds of participants today in the solemn, annual procession of the blessed sacrament in observance of the feast of Corpus Christi, and hundreds of others devoutly observed the stately procession of priests, societies and choirs of St. James' parish, following the high mass at the church.

From time out of memory this feast has been similarly observed in this parish, and those who have watched such processions for well over a generation were agreed today that this year's has rarely, if ever, been surpassed—in numbers participating and in the impressive spirituality of it all.

The procession moved out of the church immediately after the celebration of the high and final mass of the day, the congregation filling the church to above its seating capacity. As in other years, the procession moved along the frontage of the church property to a point near St. James' school, thence into the churchgrounds to a point in the rear of the convent where benediction was given at a beautifully decorated altar.

From this point the procession wended its way back to the church for the last benediction of the day.

OBITUARY

Nazaire Sabourin

Nazaire Sabourin, 48, died suddenly this morning about 8 o'clock at his home in Goodyear. He had been in poor health and subjects to attack of sudden illness for a considerable period of time. Mr. Sabourin was a native of Canada, a son of Mr. and Mrs Nazaire Sabourin, Sr., but had lived in this country for years.

In addition to his wife he leaves three sons, Wilfred, Arthur and Albert, and a daughter, Bertha, all of Goodyear. Also surviving are his mother, resident in Putnam, a sister, Mrs. Victor Scott, of that city, and three brothers, Wilfred of Northbridge, Mass., Jean Baptiste of North Grosvenordale and Delphis of Putnam.

It would appear from reports coming in today that this area was deluged more severely by rain in thunderstorms Saturday afternoon than were many other communities within a few miles. In some sections of the eastern part of the town dirt roads, especially on hills, were somewhat torn up by the fast rush of water during the height of the storms, which came in a series, and the same condition applies in some of the northern sections of the town of Plainfield.

Monday evening there is to be a meeting of the persons charged with the duty of disposing of tickets for the 1930 Chautauqua in Danielson, in early July. The meeting is scheduled at 7:30 in the community rooms of the Brooklyn Savings bank building. An effort is being made to procure the assistance in this effort of all who worked on ticket sales last year, and all others who may be interested in aiding in the work.

When Oliver W. Stewart, editor of a well known publication, talks at the Westfield Congregational church next Sunday evening his effort, it is announced, will have to do with meeting the challenge of the liquorites and supporting the enforcement plan of President Hoover. The meeting is to be an open one, with all interested persons invited.

Two weeks hence Miss Helen Cronin, Academy street, member of the faculty of Plainfield high school, will sail from New York on the Aquitania for a summer in Europe. Miss Cronin will join three of her classmates at Mt. St. Vincent college on the Hudson, and the mother of one of her friends for a continental tour that will take her into seven European nations, beginning with France, the port of debarkation being Cherbourg. Among other things that Miss Cronin looks forward to is attendance at the Passion play, at Oberammergau, Italy, Switzerland, Germany and England are included in her itinerary. Miss Cronin will return here in late August.

Next Sunday there will be an outpouring of members of Franco Canadian Foresters from Danielson and other parts of the town of Killingly and friends of the members for the annual outing, to be held this year at Savin Rock, near New Haven. Those who are to make the trip plan to attend mass in Willimantic, after their early start from here. Last year members of this organization and those who joined with them made a Sunday trip to Revere Beach, and had a wonderful outing. Those going on the proposed trip are to assemble at Davis park at 6:30 next Sunday.

Mrs. Joseph Natorski, wife of the owner of the Danielson inn, was reported as slightly improved this afternoon at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam and the prospect now appears to be favorable for her ultimate complete recovery. Mrs. Natorski was injured a week ago today when she fell from her husband's automobile near Scituate, R. I., when she opened a door of the car after someone had shouted that a car was on fire. In striking the highway she suffered a fracture at the base of the skull, and during the past week her condition has been regarded as serious.

The Westfield Congregational church will be represented at the annual Young People's conference this year by Ruth Albro, George Ingalls, Francis Ingraham, Harold Keech and Joy Waller. The conference is to open Tuesday at the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs.

Borough police anticipate that the usual advance celebration of the Fourth will start along toward the coming week end, and are consequently calling attention to the fixed regulations banning use of explosives excepting on the Fourth and after sunrise of that day. Probably there will be some violations. Borough police expect them. But they are giving due warning that those who would break the law will have little reason to complain if it is found necessary to make arrests. Local police are firm believers in the saying that "a good time should be had by all," but it must be had without breaking the law. That was the edict today.

County Game Warden Thomas Daniels was in town today and cruised the surrounding countryside, observing those persons engaged fishing and as to their observance of the law. Again one hears the warning that those who would fish for bass would do well to restrain their enthusiasm along this line until after the end of the month. Taking bass in June is a violation of the law.

A very considerable number of the members of Killingly grange were at Goodyear this morning to attend service at the Congregational church in that place in a body. It so happens that Rev. Charles A. Downs, the pastor, is chaplain of the Connecticut State grange and has designated today as Grange Sunday.

Monday morning, as previously announced the first sessions of the fifth annual Bible school will open here. The various classes will meet respectively at the Baptist, Methodist Episcopal and Congregational churches. There are to be daily sessions. The school will close July 3.

Arrangements are going forward for the annual outing of the hundreds of employes of Powdrell and Alexander, to be held at Rocky Point. These outings are arranged each year.

Vera C. Randall, 139 Center street, New Haven, went to the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam for a bit of attention Saturday afternoon, after her car had figured in an accident in Pomfret, near Cunningham's store, with another machine operated by Axel H. Anderson of 101 Union street, East Walpole, Mass. She received treatment for a cut on the right arm, and also complained of a strained back. She was able to leave the hospital to return to her home after a short time.

The accident, checked by State Officer George Martin of the Danielson barracks, was probably largely due to weather conditions prevailing at the time. It was raining, and when the car Miss Randall was driving hit a depression in the road the car skidded and bounced over into the Johnson machine. There were no arrests.

Heald in the borough court Saturday morning after pleading guilty to the charge of operating a motor vehicle without having an operator's license. Miss Staples was arrested by Officer Hill on June 8 and summoned to appear in court the following morning. She failed to show up, however, and an investigation revealed that she had given the officer a fictitious name. She gave her name at that time as Violet Patten and her age as 18. She also misinformed the officer concerning her street address. She told the judge Saturday morning that she was only 16 and had no excuse to offer for not appearing in court on June 9, the day on which she was supposed to answer the original summons for her appearance. A check-up through the Hartford state police office located the young woman at 28 Hazel street, Hartford, and she was given another summons and arrived with her father Saturday morning. Her fine and costs, amounting to $38.60, were paid by the father.

A large barn owned by Joseph Skalnik, situated on the Stafford-Monson highway just south of the Massachusetts state line, was struck by lightning during the heavy thunderstorm Thursday evening. The barn, with all its contents, was entirely destroyed. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

Stafford Springs was well represented at the Yale-Harvard boat race in New London Friday. Officers from the local state police assisted in directing traffic on the highways.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Fisk are occupying their cottage at Pleasant View Beach, Westerly, R. I.

Miss Mary L. Tebeau, of Ashland, Mass., a former teacher of Stafford high school, has just been given her LL.B. degree from Northeastern university, Boston. PUTNAM

MRS. ZEMBA TO BE EXAMINED AS TO SANITY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 22.—Mrs. Mary Zemba, about 55 years of age, was arraigned before Judge M. H. Geissler in city court Saturday morning on a charge of assault in which a deadly weapon was used. Upon the recommendation of Eric H. Johnson, prosecuting attorney, Judge Geissler granted an indefinite continuance of the case to enable physicians to examine and determine the extent of the woman's mental resources. Mrs. Zemba was then returned to a cell in the woman's section of the police station, where she had been since Friday evening, following her arrest by Sergt. A. J. Sponcey. Mrs. Zemba's features were drawn and her sickly condition, brought on because of lack of nourishment and sleep, was evident when she appeared in court. She was without counsel and showed little or no concern when the serious charge was made by Attorney Johnson.

Police learned today that the would-be assassin had slept out of doors about buildings in Putnam and Danielson and in open lots for several nights. She also said that she had been unable to secure food for a number of days and was at a point of exhaustion when she attacked Mrs. Mary Zella of Park street early Friday afternoon. Mrs. Zella, the victim, was in court. Her hand was bandaged at a spot where one of the three shots fired from a .22-calibre revolver had entered. Another wound in her neck where a bullet had grazed, was also dressed. She showed no ill effects and was not called upon to testify.

Sergeant Sponcey said this afternoon that it is probable that the case will be disposed of with Mrs. Zemba's commitment to the state hospital for insane at Norwich. This disposition will take place in a day or so, the officer said.

Badly Injured in Motorcycle Crash

Joseph Dymek of 552 West 39th street, New York city, is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital today as the result of an accident in which he was involved, which occurred shortly before noon on Main street today. Dymek's injuries consist of a possible fracture of the skull, a broken leg and lacerations of the body. He was rendered unconscious and had not regained his senses at a late hour this afternoon. Hospital officials reported his condition as serious.

Dymek was the operator of a motorcycle. He had refueled his vehicle at a filling station on lower Main street and was in the act of turning about in the street directly in front of the residence of Mayor Charles A. Richard. The front wheel of the machine skidded on the trolley rail and went into a loop. Dymek was hurled into a telephone pole as the motorcycle hit the curbstone. Sergt. A. J. Sponcey investigated and learned that the young man was driving to Woonsocket to visit with friends. A report of his plight was communicated to New York police by Sergeant Sponcey in an effort to reach relatives of the injured man.

PROVIDENCE MAN EXONERATED IN DEATH OF COMPANION

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 22.—A finding submitted by Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson to the prosecuting authorities in this city, Saturday morning, containing his views of the inquest into the accidental death of Antranik Karahainian, 28, effected the release of Haig Bayanderian, 24, of 170 Dodge street, Providence, driver of the motorcycle on which Karahainian was fatally injured Memorial day, when it crashed into a fence on Killingly avenue.

Bayanderian's exoneration from responsibility in connection with his companion's death followed 23 days after the date of the accident. Bayanderian was arrested by Patrolman Harry Wallen of the local police, after an investigation of the collision. A charge of reckless driving put against him at the time was changed to a technical charge of manslaughter when the injured passenger died two days after the mishap.

The failure of Haig Bedigan, 22, a passenger in the sidecar of the motorcycle and only eye witness to the crash, to answer a summons of Coroner Bill to testify at the inquest necessitated that Bayanderian remain in custody of police until such time as his associate saw fit to respond to the call of the coroner.

Bayanderian, without doubt, set up an unparalleled record for long-term incarceration at the local police station. He smashed all previous records after the second week at the lock-up.

When informed by Prosecuting Attorney Eric H. Johnson, yesterday morning, that he was free to leave at will, the young man burst into tears. After a few minutes in the preparation of his few belongings, Bayanderian bade the various officers of the police department farewell, thanked them for the innumerable courtesies they had shown him, and departed with an air of sorrow and thankfulness; sorrowful, he said, because the death of his friend occurred while in his presence and care, but thankful because the state had found beyond a reasonable doubt that he had not willfully nor carelessly committed the act that caused the unfortunate ending of the holiday ride.

The programme of commencement at Putnam high school terminated Friday evening at the state armory on Harris street, with the holding of the reception and dance of the class of 1930. The event was a brilliant affair and proved to be one of the most successful of the present social season. The large drill shed of the headquarters company was lled to its capacity at 8 o'clock, when the dancing couples glided about the hall to the tunes of popular melodies played by Bill Bernache and his orchestra of Northampton, Mass.

The grand march at 9:30 o'clock was the featured event of the evening. The procession was headed by John Stuart Sabin and Miss Helen Varbedian, class president and vice-president, respectively. More than 50 couples took part. The ladies were beautiful in evening gowns and the large majority of gentlemen, observing the formality of the occasion, appeared wearing white flannel trousers and blue coats. The uniform effect of their dress was most pleasing.

The patronesses were Mrs. Leon M. Farrin, Mrs. Edwin L. Robinson, Mrs. Abbie H. Keith, Mrs. John P. Sabin, Mrs. Alexander Varbedian and Mrs. Alexander LePire. The group reviewed the march from their seats at the east end of the hall, which were behind a picturesque setting of palms and blossoms. The decorations were beautiful. They consisted of garlands of crepe paper of green and gold—class colors—suspended from the ceiling in the form of a star. Sheets of the colored decorations were draped against the walls in panel effect.

WEDDING

Dean—Mellor

In a setting of palms, bright colored peonies and white blossoms, Miss Winnifred Hudson Mellor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard H. Mellor of 76 Grove street, became the bride of Elliott Dudley Dean, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Dean, of Mechanics street.

The ceremony was solemnized at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon at St. Philip's Episcopal church on Grove street, with Rev. Edwin P. Wright, rector of the church, officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, entered as the "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin" was being played by Mrs. Pierre H. Myers, church organist. Miss Mellor was attended by Miss Alice Halsall of New Bedford, Mass., as maid of honor and by Miss Geraldine Frost of Sunnyside and Miss Dorothy Ennis of Greenville, R. I., as bridesmaids. The best man was Milton Lipsett of New Bedford, Mass. The ushers were Leonard H. Mellor, Jr., George Kinsey of Greenville, Charles Finch of Springfield and Roland Morse of Hloyoke, Mass.

A gown of white moire cut in princess lines was worn by the bride, and her veil of white Irish lace was arranged in cap effect and formed a train. She carried an arm bouquet of white bridal roses. Her slippers were of white moire. The maid of honor wore a frock of lettuce green, with hat and slippers to match, and carried a bouquet of tea roses.

Miss Frost wore a peach-colored frock with hat and slippers of harmonizing shade. She carried an arm bouquet of pink gladiolas. Miss Ennis' costume consisted of a gown of blue, cut in lines similar to those of Miss Frost's dress, with a hat and slippers of blue, and carried a bouquet of pink gladiolas.

The double ring service was used. The mother of the bride was charming in a dress of black lace with a hat to match, and wore a corsage bouquet of pink roses. Mrs. Dean, mother of the groom, wore a gown of beige net with a matching hat and a corsage bouquet of sweet peas.

Following the church ceremony, the guests retired to the home of the bride where a wedding reception was given in honor of the couple. Mr. and Mrs. Dean are popular Putnam young people. Both are graduates of Putnam high school. Until a short time ago, Miss Mellor worked in the office of the Putnam Spinners, Inc., mill on Canal street, of which her father is superintendent. Mr. Dean is an assistant to his father, who is head of the Lowell Needle company of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Dean left early last evening on a wedding trip. Their destination was unannounced. Upon their return they will reside at the Dean home on Mechanics street. For her going-away outfit, Mrs. Dean was attired in an ensemble of blue with hat and slippers of matching color. She carried a blue coat, the collar and cuffs of which were trimmed with buttermole.

Daniel C. Durand of Bradley street underwent a surgical operation at the Newport Naval hospital in Newport, R. I., today.

Miss Alice N. Dalton of Leeds, Mass., spent Sunday the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Lester G. Herlihy of Grove street.

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Murphy, Miss Grace R. Murphy and Miss Mollie E. Noonan of Northampton, Mass., spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Bulger of Farrows street.

Saturday was the concluding night of the second annual fair of the Boy Scout troops of St. Mary's church. The affair was reported to have been a financial success. Proceeds derived will be devoted to the developing of the recently acquired summer camp of the organization located in North Woodstock.

The feast of Corpus Christi was observed today. This afternoon, at St. Mary's church, ceremonies in commemoration of the holy day were held. A procession in which the blessed sacrament was carried featured the impressive services. The march of the church societies, headed by mobile canopy, under which walked Rev. U. O. Bellerose, holding aloft the Sacrament, was throughout the principal streets in the north end of the city. An altar specially built at a pretty spot on Van Den Noort street was the scene of special services in honor of the significance of the day. Rev. Father Bellerose, assisted by Fathers Casey and Boileau, officiated. Hundreds lined the street to witness the open air religious spectacle, which was punctuated with great solemnity.

Additional encouraging reports concerning the condition of Edward Carpenter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Carpenter of Grove street, were had from the Day Kimball hospital this afternoon, where the boy remains a patient, suffering from burns received last week when a gasoline tank exploded in his face. Miss Nellie T. Bloxham, superintendent of the hospital, said this afternoon that the wounds of Carpenter are healing rapidly and favorably and that high hopes are held for the preservation of his eyesight.

UNION

The Poresty camp has been opened with Extension Forester J. A. Gibbs in charge. Last year the camp was located in Bigelow Valley, but this season it is on the southwest shore of Lake Mashapaug, near the spot where Major Smith ran a fishing and picnic resort for many years. There are a dozen or more young foresters in the student camp as it opens this year.

The graduation exercises of Union schools, which have already been reported for The Bulletin in the Stafford Springs news, brought several friends from other places. FLAMES CAUSE $20,000 LOSS TO WATCH HILL

Watch Hill was visited by one of the most stubborn fires in a large summer home with which its fire department has been called upon to fight in a number of years. After the Westerly and Miequamicut fire departments had arrived in full force the flames were brought under control but not until much of the roof and the fourth floor of the large wooden frame house were burned with a loss estimated at between $15,000 and $20,000 damage. The summer home was "The Cedars" the rebuilt some five year ago home at the corner of Ninigret and Atlantic avenues, Watch Hill, owned by Mrs. Samuel Rotan of Philadelphia and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Darlington and family of Pittsburgh. When fire broke out the family was out.

The tower at the front of the house, overlooking the East beach, was totally destroyed by the flames and the roof at the front was also eaten away. Tons of water were poured into the place and many valuable furnishings were ruined.

The servants reported that two electricians had been at work in the house and it was their supposition that the flames may have started from the electric wiring, but the exact cause remains a mystery.

When the first alarm was given Chief George W. Hoxie of Watch Hill was away and Assistant Reginald Peck had charge of the Watch Hill fire fighters until his arrival. Two special police officers were detailed to watch the home. Some of the more highly valued of the house contents were removed to a large automobile to a safer place. During the height of the fire a number of airplanes crossed the scene and a number swooped down and circled the house before proceeding in one plane was observed a news reel man grinding away. Yachts returning eastward from the races at New London came in close by east beach and the people on the yachts lined the decks to watch the fire fighters.

George C. Moore, president and general manager of the George C. Moore narrow fabric manufacturers of Westerly, and Henry L. Burdick, chairman of the traffic committee of the Westerly chamber of commerce, were in Providence on Saturday, attending a hearing of the interstate commerce commission on the question of discontinuing the operation of the Providence and Bay State lines from Providence to New York. The Colonial Navigation company had charged the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad with suppressing competition throught operation of its New England Steamship company, which controls the Providence and Bay State lines.

The Westerly town council may be called upon by the Westerly chamber of commerce to pass a resolution favoring the retention of the New Haven sound steamship lines.

The bridesmaids were Misses Susie Terranova, Mary Terranova, Rose Pellegrino and Vera Campbell. Misses Mary Capalbo and Helen Meringolo were flower girls, and Master Angelo Falco, brother of the bride, was ring bearer. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Frank Falco.

The wedding marches were played by Mrs. James McMahon, and during the service solos were sung by Miss Rose M. Bannon

The bride wore a gown of white satin, trimmed with Spanish lace and pearls. Her Spanish veil was caught with orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of white roses, lilies of the valley and baby breath.

The maid of honor wore pink georgette, with leghorn hat and silver slippers, and carried pink tea roses. The shepherd girl and bridesmaids were dressed alike in cocktail pink, with hats and shoes to match, and all carried cocktail roses. MUCH INTEREST IN KACEYS-FISH GAME

(Special to the Bulletin.)

Much interest is manifested in the game to be played Monday evening between the Kaceys and the Fisk team at Ashland park.

Manager Le Claire of the K. of C. has several new men appearing in his line-up, with selections to be made from Lee Raney, Roy Ritchie, Frank Polewaczik, Origene Gaillett at "Nap" Liberty. It is expected that Stanley Derda will do the mound work for the Rubbermen.

Thirty-eight members of Mt. Vernon lodge, No. 75, F. and A. M., Walter A. Field, Master, observed St. John's day Sunday by attending divine worship at the Methodist church. The musical program and floral decorations were especially attractive, with much admiration going to a large vase of blue and white Canterbury bells.

Following the invocation, in which he prayed that the homes might become the center of Christian influence, the sermon was by Rev. J. W. Carter, pastor of the church and chaplain of Mt. Vernon. From a theme which included his views, as touching the eternal life and the temporal existence, the speaker emphasized the importance of greater attention to the life which is unseen, but which will finally be of great avail.

There were solos by Mrs. Adam Siedick and Charles Helmboldt, on the violin, assisted in the instrumental music with Everett Thornton at the organ.

Diving Raft Launched.

The big diving raft at the Ashland beach has been launched, for the benefit of the hundreds of local people who, as the bathing season arrives, will benefit by the splendid privileges offered at this fine and safe resort.

P. W. Chase, welfare superintendent for the Ashland Cotton Co., makes the following statement, which is of much local interest:

Unless something unforseen happens the swimming lessons for the operatives' children of school age will start next week. Notices announcing the exact date will be posted in the various departments of the mill.

For the benefit of those who do not know of the swimming program which is carried out here each year we offer the following information.

For the past eight years free swimming instruction has been given the children of the operatives of the plant and during that time approximately 700 children have learned to swim right here at Ashland beach and in addition many grownups have also been taught this all important sport.

During the class hour your child will be taken care of and will be asked to do only that which is necessary to learn to swim. The children have a lot of fun and most of them learn quite readily. It is much better to let them learn under proper supervision than to allow them to sneak away by themselves which they are quite apt to do.

The learn to swim program is one of many of the Ashland club's contributions to the community.

Fisk Mill Closed.

For the first time in nine years the bell at the Fisk mill will not ring Monday morning, and the wheels will be still.

A check up and inventory of the entire plant, has proven its physical condition to be of the best. Thousands of dollars have been invested within four years for modern machinery and equipment which is practically new today.

Visitors here from New Bedford insurance underwriters and mechanical experts, have classed the local Ninigret plant, as one of the best equipped manufacturers in New England.

There is some rumor here today that the plant may change hands with resumption of operation in the not too distant future.

VETERANS' RELIEF LEGISLATION

It was inevitable that the relief measure which is being pushed through congress for the benefit of veterans should encounter opposition. When the president set forth sound reasons for opposing the Spanish war veterans' bill, it was made clear that he could not be expected to give his support to the liberalization of the World war veterans' compensations. It isn't that he does not believe certain legislation in this direction is justified, but because he recognizes that there is involved in this legislation a raid upon government funds which is not justified.

No better evidence of this could be asked than the fact that those veteran members of the national legislature who favor certain legislation are openly opposed to the present bill and unwilling that their names should be connected with it. If veterans themselves cannot support it, if they are unwilling to have it go through without opposing it, if they recognize that the legislation is grossly unfair, it furnishes convincing reason that it ought not to pass.

Further than that, there are uncontrovertible arguments set forth by General Hines of the veterans' bureau showing the bill goes far beyond necessities and in so doing creates injustices to the entire body of veterans. It means a discrimination among the veterans themselves and an injustice to the country. It means ultimately, that from three to ten times the amount called for by the veterans is going to be applied in this unjust distribution of funds, and while this is being done it means increasing the tax burdens of the country. Such an increase, if proper and deserved, would arouse less opposition, but when it involves injustice and discrimination it should not be tolerated.

Everything points to the fact that this legislation, this great pork barrel, is getting support from those who are back of it for political reasons. They have the coming election in mind and the natural implication is that they regard the bill as insuring a certain substantial vote next November. It ought not to be expected that national law-makers would go governed by any such consideration, but they will have difficulty in explaining it away if it is passed.

It isn't to be expected that the president will announce in advance that he is going to veto the measure. In view of what he has learned concerning the bill and the defects he has pointed out it is impossible to see how he could do otherwise. He has pointed out the situation to a body which has been anything but friendly to presidential advice. How the senate, which is to vote today upon the bill, can do otherwise than give heed to the disclosed conditions, insist upon immediate corrections or defer the legislation to such a time when a bill can be drafted that will meet the veterans' needs, rather than the election-day interests of the members of congress, is difficult to understand. Even the house must understand the wrong position in which it has placed itself by approving the bill.

NACNIDER'S CONFIRMATION

While Senator Brookhart of Iowa apparently thought that he would be able to block confirmation of the appointment of Hanford MacNider as minister to Canada, through the senatorial courtesy rule, he found to his surprise that even the senate did not stand with him. Confirmation came despite his protest. Approval came without a record vote, even though he did his utmost to prevent it. It might not be correct to say that MacNider stands better with the senate than he does, but certainly the senate was unwilling to stultify itself by allowing itself to be led around by Brookhart's personal quarrel.

Brookhart's protest was based upon a political squabble of several years' standing. It was a contest in which MacNider was victorious. It was occasioned, not by irregularity upon the part of the former American Legion commander, but by the irregularity of Brookhart himself. When Brookhart thought he could play loose and fast under the republican standard, MacNider was one of those from Iowa who strenuously opposed him. This opposition was such that Brookhart was denied his seat in the senate at the time. It wasn't enough to cause him to reform his conduct in that respect, but he was made to experience the sting of his acts. That he shouldn't forget it is natural, but when he sought to have the senate take the same view as he did, he encountered no success. Even the democrats would not give him a bit of encouragement. The fact is, that the democratic senator from Iowa, Senator Steck, was the one to deny the charges that Brookhart made against MacNider and the views of the democratic senator were upheld by democrats and republicans. Even his insurgent comrades didn't stand by him.

Thus, it is apparent that Brookhart in his helpless position would have done more credit to himself had he shown a more discreet attitude, swallowed his personal animosity and allowed the appointment to go through without protest and opposition.

President Hoover named Hanford MacNider because he believed him capable in every respect to administer the duties of the responsible post at Ottawa. The senate has not given full endorsement to all of the president's nominations, even though they included upstanding men of ability and integrity, but it could not and would not follow the lead which Senator Brookhart urged upon it, all of which is to the credit of the senate. On the other hand, it must stand as a stinging rebuke to the Iowa senator.

NEW HAVEN'S HORRIBLE TRAGEDY

No one could read of that horrible tragedy at New Haven, where a demented father, who escaped from an institution where he was being treated for his trouble, threw his wife, children and himself off a 400-foot cliff to death. So determined was he in his purpose, that he even climbed part way down the cliff in order to get two of the children, who had landed on ledges, and throw them down the remaining distance.

There have been other instances where heads of families have been quite as thorough in their destruction. Those bent upon such a purpose adopt different methods, but in the New Haven tragedy it doesn't appear that as effective measures of prevention as were called for were taken.

This parent was known to be in a serious condition, his malady making him a most dangerous type to be at large. It may not be that the institution occupied the same position as a criminal insane hospital, for the man had not committed any crime, and was not committed because of any acts but for purposes of treatment. Nevertheless, the fact that the disease was known to make him a dangerous person to have at large should have been sufficient to have established more effective means of preventing his escape. On the other hand, after he had gotten away, the greatest efforts should have been made to apprehend him before he had a chance to harm anyone, and that doesn't appear to have been done.

Let it be admitted that it wasn't suspected that he would commit any such crime, nevertheless, there was no telling what might happen with him at large and, for the protection of his family and the public at large, his freedom should have been the cause for the most active search. As it was, his family knew nothing of his escape. They regarded his home-coming solely as a visit, and apparently believed that he was improved and his presence would not be a menace.

It is one of those instances which shows how seriously and needlessly the public can be menaced by the dangerous insane who are not surrounded with sufficient restraint. It likewise calls attention to the inadequate steps which are taken or provided for in apprehending such individuals when they do make their escape. The policy of saying nothing or doing little brings just such results.

HELPLESS NEW YORK

In the last mayoralty election in New York city there was no expectation that the newly-chosen officials would proceed immediately to boost their own salaries. Yet that is what took place. The mayor was included in the list and gave his approval and the plan was pronounced a legal procedure.

That was only a few months ago and yet, in the past week, another salary grab for the benefit of other officials has been put through, involving a half million dollars. It brought forth a strong protest when it became known that such a move was underway. Citizens and organizations representing them presented their objections. They were heard, but they got no consideration. The necessary approval for such a raid upon the city treasury at a time when such a move was in no way justified was secured and the people of New York are finding out once more that they are helpless in the grasp of the Tammany control of that city. They are recognizing that Tammany must be repaid and maintained. The city must make good that organization's promises and pay its political debts.

Some of those who are raising their voice against this method of dealing with the city's money are numbered among those who had an important part in making the present city government possible. They knew what had been going on. They understood what Tammany influence meant. They had reason to expect no more than what is taking place. Nevertheless, they were among the advocates for the reelection of Mayor Walker and the ticket which he headed. They made it possible for the doing of those things which are now being ineffectively protested.

The time for the correction or prevention of such conditions was when the selection of a different city government was possible. It was then the time for New York to rise to its responsibilities. It failed to do so. It gave endorsement to what had been going on in the past and furnished free rein for what has transpired since election. New York is getting the chance to realize that it is getting what it ordered on election day. It is a repetition of the old story, and yet it is never given due thought at the right time. Having tied its own hands, it is folly for the public to think its protests will be heeded now.

PINK AND GOLD

One would never know that it was the very pink and gold diminutiveness of Mary Cushing that made Tom afraid.

"You're too little to fly, Mary," he pretested for the hundredth time.

"Tom," said Mary in mild desperation, "jockeys are always little, and it takes much more courage to ride a horse than to fly a plane. You come with me this afternoon and I'll show you."

"Sorry, dear, but I have a conference with Rawson—important."

There, he had lied again. Confound it! He might as well admit he was afraid. Coward, big, hulking coward; afraid to go up in an airplane; afraid to take his feet off the firm ground. Of course, Mary Cushing never would marry him. He'd better begin to forget her right now. But as a matter of fact he had better get in touch with Rawson.

In the middle of the interview Mary called.

"It's gorgeous outdoors, Tom. Perfect for flying. Right through sunset clouds. Please say yes."

"I'm too busy now, Mary. Sorry."

"Tom, please. I'll fix a picnic lunch. I have chicken pie from last night and green-apple pie. We can eat in the woods by the landing field before we go up."

Well, he might as well go for dinner, anyway. He could have one of those sudden headaches of his.

They met in the woods by the big pine. Pink clouds flecked blue-green above the horizon and the early robins sang happily.

"You've never seen my ship, have you, Tom?" Mary greeted him enthusiastically.

Tom admitted he hadn't.

"Let's go see it now. It isn't quite late enough to eat," she urged.

"Right," said Tom.

And so they made their way over the soggy field adjacent to the woods, Mary telling him excitedly of her first solo flight, of the time she was lost in the fog, of how her instructor had made a forced landing. Tom had never had so little to say.

Arrived at their destination, Mary laid her hand affectionately on the yellow and blue plane, and explained how simple it was to fly.

Tom groaned inwardly. He was actually cold at the thought. Such a wisp of a girl, and an aviatrix! A brave girl! Well, he must stop seeing her—tonight.

"I'm' pretty hungry," he suggested timidly.

"You would be," laughed Mary. But they started back to the woods.

"I'm going for a little water in the spring. Just enough to clear the coffee. You spread out the other things," said she as they approached the car.

"Gladly," said Tom. He watched her make her way through the budding brush. How he loved her! He deserved to lose her for his cowardice.

A terrific scream interrupted his thoughts. His heart almost stopped beating. Something terrible must have happened. Mary was not one to scream like that over nothing. He ran to her.

"Tom! Tom!" she cried.

"Honey! Darling! What is it?" He had her in his arms.

"Don't, Tom. Can't you see? It's a spider! On my neck. Get it! Oh! O—o—o—o—oh!" as Tom put an end to the offender. He stood back and laughed and laughed.

"You're just a real girl, aren't you? A girl that's afraid of spiders. Gee! Will you marry me? Say yes, and I'll promise to learn to fly, although I'm scared to death."

"You're not half as scared as I am of spiders," said Mary from the safety of his shoulder.—Chicago News.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Peter Sees a Resemblance

By just a look you'll sometimes find Another may be brought to mind.
—Mother West Wind.

Have you noticed how people almost always admire in other people the ability which they do not themselves possess? Peter Rabbit admired Jerry Muskrat. He admired Jerry very much indeed, and it was largely because Jerry could do the things in the water that Peter could not do. So, in a way, Peter was envious of Jerry. It didn't occur to Peter that Jerry in his turn might be envious of him. No, sir, that didn't enter Peter's head. You see, he was so used to running and jumping and dodging that he took it all as a matter of course and didn't once think that other little people might wish that they could do as he did.

One evening just at dusk, when jolly, round, red Mr. Sun was going to bed behind the Purple Hills and the Black Shadows were creeping out across the Green Meadows and had almost reached the Smiling Pool, Peter Rabbit sat on the bank watching Jerry Muskrat swim. Peter always did like to see that funny tail of Jerry's move back and forth in the water, as Jerry loves to make it when he is swimming. At last Jerry climbed out on the Big Rock. There he sat, so that Peter had a side view of him. It came to Peter, as he sat looking at Jerry, that Jerry reminded him of some one.

"Yes, sir," said Peter, talking to himself, "Jerry Muskrat reminds me of some one, but just who it is I cannot think. It ought to be Robber the Rat, for Jerry is a member of the Rat family. But somehow he doesn't remind me of Robber the Rat so very much. It is some one else. I think it is his shape and the way he sits. It certainly isn't Johnny Chuck; it certainly isn't any of the Squirrel cousins, he doesn't look the least bit like Billy Mink, or Little Joe Otter. He does make me think in a way of Paddy the Beaver. I've heard him called the little cousin of Paddy the Beaver, but I understand they are not related at all."

Just then Jerry slid into the water and swam over near Peter. "What's on your mind, Peter?" Jerry inquired.

Peter grinned. "You," he replied.

"That's too bad," said Jerry. "How am I on your mind?"

"You remind me of some one and I don't know who it is," replied Peter.

"What's on your mind, Peter?" Jerry inquired

Jerry looked interested. "So I remind you of some one, do I? Probably it is Paddy the Beaver."

"You do remind me of him," replied Peter, "but you remind me of some one else. Have you any relatives that I know?"

Jerry chuckled. "Of course I have," relied he. "There is Robber the Rat. Perhaps I remind you of him."

Peter shook his head vigorously. "No," said he, "it isn't Robber the Rat."

"I am glad of it," replied Jerry. "That is one relationship I am not proud of. I've got a lot of small cousins, you know, like Whitefoot the Wood Mouse and Danny Meadow Mouse."

Peter hopped right up. "That's it!" he cried. "It's Danny Meadow Mouse! If Danny could grow to be as big as you, I believe he would look very much like you."

Again Jerry chuckled. "I don't know but that you're right, Peter," said he. "As a matter of fact, Danny and I are rather closely related, though somehow I never think of it. I cannot suppose Danny does either."

"If he does, he never speaks of it," replied Peter.

CHILD TRAINING

Being A Stepmother

As Told by My Chum
Cora M. Silvius

When I married Joe Stutzman I was pitied by all my friends, not because of Joe, but because of his "unruly" son. I felt sure that no one understood him. I knew that his father did not. I was aware that the aunt with whom the two had boarded did not. I did not understand him myself, but I intended to do the best I could. Of course the only way to succeed with him permanently would be through an understanding that would win his confidence, but that would take time. At first some formal regulations would be necessary.

My idea was that they all expected the boy to act like a grown man, and I was sure that Harry was one of those boys who mature late. I knew he was not half so troublesome as my own brother had been.

As soon as we were settled in our own home, Harry came to stay with us. The first thing I did was to give the boy a key to the front door. Joe was terribly shocked. He was sure I was sending the boy downward.

I explained to Harry, in quite a businesslike way, that I desired his cooperation. We agreed on an hour at which he should be in his room every night, unless, by mutual consent, he stayed out later. I tried to use tact, and when I read him authorities on how much sleep a boy of his age should have, when he did the sort of work Harry was doing, I made my comments impersonal. When I mentioned health rules, I did it indirectly, leading him to supply illustrations from the boys he knew. I suggested calling him at a certain time each morning. Together we tested it out in order to see just how much time he needed to bathe and dress properly, eat his breakfast, and walk to his work.

Later, our family of three drew up a few rules which would help us all to enjoy our home to the full.

On Tuesday or Thursday, we agreed, Harry could have a friend in to dinner; on Wednesday and Saturday nights it was his father's privilege; on Monday or Friday I was to have my own friends. Harry was allowed to dine out any time he wished, without question, provided he gave timely notice of his intention, and we approved of the place. If, however, the invitation should be impromptu, he was asked to abide by our decision.

I gave him the large room which Joe had wanted for a spare room. I fixed it as nicely as I could with my little knowledge of his tastes, angling as adroitly as possible for his suggestions. He was expected to keep it in order, to hang up his clothing, and open the bed to air each morning.

I refused to have him turned into an errand boy, although I did ask both him and his father to attend to certain duties for me.

All our friends predicted trouble. I was too lax. One had to be firm with a boy like Harry. He would take advantage of kindness. Too much leeway was bad for boys. Oh, they said any number of things. But they were all wrong. Harry was on his honor, and never once has there been any trouble.

I have also learned to understand him to a very great extent, and he gives me a large share of his confidence. I am waiting for him now. He wants me to go with him to call on a girl to see if I think she is the type for him to marry.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 22— One of the events of special note in prohibition controversy of this bye-election year was the now celebrated speech of Representative Franklin Fort of New Jersey, delivered in January.

It was well advertised and drew the greatest gallery that any speech in the house has received at this session.

There were several reasons. For one thing, Mr. Fort had just resigned as secretary of the republican national committee on a plea of private business pressure.

He had not then, however, cast his hat into the already crowded ring of the New Jersey senatorial primary fight.

Fort Harks Back

In May, however, with the four-cornered fight for the New Jersey republican nomination going full blast and illuminated by Dwight Morrow's blunt "wet" declaration, Mr. Fort found it desirable to hark back to his "homebrew" effort when he took the stump in Essex county, and by radio, in the state.

He had heard "from many sources," he said, that the speech was being "misquoted and distorted" by opponents to his senatorial ambitions.

"I trust that those who speak about it will first read it and in their comments on what they are pleased to call the light-wine and home-brew plea, will include the fact that the speech referred to the making of those beverages if non-intoxicating in fact, and nothing otherwise," he said.

What Mr. Fort evidently was seeking to do was to pin the New Jersey primary campaign down to the flat question of repeal or retention of the 18th amendment itself.

He had not made that issue between himself and Ambassador Morrow and former Senator Frelinghuysen, he told his New Jersey listeners. Both stood for repeal as did the third aspirant, Mr. Kelly, Fort declared, adding that there was no light-wine-and-beer notion involved.

First Real Issue

"It is the first time, my friends, so far as my knowledge goes, that the question of whether the 18th amendment to the constitution shall be retained or repealed has been the clear cut and unmistakable issue in any state in the United States," he asserted.

Whether Messrs. Morrow, Frelinghuysen and Kelly ever agreed on that issue as Fort stated it, the Bystander does not know.

Stories That Recall Others

Monotonous

The home management class was taking a test in which one of the questions was: "Name three kinds of marriage and define each."

The following answer appeared on two of the papers:

"Polygamous—The union of one man with several wives."

"Polyandrous—The union of one woman with several husbands."

"Monotonous—The unions of one husband and one wife."

Bound to Please

An enterprising little newsboy approached a man standing on the corner. "Buy a paper, mister, buy a paper?"

"No," answered the man solemnly, "I can't read."

"Can't read? Well, I guess you could look at the pictures, couldn't you?" inquired the boy.

"Nope, I can't understand them," the man replied.

The newsboy scratched his head for a moment and then responded: "Say! there's a blank page in here I bet you'd enjoy."

Three Bottles Helped Her

"I cannot praise your good medicine enough. After my baby came I was rundown. I had to go to bed often through the day. I took three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I felt like a different woman. If any other mother has those tired feelings like I had, I advise her to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Harold Goodnow, 36 Cane Street, Fitchburg, Massachusetts.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Jidda: Front Door of Mecca

Jidda, venerable Red Sea port in the harbor of which more than one hundred Moslems recently lost their lives aboard a burning pilgrim ship, is "the front door of Mecca," famous heart of the Moslem world, according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Jidda's wall, inclosing about 30,000 Moslems, and a mere handful of "infidels' (non-Moslems), rises above the sun-baked eastern shore of the Red Sea about midway between Aden and Suez," says the bulletin. "Coral reefs stretch menacing arms into the broad natural Jidda harbor, and large vessels, bearing thousands of pilgrims annually from Africa, Asia, and even the East Indies, anchor beyond these obstacles.

"A thrilling ride on a choppy sea in a small craft; a short stay at an island quarantine station if one is healthy and clean; and another short boat ride, and the traveler sets foot on the Jidda quay, a feat that only a few 'infidels' have accomplished, for Jidda does not extend a Gotham-like welcome to non-Moslems, nor does the hot sun and dust of the city's streets attract many curious travelers. The 'infidel' population, most of which is engaged in business for foreign establishments and foreign governments, numbers about 50.

"A bright Arabian sun beating upon the white wall and the long two-story white customs house which introduces Jidda, causes the traveler to squint and, unless he possesses sun glasses, the wrinkles about his eyes become set before he has lived long in the city.

"In the tortuous streets beyond the customs building, bordering houses, nearly all of them balconied, offer some shade; but these choice spots are often occupied by loitering natives, some enjoying their gurgling water pipes, some discussing the latest caravan that left for the Holy City, and some squatting at the feet of their donkeys which are for hire. Now and then one comes upon one of these stubborn quadrupeds with nose, neck, and the area around the eyes, painted in such a manner that they would make spleadid partners for western circus clowns.

"Here and there Jidda streets open into small squares. The traveler, who has blindly working his way through clouds of dust raised by shuffling camels' hoofs, heaves a sigh of relief on entering such a broad breathing space. Shortly, however, he finds that the square affords merely a larger area than the streets for caravans to assemble in, a broader area of dust to be stirred with every movement of an animal or a human being, and a greater opportunity for the sun's rays to have an unhampered thrust at already parched pedestrians.

"To see Jidda travelers must walk or mount a camel, for automobiles have not yet invaded the taxi field of this city. One may hire a place in a shugduf, a wooden frame fitted over a camel's hump with a tray on each side forming seats for passengers. The shugduf is kept in place mainly by balance. The natives often are amused when an uninitiated visitor in one side of a shugduf thoughtlessly leaves his seat and his companion in the other seat is precipitated to the ground.

"Perhaps the most comfortable spots in Jidda are in the bazaars where extending roofs shade the street, allowing only thin pencils of sunlight to touch the human mass below. In one bazaar street mass traveler rubs elbows with black Moslems from Africa, deeply tanned Arabians, and yellow, brown, and reddish brown Asiatics. Many are permanent residents; others are here to fulfill one of the greatest aspirations in the life of a Moslem—a visit to Mecca."

Hat Laced Up Back

WASHINGTON, June 22 —(AP)— A black straw hat laced up the back is a novelty note in the severely tailored street costume of Mrs. Clay Stone Briggs, wife of the representative from Texas.

The coat is black and the skirt of striped gray and black material closely resembling a man's suit.

Thar's Gold In Denver

DENVER, Colo., June 22—(AP)— Scene of one of the earliest gold discoveries in Colorado, the bed of the Platte river within the city limits of Denver, has given up enough gold to mount a gavel to be used during the national convention of the American Dental association here, July 21-25.

A History Of Connecticut Industry

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The New Departure Manufacturing Co., Bristol.

The New Departure Manufacturing company of Bristol, now the largest makers of ball bearings for automobiles and machinery, and coaster brakes for bicycles, began business as the New Departure Bell company in the late fall of 1888 and was incorporated on June 27th of the following year for the purpose of manufacturing a new and patented type of door, office and call bell.

The unusual company name originated in the fact that these bells were a "new departure" from those then on the market and obtained electrical results without a battery. The original plant consisted of a room 20 feet square in which three to six hands were employed, including executives. With the coming of the bicycle "craze," bicycle bells were invented and a "controller" or free wheel which later developed into the New Departure coaster brake. The brake was a great success and is to this day manufactured at the rate of half a million a year.

In 1907 a line of ball bearings was developed, including the double row, the first ball bearing to incorporate a capacity for both radial and thrust loads in combination. At that time ball bearings were largely imported from Europe and used only in automobiles. Now there is scarcely a modern machine which does not utilize ball bearings to some extent, and practically all bearings used in this country are now American made. With characteristic New England persistance, skill and genius, the aim of the New Departure company to produce a bearing equal to any of those made abroad was finally realized.

This business grew steadily, and with it the plant and personnel, until today New Departure makes 52 per cent. of all the ball bearings in the world and 70 per cent. of those in this country. The plant contains 43 acres of floor space and is equipped with highly specialized and ultra-modern machinery, much of which was developed by the management.

The following figures will give some idea of the magnitude of its operations:

Seven thousand five hundred employes convert 36,000 tons of electric furnace high carbon chrome steel into 84,000,000 forgings in the production of 52,500,000 ball bearings per year. This also entails the weekly production of 35,000,000 steel balls and the use of 1,116,000 grinding wheels annually and of 25,558 precision gauges daily to produce this ultra-precision product.

On January 1, 1919, the company became the largest accessory division of the General Motors corporation which in turn is the second largest industrial organization in the United States.

The officers of the New Departure Manufacturing company are: DeWitt Page, president; F. G. Hughes vice president; L. G. Sigourney, secretary; M. L. Prentis, treasurer.

Skin Kept Clear By New Laxative..

Now that doctors know how often pimples, blemishes, etc., come from clogged up systems there is really no excuse for having a bad complexion. Just do what men and women everywhere are doing and keep the system clean with Feen-a-mint, the modern chewing gum laxative.

This pleasant new corrective for constipation is just the thing to use for the ailments that come from harmful "intestinal bacteria" such as coated tongue, bad breath; or unusual tired feeling. When you notice the first symptom of these conditions, take one of these tiny white Feen-a-mint tablets.

Because you chew Feen-a-mint it is effective in milder doses than ordinary laxatives. For the effectiveness of a laxative is not so much dependent upon the quantity swallowed as upon the thoroughness of its distribution throughout the alimentary tract.

While you chew this delicious bit of gum the tasteless laxative it contains is gradually released and mixed with the saliva. Thus it is carried to the intestinal tract smoothly, evenly, without shock to the system or the distressing after-effects so common with old-fashioned laxatives. Each particle of the laxative in Feen-a-mint works with utmost efficiency, gently encouraging the intestinal muscles to resume the activity so necessary for healthful elimination.

The action of Feen-a-mint is thorough, gentle, dependable. With the proper dosage it is not necessary to increase the amount of Feen-a-mint you take nor to switch to another laxative for a change. Feen-a-mint is harmless and contains no habit-forming drugs. Truly the health laxative. Ask for a package at any drug store. —Adv.

PICTURE PROGRAM HAD BIG AUDIENCE OF CHILDREN

A fine programme of all-talkie pictures was shown at the Broadway theatre Saturday morning for the benefit of a capacity audience of children, under the auspices of the recreation commission in cooperation with Manager E. J. Fitz of the theatre, as part of the commission's programme in celebration of Child's Day.

The programme, which included a feature picture, The Leatherneck, starring William Boyd; novelties, comedies and news reels, was opened by Secretary John Richardson of the chamber of commerce and William J. Fitzgerald, chairman of the recreation commission, who made short addresses. An address on fire prevention on the Fourth was given by Chief Henry R. Taft of the fire department, on behalf of the civic committee of the Woman's City club, and the recreation commission. The entire programme was enjoyed by the large gathering of children, who were in charge of the recently appointed instructors.

WOMAN'S FACE BADLY CUT IN AUTOMOBILE COLLISION

Mrs. Kurt Esche of No. 17 Howard place, Springfield, received a long gash on her right cheek, which required six stitches to close, and numerous cuts on the face and neck, as the result of an automobile accident in front of Grissel's gasoline filling station at Preston Plains, on the Norwich and Westerly road, about 6 o'clock Sunday afternoon. A Dodge sedan, driven by her husband, and a Ford sedan, operated by Clarence E. Maine of R. F. D. No 7, Norwich, were the cars involved.

The accident happened when Maine attempted to drive into the driveway of the filling station, and in doing so, failed to grant the right of way to the Springfield car, which was traveling in the opposite direction and coming towards Norwich. The Esche car was unable to avoid a collision and crashed into the right side of Maine's machine, which had its running board and right forward fender smashed. The Springfield car suffered a right forward flat tire, bent headlight and fenders and other damage.

Riding with Mr. Esche, besides his wife, were their three children. The crash was investigated by State Police Officer Arthur P. Kathe of the Groton barracks.

Car Ran Into Fence

In some way, after John Olenkiewicz of 508 North Main street had left his automobile parked on Geer avenue Friday night about 9 o'clock, the machine started rolling down hill and fought up against an iron fence on an offset wall, which is maintained by the city. A section of the fence was bent and broken and flagging in the street was moved by the force of the blow.

More than 500 delegates are expecting at the annual convention of the Connecticut Department, United Spanish War Veterans, which will be held in Rockville June 27 and 28. The James W. Milne Camp of Rockville, and its auxiliary, are in charge of the entertainment.

Preceding the ceremony, the church organist, Arthur Hull, rendered a group of Norwegian love songs, and for the processional the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin. The bride was given in marriage by her father and had for maid of honor, Miss Emily Gallup, sister of the bridegroom.

C. David Geep of New Haven was best man and the ushers were Carl E. Berkoff, Carl Holdridge, W. Avery Gallup and Henry Malmer, the bride's brother.

Rev. Thomas Richey, rector of the church, performed the ceremony, using the double ring service. The bride was lovely in a gown of white satin with Spanish lace and veil of tulle with lace cap caught with pearls. Her only jewelry was a string of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom. She carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley, tied with Scandinavian myrtle. They carried a combination of pink and white roses and carnations with tints of blue and green intermingled. TWO SMALL BOYS DROWNED IN OLD TOTOKETT RESERVOIR AT OCCUM

Two small Occum boys, who had been missing from their homes since about a little before noon Sunday were found drowned in the old reservoir of the Totokett company and their bodies were recovered Sunday night. The victims of the fatality are Levi Carr, 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carr, and Gerald Douglass, 11, son of Mrs. Mary Douglas, a widow.

A little toy airplane found on the banks of the reservoir furnished the clue that told the searchers for the boys where to look when the search was started in the early evening. The body of the Douglas boy was first found about 8:30 and was brought to land. Its location was ascertained after the workers had dived repeatedly at the point where it was thought he might have gone down. The body of the Carr boy was not found till about 10:30 after grappling irons had been used to drag the bottom of the reservoir. Both bodies were near the dam in about 11 feet of water.

Undertaker George G. Grant of Taftville took charge of the bodies after Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve had given him permission.

Those who participated in the search for the bodies and their recovery were Fred Lawrence, Richard Fillegar, Fred Fillegar, Joseph La Chappell, and John Evans.

FINDING RIGHT WATER FOR PLANTING SHAD FRY

A scientific investigation of the waters of the Connecticut river is being made for the state board of fisheries and game to determine whether the stream, north of Salmon River at East Haddam to the state border, is a suitable home for the young shad being produced at the state's hatcheries. The survey will ascertain where the millions of fry may be distributed with reasonable hope of their finding a congenial habitat and abundance of the microscopic food upon which they depend in the early part of their lives.

Professor C. B. Hoover of Wesleyan University is directing the survey, assisted by other experts in aquatic biology. He is also continuing investigations started in the spring of 1928 to determine the definite cause of the failure of shad eggs taken in the Farmington river to hatch.

In the past two years, aside from stocking the Joshuatown ponds, the shad fry were planted in the Salmon River and the Connecticut River below the Salmon. With an annual increase of the output, the board finds it necessary to ascertain whether there are favorable planting grounds in the Connecticut, above the area now being stocked, and authorized the new survey at a recent meeting.

The catch of shad has increased steadily since 1923 when hatchery activities were begun by the state. In 1929, the catch amounted to 91,597 shad, as compared to 13,350 in 1923. From early reports it is indicated that the 1930 catch may be the largest in a quarter of a century. The production of fry has increased by millions since the first hatch of 609,000 in 1923. Last year the hatch was 18,523,000 and the number of shad eggs collected thus far this year is sufficient to indicate a larger production of fry than in previous years.

MOUNTAIN LAUREL SEASON NOW AT ITS HEIGHT

The mountain laurel, Connecticut's state flower, is at the height of its glory according to a statement by R. M. Ross, forester for the Connecticut Forest and Park association. Mr. Ross states that those who only travel the main highways of Connecticut little realize the attractiveness and beauty of the secondary roads, especially at this time of the year when the laurel is in full bloom. In the hurry to make wider and better roads, much of the laurel which formerly bordered our highways has been sacrificed, but there are still wonderful displays along many of the roads through the rural sections.

Mr. Ross has just returned from a trip to the People's State forest in the town of Barkhamsted, and he states that much of this 1800-acre state forest is carpeted with laurel which is in full bloom. The great clusters of pink and white flowers give a rose-like glow to the whole area. For those who appreciate the beauty of the laurel in its natural state, Mr. Ross recommends a trip to either the People's or Tunxis State forests which are located in the towns of Barkhamsted and Hartland. He also stated that Connecticut need not look afar for shrubs and plants for beautifying the raw slopes made by highway construction. Extensive planting of mountain laurel along our highways will do much to transform unsightly spots into places of beauty. The laurel which is an evergreen shrub adds beauty to its surroundings throughout the year.

NO CRIMINAL LIABILITY IN DEATH OF CLEAVES

No one is held responsible by Coroner Edward G. McKay of this city in a finding made public today in connection with the death on May 7 of Robert Cleaves, 32, of this city. Cleaves died following a collision between a motorcycle owned and operated by him and a Dodge truck owned and operated by Max Sogolow and a motorcycle owned and operated by Leo Lacombe. The accident occurred on the Norwich-New London highway, at Thamesville at the intersection of Bushnell place.

As the Cleaves vehicle and the Lacombe vehicle came northerly along the level stretch of road south of Bushnell place, Cleaves was leading. As he approached the top of the slope and curve, he was increasing his lead over Lacombe. When he turned the curve he saw the Dodge truck of Max Sogolow turning easterly from the main highway into Bushnell place. He tried to stop his motorcycle but was unsuccessful. The motorcycle fell to the ground and slid along toward the truck. As the front wheels of the truck came onto the concrete gutter, the motorcycle slid into the right rear wheel. While the Cleaves motorcycle was sliding along, the Lacombe motorcycle, following, came upon the scene. Lacombe tried to stop and claimed to have seen an automobile approaching from the opposite direction. He threw his motorcycle on its side onto the road. The Lacombe motorcycle slid along with Lacombe into the Cleaves motorcycle. It continued on to the left and toward Perry avenue, dragging or pushing both Cleaves and his motorcycle with it. They finally came to rest about 38 feet from the Dodge truck. Cleaves was entangled near the west side of the road. Cleaves had expired when help reached him. Lacombe extracted himself from the entangled machines and found MacFarland near the right front of the truck suffering from a blow in the back.

There were marks on the highway indicating the sliding of tires and also the sliding of the motorcycles. South of the scene of the collision there were marks of the sliding of the motorcycles of about 93 feet; south of this point there was a mark which indicated a dragging tire for about 200 feet. There was another tire mark near the scene which lead to the path of the sliding vehicle.

It is not clear at what point Cleaves came to his death; he might have expired as his motorcycle hit the road, as it struck the truck, or as he was being pushed along the ground by his motorcycle and Lacombe's motorcycle. The terrible head injury was caused by being dragged along the highway but he may have expired before that.

I am satisfied and find that the death of Robert Cleaves was not caused by the criminal act, omission or carelessness of any other person or persons.

Frederick E. Damon of New London was ordered cited into court for next Friday morning to show cause why he should not be adjudged in contempt of court for failure to pay alimony to his wife, Abbey Ogden Damon. According to Attorney Morgan, counsel for Mrs. Damon, the defendant has not paid alimony to his wife for a long time and has been dodging between the states of New York and Connecticut. He works in Long Island and comes to New London to spend his week-ends. Counsel stated that if he could once get hold of Damon in Connecticut, he would secure payments for the plaintiff.

In another back alimony case, Jerome Rich was cited into court for next Tuesday morning to show cause why he should not be adjudged in contempt for failure to pay his divorced wife, Rose Mary Rich, alimony.

ANNUAL CONVENTION OF NEW LONDON SOCIETY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, June 22—Syrian-Americans from three states, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, were represented at the annual convention of the New London society at Ocean Beach this afternoon and evening. There were some 400 members and guests when the convention was called to order this afternoon by President Joseph S. Hage, who told of the purpose of the assemblegs and congratulated the members on the large attendance. He spoke of the most satisfactory progress the society is making.

This afternoon the talks were all in the Syrian language. W. A. Mokarzel of New York was the chief speaker of the afternoon, delivering a scholarly address in the Syrian tongue. Other speakers were Ameen Rihani, of New York, a traveler and author and Selloum Mokarzel and Assad Rostum, both of New York. Emory Harfouch and Julia Assia were heard in vocal numbers.

Representative citizens, including the mayor and city manager, were guests as were attorneys and members of the press. N. A. Mokarzel was the chairman of the assemblage this evening, at 6 o'clock, when the language used was English. Luncheon was served at 8 this evening and this was followed by dancing until midnight. The occasion was most successful and reflected credit upon the committee which arranged it.

Three automobile drivers were arrested Saturday night charged with violation of the parking laws and their cases will be presented in the police court tomorrow. Peter Kozokos, 21 Tilley street, was charged with parking in restricted area; Alfred Migunault, Killingly, was charged with parking overtime and Nickilie Telye, 167 Main street, was charged with parking more than a foot from the curb.

Marion W. Humes, 21, a lodger at the Star rooming house, 147 Bank street, was arrested Saturday night by Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh charged with the theft of about 30 tickets, of the value of $65 from the Crown theater. He was unable to obtain a surety on his bond and was locked up. He will be presented in the police court Monday. A few of the tickets have been recovered for Humes revealed the names of some of his acquaintances who had been given tickets. Others are known to been given admission tickets. One, a girl who received as many as 20, could not be located tonight, and it is believed that the greater part of the tickets will have been recovered during the coming week. Humes, who is a batteryman by employment and whose home is in St. Louis, obtained employment as an usher at the picture houses a short time ago. During the absence of all of the office help a few days ago, he stole the tickets, it is charged, and then started distributing them among his friends. When the theft was discovered and employes were questioned, Humes displayed great nervousness and when taken to police headquarters confessed to having committed the theft.

PAT JAMES ONE OF THE MOST COLORFUL OF THE BOXERS TO PERFORM HERE

One of the most colorful boxers to appear on the card at the Majestic roof on Thursday evening is the scrappy little bantamweight, Pat James of Campbell, O., a student at Brown university. James, who has fought in Norwich several times, is to go six rounds with Spike Marino of New Haven.

James is a product of the amateurs and at one time was rated very high, not only in his class, but in all classes. He won a place on the Olympic boxing team back in 1928, which speaks well for his ability as a boxer. One boxing expert said that James ranked third in the list of boxers for the Olympics, which is saying a good deal. When James won his place on that select team he did so by two sensational knockouts at Chicago, but broke his thumb in his last bout.

Deserting the amateurs, James turned to the professional game as a means of earning an education and went to Brown university, where he studied. Since turning pro, James has met some good boys and has beaten them. He is fast, clever and packs a punch that carries plenty of kick.

The college boy is one of the most modest lads in the ring, and they are few and far between. He blushes like a school girl at the faintest praise and positively refuses to talk about his ability as a boxer. In fact, he is so modest that he underrates his ability to a large extent.

When he meets Marino he is meeting a boy of ability, for Marino is clever and also packs plenty of steam in his gloves. James is a popular boy with the local fans and it is expected that there will be a big turnout to see him.

ARICO ALLOWS CITIZENS BUT TWO SCATTERED HITS

Saturday afternoon at the Academy campus, before a crowd of several hundred fans, the Italian Young Men's club and the Polish Citizens, teams of the Norwich industrial league, staged an exhibition game, the Italians winning by the score of 7 to 1. The contest was staged for the benefit of the Norwich Play ground children, the proceeds to go toward expenses in giving the children outing later in the season.

The game itself was rather one sided the Citizens being able to do little with Alex Arico's offerings. Arico, who is ordinarily a first baseman, turned for the Italian club, and turned in a great game. The Citizens gathered but two scattered hits in seven innings and eight of them went out via the strikeout route. Young on the mound for the Citizens did not fare as well, being nicked for fourteen bingles, two of which were home runs, Anas Tombari hitting for the circuit in the first inning while Lemieux picked the fourth inning for Babe Ruth's specialty.

The Italians collected three runs in the first, one in the second, two in the fourth and one in the sixth, while the Polish Citizens tallied their lone run in the fourth when Tirrell was safe on an error by Burelle, took third on a single by Jarvis scoring a moment later when Arico committed a wild pitch. NORTOSKI WINS GAME IN 9TH WITH TRIPLE

The Montville Independents won their eighth straight game this season by defeating the Willimantic All Stars Sunday afternoon at the Windham diamond at Willimantic by a score of 1 to 0. The game was a hard fought pitching battle with ten strikeouts up to the first of the ninth inning when Caron of the Independents who was the third man up in that inning with two out got a clean single and this was followed by Nortoski, flashy shortstop, who banged the pill for a three bagger scoring Caron for the winning run. Wawer and Wrzesien led the All Stars in hitting, Wawer getting two singles and Wrzesien collecting a single and a three bagger. Tirone of the All Stars played a wonderful game at shortstop. TIGERS TAKE BOTH GAMES OF TWIN BILL

BOSTON, June 22—(AP)—Detroit took a double header from the Boston Red Sox, 5 to 3, and 4 to 2, here today. The second game was called at the end of the sixth inning because of the Sunday law.

Milt Gaston, for the Sox and Whitehill for the Tigers, pitched gilt edged ball in the first game, but their support was poor all runs scored in the game being unearned.

Gehringer's home run with Johnson on base in the fifth inning decided the abbreviated second game in Detroit's favor. The scores:

INDIANS HIT OPPORTUNELY TO BEAT THE ATHLETICS

CLEVELAND, O., June 22—(AP)—Cleveland bats, impotent through seven losing games, rang lustily today as the Indians hammered out a 4 to 2 victory over the league leading Philadelphia Athletics. LINDER PITCHES VELVETMEN TO VICTORY

The J. B. Martin club hammered the combined offerings of Cutler and Brown to all corners of the lot to trounce their old rivals the Universal Winding 14 to 3, at Martin field Sunday afternoon.

Walt Lindner pitched for the Velvetmen and was in fine form, allowing seven hits and fanning six. With the exception of the first and sixth innings when the Universal bunched hits to score all their runs, he was complete master of the situation. After the visitors had counted twice in their half of the initial inning, J. B. Martin came back to go them one better in their half of the frame, the locals scored one more in the second, and that ended Cutler. Brown took up the pitching duties in the third inning with the result that six solid blows, including a double, netted the Velvetmen five runs. They continued the assault in the fourth and with the aid of two errors dented the rubber three times in the fifth. One more in the eighth ended the day's scoring.

Lloyd Jarvis, Nap Liberty and Eccleston carried off the hitting honors for the locals, Brown's long triple was the ongest clout of the game. Krause at short for the Velvetmen fielded swell.

BRAVES TURN TABLES AND NOSE CUBS OUT

CHICAGO, June 22—(AP)—After losing four games in three days to the Cubs, the Boston Braves came back today to defeat the champions, 3 to 2, in the final game of their series. The defeat shoved the Cubs two and one-half games from first place as the league leading Brooklyn Robins defeated Pittsburgh.

Frankhous, recent pitching acquisition from the St. Louiss Cardinals, limited the Cubs to five hits during seven innings and Cantwell, who relieved him, was effective. Both Cub runs were scored on home runs in the fourth inning, Grimm getting one and Hack Wilson collecting his twenty-first of the year that put him ahead of the circuit clout race.

The Braves hit Charlie Root early for their runs. The score:

ROBINS COME FROM BEHIND TO BEAT PIRATES

BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 22—(AP)—On the power supplied by terrific slugging in the late innings, the Robins came from behind to beat Pittsburgh today by the score of 9 to 6. Babe Herman hit two timely home runs, bringing his total for the season to 15. Frederick also hit a homer off Larry French who pitched the whole game for Pittsburgh.

Herman's first home run came in the fifth and tied the score at 3-all. The Pirates hit Clark hard and obtained a three-run lead in the sixth and seventh, but Herman hit his second homer in the seventh with two on to again tie the score. French continued to weaken in the eighth when Wright's single, a double by Lopy and Frederick's homer featured another three run attack.

Adolfo Luque held the Pirates safe in the last two innings and was credited with his seventh victory of the season. The score:

SCHMELING TO ARRIVE IN NEW LONDON AT 1 O'CLOCK

Max Schmeling, recently crowned heavyweight champion of the world, arrives in New London on Tuesday at 1 o'clock instead of at 4, as first announced. The champion is to be the guest of State Athletic Commissioner Thomas E. Donohue and the New London lodge of Elks. A reception for the champion will be held at the Elks' club during the afternoon.

ARMY-NAVY TEAM BEATEN BY THE CUBAN ALL STARS

Saturday afternoon, the Cuban All Stars found little trouble in defeating the Army-Navy team, 7 to 3, in the opening game of the season at the Providence street grounds. The Stars played a brilliant game and were never in danger.

IMPROVEMENT IN BUSINESS MUST AWAIT STABILIZATION OF PRICES

NEW YORK, June 22.—(AP)—Business sentiment was sorely tried during the past week by seemingly endless liquidation in the speculative markets, but important executives mostly seemed immune to the epidemic of pessimism rampant in speculative quarters.

Such matters as the reduction of wheat and cotton prices to pre-war levels, along with almost steady declines in most staple commodities were not matters to be taken lightly, and it was generally acknowledged that important improvement in business must await stabilization of price levels.

The continued deflation of commodity prices is a development which was wholly unexpected when prosperity was punctured by the crash in stocks last autumn. Most observers at that time, pointed to the fundamental strength of inventory positions as assuring early recovery.

The fact that productive capacity has been steadily augmented in this country during the boom years, and abroad with the return of more normal conditions after post-war readjustments, was not taken into account. Surplus plant may become a costly and troublesome factor, even as surplus inventories, and over-development of raw material producing capacity only throws back upon the producer the troubles that the heavy inventories of 1921 brought to manufacturers and dealers.

While the tariff law was subjected to severe censure in various quarters, Secretary Mellon issued a statement in its defense, saying he doubted that it would result in any impairment of foreign trade, and pointed to the flexible provision as a means of erasing any "inequalities."

The domestic hide market firmed up notably, largely in reflection of the tariff.

The week's trade reports and statistical exhibits were largely unfavorable, although the downward seasonal trend was an important factor. Steel production fell off to 65 per cent of rated capacity, and automobile manufacturing and industrial activity generally, was on the downgrade.

A further reduction in the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate to the lowest level in its history, 2 1-2 per cent, was followed by a cut from 4 to 3 1-2 per cent in the Chicago bank rate, and it was hoped these last reductions might at last result in a flow of funds into real estate mortgages and foreign bonds.

Building contracts continue at a level substantially below last year, drawing the building depression well into the third year, but F. W. Dodge corporation's statistics show that the curve of activity in residential building, which has been the weakest spot, has turned upward slightly of late. With still cheaper credit, it is hoped it may continue to climb, although unemployment in some quarters may be a retarding factor.

The first of the boats got under way on time and comprised those entered in the A class, which is the class not less than 53 feet overall and not more than 72 feet. Ten minutes later the B class got under way. The start was made off Sarah's ledge at the mouth of the harbor and the finish will be off David's Head, just outside the harbor of Hamilton.

OBITUARY

Wentworth W. Meek

Wentworth W. Meek, 52, late of 27 Gordon street, died Saturday at Bay State hospital, Boston, death following an operation. He had been a patient there but a few days. Mr. Meek is survived by his wife and two sons, Wentworth W. Meek, Jr., and Fred A. Meek. Mr. Meek, who was president and treasurer of the Abbott Motor company, was born in Boston, but had resided in this city many years. He was formerly employed as a naval engineer by the Electric Boat company.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel Saturday ordered the return of the drivers' licenses of Max Hillsberg, 205 Shaw street, and James R. Bliven, 64 Howard street.

The police received information by telephone late Friday night from a resident of Washington street that a man was on the roof of the building, corner of Washington and Methodist streets, and was peering into the bathroom window of the residence of Charles J. Ducy. Acting Lieutenant James Gaffney and Sergeant Samuel Hick went to the building, which is used for commercial purposes and, gaining admission, went to the attic and onto the roof, but the "peeper" was not there. The officers also made a search of yards in the immediate vicinity.

Peter Dupihe, 330 Central avenue, Norwich, made complaint to the police Friday night that Hugh Shannon, 98 Connecticut avenue, had been guilty of reckless driving and requested that the local man be arrested. Later, Automobile Patrol Officer Thomas Cavanaugh arrested Shannon, but he was not presented in the police court Saturday, for Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer ordered the young man's discharge after he had investigated the complaint.

Samuel R. Aaron, 205 Church street, New Haven, reported to the police today that while his hotel was parked at the Hotel Griswold, Friday night, a thief visited the auto and stole a top coat, binoculars, pair of trousers, blanket and trench coat.

Forrest L. Bruton, submarine base, who was complained against Friday by Miss Agnes Woods, Rockville, who alleged evasion of responsibility, denies his guilt, stating that his automobile was not in use later than 5 o'clock that afternoon and that, as he drove the machine earlier in the day, he was not involved in an accident. Miss Woods, who was driving on Bank street, stated that an automobile which bore markers L—2932 collided with her car and that the driver failed to stop to find out the extent of the damage he had caused.

Alec Honick, a shoemaker, residing at 145 North Bank street, fell out of the window of the second story of his home in some unexplained manner, early Saturday morning, and he is now a patient at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, suffering from severe bruises and lacerations, but his condition is not considered serious. Honick was found lying on the ground by a pedestrian, who informed the police, and he was taken to police headquarters by Patrolman Dennis Murphy. After Honick had been administered temporary treatment for his injuries, he was taken to the hospital.

Samuel Terry, 222 Montauk avenue, reported to the police Saturday that he had been relieved of his roll of $35. It developed that the alleged robbery was perpetrated the night before. Terry said that he was in a Bank street restaurant late in the evening and there was also in the restaurant a Negress. She had made it known that she was en route to her home on Huntington street and Terry, it is said, offered to drive the woman to her destination. He said that he drove direct to Huntington street and stopped alongside the curb, near Bulkeley place, where the woman alighted, but before she did so he said that he engaged the Negress in conversation several minutes. A short time after the woman alighted he discovered that his money was missing.

M. O. Horan, 15 Pequot avenue, believes that he has been made the victim of the meanest kind of vandals. He reported to the police Saturday that he parked his automobile on the street late Friday night and that when he started to drive to his residence, he discovered that two of the tires had been mutilated by the use of a pocket-knife.

LeRoy Taylor, 36, a spinner, residing at 45 Fourth street, was arrested Saturday by Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith and Patrolman Cornelius Moriarty, charged with breach of the peace, upon complaint of his wife, Irene. He will be presented in the police court Monday. Taylor went to his home late Friday night and quarreled with his wife.

One of the Union-Lyceum Cab company's automobiles, driven by Lloyd Potter, hit and damaged a traffic signal on State street Saturday night.

Forrest Bruton, 100 Howard street, a sailor stationed at the submarine base, reported to the police today that last night two spare wire wheels and tubes were stolen from his automobile.

Josh H. Hubbard, 30, colored, and employed as a cook, was arrested early today, charged with breach of the peace, and indefault of a surety on his bond of $100, the restaurant worker was locked up and will be presented in the police court Monday. Hubbard went to the residence of May Barnes, 25 Douglass street, about 4 o'clock this morning and after he had been in the building a short time created a disturbance, it is said.

Mrs. Ralph Staplins, 19 Woodbridge street, a patient at Home Memorial hospital, was discharged Saturday.

Letitia C. Gardner, acting as guardian of Diana Gardner, has caused title in a two-thirds interest in a tract of land, on Gardner avenue, to be transferred to Alice L. Bailey.

William L. Street has sold a house and lot on Jefferson avenue to George Hill.

A gasoline stove exploded in the kitchen of the residence of Edward Canning, 95 Elm street, Saturday, causing slight damage. Northwest Hose company responded to a still alarm and extinguished the fire with chemicals.

Plane Struck Yacht

A United States Coast Guard seaplane, an amphibian, starting on a proposed flight from this port to Gloucester, Mass., Saturday, crashed with the motor yacht Whiz in the upper harbor. The plane was wrecked and damages of the estimated amount of $5,000 were sustained by the yacht. Lieut. N. M. Nelson was the operator of the plane, and in it were Chief Radioman Olmstead and Comdr. Eugene A. Coffin. They were hurled into the river but rescued. Capt. Milton Brat and Harold Cooper and Frederick Beal of the yacht's crew were slightly injured by flying glass. The greatest damage sustained by the yacht was to the wheel house, which was entirely destroyed.

The plane started from the state pier about 10:45 o'clock. When off the municipal pier, and where the yacht, one of about 100, was at anchor, Nelson started to ascend. In doing so he apparently misjudged the distance between the plane and the yacht, for when about ten feet out of the water one of the wings of the plane crashed against the wheel house. In another instant, the plane turned swiftly over and plunged into the river. Several speed launches were near at hand and started for the rescue, while a lifeboat, manned by ten sailors, put out from the Coast Guard academy and two patrol boats were dispatched from the state pier. The first of the launches to arrive alongside the plane picked up the men, who were taken to the state pier. The disabled plane was also towed there. The crash was witnessed by hundreds of sight-seers on the pier and passengers on the union station platform, awaiting arrival of New York and Boston-bound trains.

An automobile driven by E. E. Chapman, 85 Lewis street, Saturday evening hit a girl of 6 named Levine and residing on Jefferson avenue. The child who ran in front of the auto near her home, sustained only minor cuts and bruises, which fact was determined when she was examined at the office of a physician.

A thief entered the home of Julius Racine, 32 Ocean avenue Saturday night and stole two watches, one a Waltham and the other a youth's wrist watch; scarf pin of clover design, diamond ring, and penknife. Mr. and Mrs. Racine were absent from their home between 7:30 and 11 o'clock and when Mrs. Racine returned she discovered the robbery for two screens had been removed from open windows. The thief entered by a rear window. Going to a bed chamber, another screen was removed so that a hasty get-away could be made in the event Mr. or Mrs. Racine returned. From a dresser draw of the first bedchamber the watches were found and from another sleeping room the jewelry and knife were taken. The thief overlooked a pocketbook containing $100, which was partially covered by a piece of card board.

Charles Oddo, 36, of Ridgewood park, is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital suffering from a possible fractured skull and possible internal injuries. He is also suffering from shock. Oddo was at work Saturday in a building in course of construction. He fell from a staging, landed on the concrete surface of the cellar, was rendered unconscious and after being given emergency treatment, was taken to the hospital.

WOMAN DOCTOR AND COOK ON SHIP'S THREE-YEAR WORLD TOUR

Mrs. Lenore Cook (above) is shown at wheel of schooner "Swordfish" (inset) which will take three years on its world cruise.

CHICAGO, June 22—(AP)—Mrs. Lenore Cook, a bright-eyed young woman only a few years out of the University of Wisconsin, will be ship's doctor to a crew of four men on a three-year cruise of the seven seas. Her husband is one of the crew.

Their schooner, a 40-foot two master, the "Swordfish," will not return to this country until 1933, when Chicago's centennial exposition will be under way.

The proposed itinerary includes Bermuda, the Panama Canal, New Zealand, Australia, the Malay archipelago, Suez canal, Greece, Italy, Gibraltar, Spain, France, Brazil, the east coast of the United States, and down the St. Lawrence and through the Great Lakes to Chicago.

Cook and his wife organized the trip to obtain material for books.

Mrs. Cook is a painter and her husband, a graduate of orthwestern university's school of journalism, is an amateur photograher.

Besides the Cooks, the "Swordfish" crew includes Earl Evans, who played football at Harvard; Paul, his brother, who played at Drake university; and Donald Dickinson, just 21, the radio operator, only a short time out of St John's Military academy.

Paul Evans will act as the ship's engineer, while Earl will be captain. Mrs. Cook, as ship doctor, will double in brass, as ship cook.

SCARLET GOWNS POPULAR WITH PORTRAIT PAINTERS

WASHINGTON, June 22—(AP)—Red gowns are favored by portrait painters.

Mrs. Walter Edge, wife of the American ambassador to France, has just had her portrait done by Edward Everett Orr, an American artist. It is being exhibited at the Paris spring salon.

Mrs. Edge is wearing a red gown and the background is peacock blue.

A portrait of Mrs. Coolidge in a red dress attracts much interest from visitors to the white house.

AMERICAN WOMAN FIRST TO WEAR STRAP SANDAL

WASHINGTON, June 22—(AP)—The heel strap sandal was created originally for Mrs. John Garrett, wife of the American ambassador to Italy.

Bakst, the artist, designed it for her when Mr. Garrett was minister to the Netherlands. Mrs Garrett has had her portrait painted by Bakst, Meichers, Zuloaga and many other artists.

Debutantes Doll Up

PARIS, June 22—(AP)—Evening dresses of horsehair braid are past the experimental stage in dressmaking here, and represent a small group of their own.

The last horsehair lace model to be put forth is white with a skirt made up of many tiers of stiffened lace-braid.

The dress has an accompanying hip-length velvet wrap of bright color.

Modern Petticoats.

PARIS, June 22—(AP)—Coolie pants are the modern petticoat worn with tailored suits and sports clothes.

Couturiers here make them in colors to match dresses. Each leg of the coolie trousers is comfortably loose but not loose enough to hamper walking.

Buttoned to inside blouses the coolie trousers provide a comfortable and skip-about foundation for skirts and blouses.

BURGUNDY RED IN ADVANCE AUTUMN SHOWINGS

PARIS, June 22—(AP)—A burgundy red with purple and brown in its makeup promises to be outstanding among autumn colors, both for evening and day wear.

Paris has not yet decided on the name of the new color, designating it for a time by the name of the dressmaker who first sponsored it.

Coupled with brown of the mahogany shades, the new red makes a rich autumn ensemble.

There are hats of the same shade for wear with the red-brown ensembles, and accessory makers are turning out handbags and modern jewelry in the same shade.

Colored shoes continue into autumn fashions in deeper shades.

Particularly for formal afternoon wear are the colored shoes important, both in leather and silk models.

EX-WIFE OF KEMAL SEWS TO CLOTHE POOR TURKS

ISTANBUL, Turkey, June 22—(AP)—Latife Hanim, divorced wife of President Mustapha Kemal of the Turkish republic, has returned from a long stay abroad to settle in her wealthy father's home here.

Although she leads a secluded life, she has resumed this winter her charity work. Every week she goes to the headquarters of the Turkish Red Crescent, the equivalent of the Red Cross, and sews garments for the city's poor.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Keep all cooking drippings and fats in the refrigerator to prevent their becoming rancid.

When cane seats are sagged, wash them with hot water and dry in a hot sun. This will tighten them.

If the taste of olive oil is considered unpleasant, it can be made agreeable by adding a small pinch of salt.

If a little flour is sprinkled in the frying-pan just before chicken or fish is put in, the grease will not spatter.

Lay the unripe bananas in a paper bag in a dark place for a few days. They will ripen evenly and become a very wholesome food.

To dry lettuce when preparing it for the table, fold it in a cloth and shake for a few minutes. The cloth will absorb the moisture.

To keep a heater from rusting when not in use, put a quarter of a peck of lime in any old receptacle and set it on the grate of the heater.

Instead of shelling the peas, wash the pods and place them in the boiling water to cook. The pods will open and the peas settle to the bottom of the vessel. Merely skim off the pods.

Most electric waffle-irons require 10 minutes of heating before the batter is added and from one to two minutes of heating between the baking of every waffle. It takes about two minutes to bake a waffle.

To remove nut meats whole from the shell pour hot water on the nuts and let them remain overnight. You can crack them easily and remove the meats in the morning.

It is well when papering a room to remember that large patterns and dark colors will make it appear smaller, while a plain or striped paper, if a light hue, will give an impression of increased size.

PARSLEY TOUCH

Appearance of food in hot weather is as important as taste. Parsley sprinkled over new potatoes, cold meat served in a bed of crisp lettuce, fresh cherries filling honeydew melon slices and neat salads are all good touches.

GREEN MEALS

When spring comes, the all-green vegetable meal is attractive. Creamed pea soup, a vegetable plate of fresh peas, fresh beans, spinach and Brussels sprouts and a salad of asparagus and water cress makes an appetising dinner. A green dessert may be added.

PRUNE CUSTARD

Cut stewed prunes in quarters and add them to lemon custard, topped by white of egg. This makes a nice supper dessert.

SPRING ZEST

This is the time of year when the tired housewife should use all the varied flavorings for meat and fish that she can. Sauces, garnish and flavorings combat the lagging appetite.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

When the hair is falling, brush well every night and morning, and shampoo every two weeks with castile soap suds. Then rinse thoroughly.

The well groomed shingled head gains a touch of brilliancy by the addition of tiny bars set with brilliants meant to hold in place unruly locks.

The easiest way to reduce the pores is by ice applications after you have washed the face thoroughly. The ice tones up the skin at the same time. Witch hazel is also an excellent astringent, especially when warmed.

PIMPLES

In many cases pimples are due to disturbances of the digestive tract. It is necessary to keep the bowels open, drink plenty of water and eat freely of green vegetables and fruits, if you wish to keep your complexion clear.

SPOTTED NAILS

White spots on the finger nails are sometimes due to an injury to the nail at the root. Too much manicuring is often responsible, as is the habit some persons have of biting the nails at the root, the white spots not appearing immediately.

CRYSTAL FRINGE

An evening gown of white chiffon has a short flared cape of chiffon covered with tiny fringes made of crystal.

MATTRESSES

Mattresses which are turned and sunned often and protected by washable pads not only last longer but are more comfortable.

A NEW NECKLACE

Costume jewelry grows more and more lovely, especially when it provides a delicate note of color. For this purpose a necklace that alternates rose quartz and turquoise beads is unusually charming.

LARGE HANDKERCHIEFS

New handkerchiefs are man-size both for sports and evening. Linens, in gorgeous array of prints and colors, are for sports; chiffons with lace and embroidery are for evening.

ICED TEA

The first ice tea of spring tastes the best. Do not wait until it is boiling weather to think of it. With a hot luncheon or supper dish it is delicious. Serve with a bit of mint.

TIDY LOCKS

A clever arrangement for evening wear, or for the steamer, is a chiffon cap in a pastel tint, that covers the hair completely and keeps every lock in order. The cap has six tucks for added firmness.

DICTATES OF FASHION

New for navy blue suit wear are white gloves. They can be slip-ons in suede or three button or six button length in glace kid.

Black and pink millinery—pink usually being introduced as a facing—has brought black and pink boutonnieres in its wake.

A stunning country club suit has a black and green checkered skirt, a black belted coat, lined with yellow, and a green and yellow blouse.

Coral red, sky, linen and pastel blues, pale greenish yellows, Nile and water green are important colors among the private clientele of Paris dressmakers.

The opera pump remains the smartest shoe for day time wear. It is particularly nice when developed in black kid with tiny perforations around the top showing white underneath.

That stockings are taking on darker tones is not strictly a news item, but that gunmetal shades or biege with a gray overtone are beginning to be accepted in Paris is worth recording.

THE FRINGED FROCK

A beautiful evening frock is made of heavy white silk faille trimmed with four rows of deep fringe; the fringe is placed at the peplum line, and with the exception of the narrow belt, is the only trimming upon the dress.

SUIT FLOWERS

Some suits do not need a flower. Try wearing one or a little boutonniere at the V neck line of your blouse. It is a new trick and a cute one.

BLOUSES

Blouses have an established and important place in the spring mode with the return of suits, and it has even been hinted that the day is not far off when the peek-a-boo blouse will be with us again. Soft draped effects with tie ends, jabots, revers, capelets and scarfs are stressed to lend an individual touch.

FROCKS DEMAND FITTED LINGERIE

When princess lines are so important the matter of whether or not one's lingerie fits perfectly becomes a vital one. A petticoat (we must acknowledge this undergarment after years of snubbing it) has been made that can be adjusted to the individual figure. It is made in wrap-around style with three buttons and buttonholes on the narrow waistband that make it possible to adjust the band to the specific waist. The overlapping section of the skirt is elaborately lace trimmed and embroidered and the bottom of the garment is lace bordered.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Powdered borax added to the water when washing fine white flannel helps to keep them soft.

A lather made of white soap and milk applied to white kid shoes makes them as clean as when new.

Use lukewarm water and borax to wash silk handkerchiefs, instead of using soap. Dry them by wrapping in a cloth, then iron them while they are still slightly damp.

When little boys' colored suits fade with constant washings they may be bleached white if boiled in boiling cream of tartar water. Allow a teaspoon of cream of tartar to each quart of water.

TO CLEAN WICKER FURNITURE

To clean wicker furniture brush it thoroughly to remove all possible dust. Remove the cushions, if possible. If not, cover them carefully. Place the pieces to be cleaned on several thicknesses of newspaper, so that splashing may be freely indulged in. With a soft brush dipped in warm, white soapsuds go over the entire surface, working into the cracks and crevices. Work quickly and do not allow the wicker to be come soaked through. Rinse by dipping the brush in clear, warm water. When thoroughly dry, polish with a soft cloth, dipped in a very little oil or war.

COLORED SUGAR

For the tea table and parties, colored loaf sugar in card figures is available. Colored sugar also comes in various flavors now.

WARM VARNISH

If you heat your varnish very lightly before applying, it lessens the pull it has in its cold state and is easier to use.

CLEANING TIME

Spring is the time to have everything in your wardrobe cleaned. Sort out the winter things from the summer and get them put away before warm weather comes.

WAX REDUCES DUSTING

Recent scientific tests show that 50 per cent less dust settles on waxed furniture than on surfaces finished with ordinary polish. Dust that remains on the wax stays on top, does not become imbedded, and is easily whisked off. The wax film dries absolutely hard and soft, sealing dust pockets, and also provides a protection against all kinds of scratches and stains on chairs, tables and woodwork.

SUMMER CHEER

The most cheerful of summer lunch tables is set with a yellow linen lunch cloth with appliques of pink and blue flowers. Of course there are napkins to match.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Three women have been made judges in Turkey.

Nearly 20,000 women in the United States are barbers and hair dressers.

Mrs. Carl V. Rice, who has been elected democratic state chairman in Kansas, is the first woman to hold this position.

Census takers in El Paso, Tex., believe they have discovered the oldest woman in America. She is Mrs. Juana Covarrubias, who actually is 120 years old.

Becoming a licensed attorney at the age of 60 is the record of Mrs. Fanny Y. Bickett, widow of former Governor T. W. Bickett, of North Carolina. Her husband and a son also were lawyers.

One of the newest members of the "Caterpillar Club" is Miss Mildred Kaufmann, holder of the women's record of 46 inside loops. She fell 3,200 feet with the aid of a parachute when catapulted from her plane while attempting to break her loop record at the Buffalo, N. Y., airport.

A MODERN GROUP FOR A MAN'S BEDROOM

This masculine bedroom shows effects of original treatment.

The clever decorator shows creative ability in overcoming structural obstacles, particularly in decorating a room in the older house or apartment, where proportions are quite different from our modern idea.

Original and modern treatments are enhanced by unusual effects obtained from adroit use of simulating correct proportions through the balanced grouping of furniture and use of wall drapery.

In this project the decorator has shown resourcefulness by introduction of fresh and vital originality in the treatment of a bedroom, designed for a masculine occupancy. It is devoid of the traditions of hunting scenes, combined with solid furniture and heavy dark colors.

Since the proportions of this room were not of the best, the ceilings, extending five or six feet above the door tops, gave the room a cell-like appearance despite its ample size.

This presented a problem, for the ceiling either must be lower—a costly and troublesome alteration—or else changed through suggestion, by careful balance and contrast of furniture and drapery.

So the decorator built the decorative scheme around the bed, it being the focal point of the bedroom. Accordingly a modern bed, of double size to harmonize with the wall draperies, was selected, without a footboard and with just enough headboard to hold the pillows in place.

This was placed against graceful folds of wall drapery, extending from a point higher than that of the door tops, in a soft French green satin, with over-drapery of mulberry brocade draped back at either side.

The rich lustrous old gold satin coverlet of the bed contrasts delightfully with the rich drapery background, and trails in casual fashion at the foot.

To complete this group, a slender, ladder-back walnut chair and night table with its lamp of green toile wear and parchment shade are balanced at either side of the bed. Rough plastered walls washed in a shade of apricot contrast with the woodwork of an antiqued French green, while the carpet blends with the mulberry tone of the drapery.

Thus, a distinctive and subtle note of decorative skill is introduced into this masculine bedroom, without depriving it of any of those masculine quanities so necessary to the average man, and at the same time it is somewhat of a relief from the sporting atmosphere that pervades the average masculine bedroom.

FOODS IN HEART SHAPE POPULAR FOR WEDDING REFRESHMENTS

Heart-shaped refreshments here are attractively arranged

By Louise Bennett Weaver

Refreshments for the summer wedding call for careful attention and much planning.

They should be dainty, delicious, carefully arranged and attractively served.

Heart shapes prevail in refreshments for weddings, and sandwiches, rolls, cakes, candies and confections can be cut in heart-shape by the use of cutters or paper patterns placed on the foods and traced.

Wedding Recipes

Chicken Filling for 24 Sandwiches — 1½ cups finely chopped cooked chicken, ½ cup diced celery, 3 tablespoons finely chopped pimientos, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, ½ teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon paprika, 1-3 cup salad dressing.

Mix the ingredients, spread with silver knife on buttered slices of thinly cut slices of white bread. Arrange sandwich fashion and cut out with heart shaped cutter.

Creamy Fondant Candy

2 cups sugar, ⅛ teaspoon cream of tartar, 1 cup water, 1 teaspoon rose extract, ½ teaspoon almond extract, Green vegetable coloring.

Thoroughly mix the sugar, cream of tartar and the water. Cook over moderate fire and without stirring, until soft ball forms when tested in cold water. Pour into 2 shallow plates that have been rinsed out of cold water. Do not stir nor move for 10 minutes. Add portions of the extracts and coloring. With a wooden spoon or spatula stir and beat until very creamy. Knead with the hands until soft. Shape into 1-inch balls. Shape as roses.

Wedding Sandwiches

A variety of breads can be used for sandwiches and with different sizes of heart shaped cutters a number of effective sandwich combinations can be made.

A graham bread heart placed on a white bread square, or Boston brown bread hearts placed on white or graham hearts make unusual and pretty sandwiches for the wedding table. The hearts are held in place by soft butter.

Butter for sandwiches should be creamed with a fork. Never melt it as it will be too greasy and have a bitter taste.

Date, raisin or nut breads make delicious sandwiches, spread with cream cheese or butter and they can be cut into the shapes desired.

MOTHERS OF 11 ARE 'MASTER HOMEMAKERS'

ROCK HILL, S. C., June 22—(AP)—Two of South Carolina's new "master farm homemakers" have reared 11 children each, and one has managed a 1,800-acre farm.

Mrs. Annie H. Dunlap has sent six of her children to college and the other five will go when they are old enough.

She admits she has been "quite busy" looking after the large family and the cotton farm since her husband's death, but she has found time to be president of the county council of farm women, the local home demonstration club and a farm club; to serve as church organist, Sunday school superintendent and road supervisor.

Mrs. Rupert H. Tilley has kept her brood of 11 so healthy that the doctor has been called only twice in 23 years. Her children also are going to college.

Talc Output Increases

NEW YORK, June 22—(AP)—Talc production in the United States during 1929 was 219,144 short tons, valued at $2,617,756, says the department of commerce. This represents an increase over 1928 of 3 per cent in value.

Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

The Bandana Dress

"I want to make a dress, mother," said five year old Letty and she held up for her mother's inspection two bright cotton bandanas which she had discovered in the bureau drawer.

"See, they're just big enough to make a dress for me. This will be the front and this will be the back." And she held them up against her small person.

"How can I make the sleeves, mother? How can I fix the neck?"

An hour later it was finished and Letty strutted out of the front door wearing the gay dress of her own manufacture. It had been achieved without the use of scissors and with a minimum of sewing.

With large stitches and heavy embroidery cotton she had sewed the two bandanas together, forming side seams. At the top she had done the same, leaving an opening for her head to pass through. With more of the embroidery cotton mother had helped her braid a belt.

Letty was proud of herself. She had made a dress, a real dress that she could wear. As far as she was concerned, it was as fine and pretty as any that hung in her closet.

It is through taking advantage of the moment when a child wishes to make something that we capitalize the most constructive of his natural impulses.

When we turn him away with the excuse that we "have no time" or that "he will waste good material" we are wasting something more precious than either of these.

Every time we help a child to achieve, especially in terms that can be recognized on an adult level, we are encouraging behavior of the sort which will always be serviceable and profoundly satisfying to him.

JAPANESE WOMEN PRIESTS NOW ALLOWED LONG HAIR

KYOTO, Japan, June 22—(AP)—Shaved heads no longer are required for priestesses of the great Nishi Hongan temples, centers of the Shinsu sect of Buddhism.

Recognition of the larger part of women in religious work, especially evangelization, has brought the priestesses the right to wear long hair and conduct certain ceremonies hitherto restricted to men priests.

Nuns, who are distinguished from priestesses, must continue to shave their heads, however, as must women votaries of other denominations.

Several Buddhist schools in which girls are prepared for the priesthood have been established recently in Japan.

Pale Blue For Sports Outfit

WASHINGTON, June 22—(AP)—Delicate shades are liked by some women for their sports costumes.

Miss Helen Stone wears a dressy light blue sweater suit and white felt hat. Shoes and gloves of the same blue shade make the costume suitable and striking for attendance at horse shows or tennis matches or even for afternoon tea.

Rippling Effects In Ruffles

PARIS, June 22—(AP)—Ruffles which go up and down instead of around are the newest influence in evening styles.

Rippling effects with longitudinal motion are obtained by application of bias frills on skirts which fit tightly about the hips and conceal considerable fullness below the knees.

Violet ray blue and bright green are chic shades for the new ripple frocks.

PLUNGED OVER BANK AT EAST GREAT PLAIN

After sideswiping an Essex car operated by Andrew Hunter of R. F. D. No. 2, Waterford, a Chrysler sedan driven by August Albert, 19, of R. F. D. No. 2, Waterford, continued for a considerable distance, crossed the trolley tracks, crashed into the state highway fence and came to a stop with its front end resting at the bottom of a small embankment at Ford's pond, East Great Plain, about 10:30 Sunday evening. The three passengers in the Albert car miraculously escaped serious injury, only Albert's mother complaining of a hurt to her back.

The Albert car was proceeding towards Gardner Lake, while the other car was headed in the opposite direction. The latter car, it was learned, was on the right side of the highway, when the Albert machine struck it a blow on the left side. After continuing on for some 100 feet, the Albert car crossed the trolley track, crashed into the fence, tearing down three or four sections, before stopping. Its rear wheels were resting at the edge of the trolley tracks with its front end at the bottom of the pond, which is dry.

Luckily the machine did not overturn nor the passengers receive more serious hurst, as it was at an angle of 45 degrees. The front end of it was considerably damaged, while the running board and fenders on the left side were badly crumpled up.

There is no water in the pond at the present time, as it is drawn off shortly after the skating season is over. Were it not for this fact, the machine would have found itself in two or three feet of water.

The Hunter sedan, which had as passengers two women, Mary Gribo and Dot Burke, of New London, and a man by the name of Donald, besides the driver, was damaged to a small extent.

The crash was investigated by State Police Officer Arthur Whitmarsh of the Groton barracks, who took measurements of the road, and later arrested Albert on a charge of reckless driving. A wrecker from Jones garage removed the machine from its precarious position, but not without much difficulty. Two of the four tires went flat, and it was necessary for the garagemen to blow up the left rear one before the machine could be towed away.

PLYMOUTH ROCKS AND LEGHORNS LED AT STORRS

In the 33rd week of the Storrs egg-laying contest, the total production for all pens was 4,655 eggs or a yield of 95.5 per cent. This is 150 less than for last week, but 274 eggs more than for the corresponding week in the previous contest.

Although egg production continues to fall off a little, the decline is gradual. As long as this condition obtains it's an almost foregone conclusion that the total lay for the year will exceed that for any other year.

Barred Rocks and White Leghorns split the honors for the week just about 50-50 in that the Leghorns ranked first and fourth, while the Rocks scored second and third. Bournedale Farm's pen of Leghorns from Millerton, N. Y., got away with first place, scoring 64 eggs.

Two pens of Barred Rocks entered by Pratt Experimental Farm from Morton, Pa., and R. C. Cobb of Littleton, Mass., tied for second place with 63 eggs each, and James Dryden's pen of the same breed from Modesto, Cal., ranked third with a talley of 62 eggs. Three pens of Leghorns entered by Alfred J. O'Donovan of Katonah, N. Y., Cloverdale Poultry Farm from Cortland, N. Y., and Hollywood Poultry Farm at Woodinville, Wash., all tied for fourth with 61 eggs each.

The leading pens to date in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

White Wyandottes—The Locust-West Cornwall, 1,667; Jack Wrennal, Barton, Nr. Preston, Eng., 1,465.

Barred Rocks—R. C. Cobb, Littleton, Mass., 1,723; R. Walter Bishop, Guilford, 1,646; Spring Brook P. Farm, South Wethersfield, 1,598.

White Rocks—E. H. Rucker, Ottumwa, Iowa, 1,548; Adam F. Polti, Hartford, Wis., 1,413; Kalerok Farm, Westford, Mass., 1,369.

Rhode Island Reds—Edw. N. Larrabee, Peterboro, N. H., 1,828; F. S. Chapin, Longmeadow, Mass., 1,814; F. S. Chapin, Longmeadow, Mass., 1,731; W. Otis Day, Westford, Mass., 1,748.

White Leghorns—Toivonen Leghorn Farm, Girard, Pa., 2,005; Steelman Poultry Farms, Lansdale, Pa., 1,776; Hanson's Leghorn Farm, Corvallis, Ore., 1,735; Geo. Lowry P. Farm, West Willington, 1,727; Bournedale Farm, Millerton, N. Y., 1,716.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS DECREASED IN 1929

Intensive remedial action to eliminate automobile accidents, based on the information concerned with known causes which in a majority of cases are the same year after year, is recommended by Miss Ethel Usher, statistician of the state department of motor vehicles, in an annual review of Connecticut accident and automobile statistics.

The first annual reduction in accidents is reported for 1929 by Miss Usher. The decrease was about 3 per cent, and although small, she finds that it was achieved in spite of increases of 8 per cent in registered cars, 12 per cent in licensed operators and 18 per cent in the use of motor vehicles on the state's highways.

No decrease for 1929 in the seriousness of results was found by the study, which is made the subject of the monthly bulletin of the department. The same number of deaths, 466, was reported for last year, as in 1928. The number of persons injured increased by about 6 per cent to 13,607, and the estimated amount of property damage increased more than $409,000, to a new high total of $3,288,510.

Inattention, reckless driving, failure to grant right of way, skidding, operating too fast for conditions, operating on the wrong side of the road, carelessness and driving while intoxicated were the leading causes of accidents in 1929, the report shows. All traffic participants appear to share in the fault of carelessness, it is pointed out. The record of adult pedestrians was found particularly bad, in view of the fact that other groups were able to achieve reductions in "responsibility" for accidents.

Miss Usher says that safety educational work among children has been well worthwhile. An active interest has been maintained by school authorities, with the result that for several years the casualties to children have decreased.

MOVING STATE HIGHWAY OFFICE TO PORTLAND

The division engineers' office of the state highway department, at Middletown, which has been located in the Poliner building for upwards of three years, will shortly be moved to Portland. Starr, division engineer, has erected a home in Portland where he is residing. He was formerly connected with the state highway office in Norwich.

The removal of the office from Middletown means no curtailment in the working force, but under the amalgamation it is expected the engineering and laboratory forces will function even better than heretofore. MASONS ATTEND TRINITY METHODIST CHURCH FOR SPECIAL SERVICE

Members of the Masonic fraternity attended the morning service Sunday at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church by invitation of the pastor, Rev. Joseph Cooper, whose special sermon to them was from the text, Genesis 1, 2: Let there be light.

In part he spoke as follows:

Here we are among the beginnings of things. Everything is formless, chaotic but behind that chaos is God standing in the shadow. Out from that chaos came order, beauty, fruitfulness, life. Postulate God of all this wonderful creation and you explain it intelligently. Without Him is ever deepening darkness.

The word light is not only used to express the luminiferous ether that gives our physical organs the power to see around them but expresses by analogy the operations of other parts of this complex self. We speak of the light of intelligence. It is the ability of the mind to know the nature of things and to apply that knowledge to the manifold uses of life. Intelligence combines education and common sense. It means a great grasp upon the realities of life, a finer use of the goods of the race, a better appreciation of all the opportunities to help our fellows. Intelligence without conscience leads only to criminal indulgence, conscience without intelligence leads only to stupid fanaticism. The one ends in the penitentiary the other in the lunatic asylum. The best system of education is that which gives an increasing moral understanding and quickening. Many concemn our public school system because it fails here. If it is true that its teachers and its curriculum do not make for moral discipline then it would be the most dangerous institution in our American life. On the whole I do not believe it is true and I trust it never will become true. The finest character can only come from a wide-eyed intelligence joined with an illuminated and sensitive conscience.

Still deeper lies the necessity for spiritual life and light. To know God and ourselves, to see the true meaning of this life that is to end and of that life which is to come these are among the deepest longings of the heart. The profoundest minds in ancient Greece conceived God by the phrase, "The Light of Light." To man's cry for visibility God has sent to us the man Christ Jesus who is the "Light of the World."

Growth is the normal condition of all healthy minds. The finite moves forward to the infinite, the mean becomes the magnificent, the human constantly reaches up into the divine. Our superfluous nature seeks more distant attachments and finer activities. To rest in the present is to be satisfied with an unfulfilled destiny. The accomplished is only the prophecy of the possible. The aspiring soul while appreciative of the light given still seeks more space where new suns of truth outshine with their splendor the glory of the old. This clamor for further light is simply the clamor for God's truth and for God Himself.

In the Book of Ecclesiastes we have a picture of a man seeking the real truth about the good of life. He seeks it in knowledge, pleasure, wealth, social joy. He passes them all in review and what are his conclusions? None of these are the true end of life. His conclusions are that to fear God and keep His commandments is the whole duty of man.

Saul seeks his father asses and finds a kingdom. Tissot enters a church to paint pictures and find Jesus Christ. Lew Wallace reads the New Testament for a background for "Ben Hur" and discovers the Saviour for himself. All roads lead to God even the road of unbelief. Astronomy? Yes, for an undevout astronomer is made. Language? Yes. Philosophy? Yes. Even Spencer the great agnostic could not fetch his materialistic argument without postulating it upon the great First Principles.

That which is necessary and yet undiscoverable to our own vision will come to us in response to our faith. By no human searching can we find out God. Huxley calls Him the "Great Unknown." Matthew Arnold said He was the "Power that made for righteousness." Spencer said He was "The Power which the universe manifests through wrtoh all things consists." Paul found the Athenians were much concerned with the God they could not discover. They had erected an altar to the "Unknown God." Whom they ignorantly worshipped he declared unto them. The imperfect unfolding in nature had come to a perfect revelation in the man Christ Jesus. Humanity in order to find God must come to an understanding of God through the vehicle of itself. The man Christ Jesus approximates for us men an ideal of God that we can understand and one that we can love and adore. Faith becomes the basis of belief and understanding. As Lady Somerset used to say "Believe that He is and you shall know."

By no human research have we found our own immortality. Hints and hopes are all that we possessed. Every race of men had some dim idea of the continuity of personality beyond the regions of the present life. They all knew that they were traveling toward that undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveler returns. What that country was like and the conditions of entrance they did not know. The message that religion has brought us is this, "When the earthly house of this tabernacle is dissolved we have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens."

The best way to live has been the query of the ages. To find salvation from sin and find the life of goodness has been the everlasting struggle of the human race. Man has tried in a thousand abortive ways to save himself by his own efforts. There came One who looked at the men of His day and said "I am the Way the Truth and the Life." Men came and found light and life by trusting His leadership and His Grace.

Two questions in closing: Are we living up to the light that we have? Are we seeking for more light?

CUTTING FUND FOR THE LAW ENFORCEMENT COMMISSION

Senate Appropriations Committee Voted to Limit the Fund For Next Year to $50,000, Instead of the $250,000 Asked By the Administration—Would Restrict the Commission to the Study of Prohibition Alone—Senator Glass Said Some Members of the Committee Had Suggested Not Giving the Committee Any Appropriation.

WASHINGTON, June 23—(AP)—Restriction of the Hoover law enforcement commission to a study of prohibition alone was voted today by the senate appropriations committee in limiting its fund for next year to $50,000 instead of the $250,000 asked by the administration.

The committee overwhelmingly adopted the amendment of Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, adding 50,000 to the second deficency bill for the commission. The house eliminated the $250,000 fund on a point of order.

Chairman Jones was the sole member of the appropriations committee to vote against the Glass amendment and gave notice after the bill was reported to the senate that he would offer an amendment to increase the fund to $250,000 with authority to inquire generally into law enforcement as it has undertaken to do in the first year of its life.

Senator Glass was determined tonight to hold the commission to the $50,000 appropriation.

"Some members of the committee suggested not giving them any appropriation," he said. "I want the senate to know that the commission has spent more money for furniture for its office than it has for investigating prohibition."

The committee agreed also to give the commission the $80,000 unexpended from its $250,000 fund of this year.

Another dispute faced the bill in the announcement of Senator Hayden, democrat, Arizona, that he would try to eliminate the $10,660,000 for starting work on Builder Canyon Dam. Hayden submitted a minority report.

Alarmed over a possible filibuster over the Boulder Dam appropriation, senate leaders were prepared to submit a cloture resolution to limit debate.

Senator Jones submitted the measure to the senate today and planned to take it up tomorrow. It carries $70,000,000 to meet emergency needs in various sections of the country.

"TORCH SLAYER" ATTACKED A WOMAN IN BROOKLYN

NEW YORK, June 23.—(AP)— For the second time within a month, a "torch slayer" today attacked a woman in Brooklyn.

Mrs. Rebecca Hirsch, 35, was bound, gagged, beaten, and thrown on the bed in her New York avenue home by an assailant who then set fire to her clothing. She tumbled off the bed and extinguished the flames by rolling on the floor. Neighbors heard her cries and called police.

Police believed the assailant, described as a young man, was the same who killed Mrs. Rose Blatt in her apartment in Atlantic avenue a month ago.

Mrs. Hirsch told police the man entered her apartment and demanded jewelry. When informed she had none, he struck her in the face, knocking her down. Carrying her to a bedroom, he gagged her and bound her with a clothes line before starting the fire. Her legs and arms were scorched before she extinguished the flames.

GIRL'S HEAD ALMOST CUT OFF IN AUTO ACCIDENT

NEW HAVEN, June 23.—(AP)— The head of Florence Marcucci, 13, was almost severed from her shoulders tonight, when an automobile in which she was riding was struck by a trolley car.

With six others she was in a roadster driven by her uncle, Nuncio Tanelli, 35. As he rounded a curve near Morris cove, he attempted to pass another machine and got into the path of the trolley which ploughed into the rumble seat in which Florence was sitting.

Three motorists refused to take her to a hospital, and so the Annex fire department, in front of whose quarters the accident occurred, rushed her there in its truck. The girl died two minutes after being admitted.

Tanelli was released under $1,000 bond on a charge of reckless driving.

FOUR DEATHS CAUSED BY HEAT IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, June 23— (AP) — Hot blasts from the southwest today drove the thermometer in Chicago to a record height for this day of the year and caused four persons to die.

Relief from the wave, which started its scorching march over the middle west yesterday, was promised for tonight with the forecast of showers.

Chicago's temperature late this afternoon stood at 96, bettering by one degree the record for June 23 set in 1923 and coming within three degrees of equalling the record for any month of June. It also was the hottest day thus far this year.

Early reports from many other points in the central portion of the country indicated the fall of heat records may be more or less general. Centralia, Ill., which yesterday registered a temperature of 105, started today sweltering at 96.

NEW DIVORCE LAW NOW OPERATIVE IN MEXICO

CUERNAVACA, Mexico, June 23.—(AP)—The final step to make constitutional the Puente divorce law, under which hundreds of Americans obtained divorces here in the last three years, was taken today with publication in the official gazette of a state government decree ratifying the law.

The national supreme court early this month declared the law unconstitutional because it was enacted by Provisional Governor Puente without the approval of a regularly elected Morelos state congress. The many Americans and Mexicans who had been divorced under the law were consequently perturbed, but the action of the new state government removes their cause for worry.

T. W. LAMONT UNABLE TO APPEAR BEFORE COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, June 23.— (AP) — Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co. of New York, has advised Chairman McFadden of the house banking committee, that he would be unable to appear tomorrow before the committee on the McFadden resolution to prohibit Federal Reserve and national banks from purchasing German reparation bonds.

McFadden announced, however, that Secretary Mellon and Under-Secretary Cotton of the state department would testify. Mellon is to appear Wednesday.

The resolution would prohibit the purchase by the banks of any of the $100,000,000 of German reparation bonds.

STATUS OF ANTI-CRIME CAMPAIGN IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, June 23.—(AP)— With a former city hall employe named as the slayer of Jake Lingle, Tribune crime reporter, and formal declaration of Protestant churches to aid the war to eradicate organized crime and snap the bond between it and politics, the campaign to free Chicago of gang domination proceeded today, but without tangible results.

James "Red" Forsythe was the man indicated by the police as the actual slayer of Lingle, who was shot down from behind two weeks ago today in the pedestrian subway that leads from the public library under Michigan avenue to the Illinois Central station at Randolph street.

It was said that persons who saw the assassin drop his pistol near Lingle and escape in the crowd had declared Forsythe's description tallied with the man they saw in the subway.

If any reason was known for the slaying of Lingle by Forsythe, it was not announced, and regret was expressed by state's attorneys' assistants pursuing the investigation that his name had been published as the one who committed the murder.

LORENZ DENIED CLEMENCY BY THE BOARD OF PARDONS

HARTFORD, June 23.—(AP)—Within sight of the spot where on the night of March 31, he shot Nils E. Anderson, for which he was condemned to die, Henry O. Lorenz was given a hearing on his petition for commutation of sentence by the board of pardons this afternoon, but was denied clemency and will be hanged at the state prison on August 12.

The decision of the board came within an hour after the hearing at which pleas for mercy were made by Lorenz's counsel, Wolfrid G. Lundborg, Rev. John M. Phillips, pastor of the Congregational church and finally by Miss Elizabeth Benson, 17 years old West Hartford high school girl, who choking back her tears, said: "I plead for my mother. If they hang him, she'll die." Mrs. August Benson, mother of the girl and a sister of Anderson, had left the room a short time before, unable to bear up as the story of the crime was rehearsed by State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn.

WEETAMOE WON FIRST IN SERIES OF YACHT RACES

NEWPORT, R. I., June 23.—(AP)—Weetamoe led the way home today in the first of a series of eastern yacht club races between the four new America's cup defense candidates and defense boats of 10 years ago. Weetamoe's victory, if it be permitted to stand as such, was not entirely satisfactory for the Morgan boat finished with the little Enterprise, in second place, flying a protest flag.

Yankee, the Boston contender, with Charles Francis Adams, secretary of the navy, at the wheel finished third. Whirlwind was fourth and Vanitie, a 1920 defense candidate, fifth. Resolute, which Secretary Adams sailed to victory in 1920 against Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock IV, did not start today but is expected to do so tomorrow.

MRS. LINDBERGH AND SON RESTING COMFORTABLE

NEW YORK, June 23.—(AP)— Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh and the son who was born to her and the "Flying Colonel" yesterday were resting comfortably tonight, as messages of congratulation from both hemispheres poured in upon them at the Morrow home.

While the country eagerly awaited the name of the baby whose birth it has tumultuously acclaimed, a member of the household said that the family was undecided whether to call him Charles Dwight or Charles Augustus Jr., but evidently the first name had been definitely decided upon as Charles.

NO DEFINITE CLUE TO THE MANIAC SLAYER

NEW YORK, June 22—(AP)— Examining further suspects and puzzling over a new "death" note, the police tonight were still without a definite clue to the identity of the mad assassin of Queens, although almost two weeks have elapsed since the second of his two victims was killed.

A ninth letter purporting to come from the slayer, who signs himself "3-X," was received by Meyer Newmark, a newsdealer of Brooklyn. The letter threatens dire consequences unless Newmark returns certain documents, designated by the symbols, "U-J. 4-33-44."

A New Solution For Indian Empire Affairs

Commission Recommends An All-India Federation, Under the British Crown.

LONDON, June 24—Tuesday—(AP)—An all-India federation which would travel a long road toward eventual self-government under the British crown was recommended to the British and Indian peoples today by the parliamentary commission headed by Sir John Simon as the most effective solution of Indian empire problems.

The recommendation is contained in the second half of the commission's report, covering nearly three years of investigation and labor, and containing deductions derived from the first half of the report published a fortnight ago. It is commented that the commissioners—six in number beside Sir John—had already a unanimous decision on the recommendations when the present disorders began three months ago.

"While we are prepared to recommend a considerable advance toward self-government, and while we believe that a sense of responsibility can only be taught by making men responsible for the effects of their own actions, we desire to secure that experience is not bought too dearly," the report says.

"There must be in India a power which can step in and save the situation before it is too late. There must be provided, as far as may be, safeguards to ensure the maintenance of vital services. The governor general or the governor, as the case may be, must be armed with full and ample powers. We desire to give the fullest scope for self-government, but, if there is a breakdown, then an alternative authority must cooperate unhampered."

The report will be the basis of conversations at the round table conference on India matters to be held in London in October, at which the future of India will be discussed. The nationalist Indian element have already given notice of their intention to boycott the conference.

HIGH LIGHTS OF THE COMMISSION'S REPORT

(By The Associated Press.)

It recommends an all-Indian federation as the "first step toward self-government."

It suggests joining the Indian princes and provinces of British India in a union, each autonomous according to their capacity, increasing in autonomy with their increasing capacity.

It proposes besides the federation a power "to step in and save the situation" if the federation breaks down, a governor, viceroy, or governor general armed with full powers.

It asks for increase in the number of persons entitled to vote, by about three times the present two and one-half per cent of population, and an increase in the ministerial bodies.

It seeks the end of dyarchy, under which natives participate in the government in sharply defined status in limited collaboration with no advancement.

It seeks to retain protection of frontiers as an empire matter, not purely Indian.

It urges elaboration of the financial system and for the strengthening of educational and other work.

It urges separation of Burma and India, joined, it says, by "political accident."

It seeks a special form of government in the northwest province (Peshawar.)

POLITICAL DEMONSTRATIONS SUSPENDED IN BOMBAY

BOMBAY, June 23.—(AP)—The rain which yesterday halted a nationalist demonstration has dampened the outdoor activities of Mahatma Gandhi's followers and it is understood that the Bombay provincial congress committee has decided to suspend political demonstrations and similar activities while the downpours of the monsoon continue.

In the meantime they will continue to boycott foreign goods and spread the gospel of homespun clothing, it is learned.

The rainy season has not entirely halted picketing, however, for tonight volunteers took post in front of shops in the Fort area and 24 of them were arrested.

CONFIDENT OF PASSAGE OF THE LONDON NAVAL TREATY

WASHINGTON, June 23.— (AP) — Gaining a majority of 16 to 4 in the senate foreign relations committee, the London naval treaty was put before the senate today with its advocates confident of ratification.

Proponents of the agreement were confident the four to one ratio would be maintained in the senate on a vote of ratification, assuring easily the necessary two-thirds majority.

Chairman Borah, of the foreign relations committee, laid the treaty before the senate with a simple resolution proposing its ratification. He submitted no report from the committee.

$10,000,000 GIFT TO DIFFUSE KNOWLEDGE OF SHAKESPEARE

NEW YORK, June 23.—(AP)—The will of the late Henry C. Folger, former chairman of the Standard Oil Co. of New York, leaves approximately $10,000,000, a world-famous Shakespeare collection and a museum to house it in, as a gift to the United States "for the promotion and diffusion of knowledge in regard to Shakespeare."

The museum building is now under construction in Washington adjacent to the property of the Congressional library. The will, which will be filed within the next few days, places administration of the collection in the hands of the trustees of Amherst college.

SEVILLE, Spain, June 23—(AP)—Seville today found itself in the grip of a sudden general strike in which the police, hard put to quell demonstrations, used firearms with injury of many of the strikers.

Tonight, with order restored, many of the victims were in hospitals, their condition critical. Two score others were imprisoned, while large numbers of police patrolled the city's principal streets.

The death of a woman olive worker, Antonia Vargas Bravo, laid to police who suppressed a partial strike Saturday, precipitated today's labor crisis. The strike was sudden and virtually complete. Workers thronged the streets and started to assemble in various quarters. The society of Olive Workers had certified the woman's death had been caused by wounds and a committee of agitators had circulated inflamatory literature widely.

The governor of Seville issued a statement that the woman had died June 21 in childbirth in a Seville hospital and that she had no part in Saturday's Olive Workers' strike. He said he had been advised the strike had been planned.

Many of the striking demonstrators gathered at the burial of the bravo woman today.

Strikes have been declared in 32 bakeries, as part of the general tieup, the continuation of which tonight seemed indefinite. Military bakers were sent into the bakeries under guard of troops tonight, after the government had requisitioned all of the affected shops.

SOUTHERN CROSS IS IN FLIGHT FROM IRELAND TO THE UNITED STATES

PORT MARNOCK, Irish Free State, June 24 (Tuesday)—(AP)—Captain Charles Kingsford Smith and his three comrades in the famous airplane "Southern Cross" took off from the beach here on a trans-Atlantic flight to America at 4:27 a. m., (10:27 EST Monday.)

The Australian ace sent his big plane whirling down a three and a half mile runway. He had on board 1298 gallons of gasoline, which he estimated would be enough for 28 hours of flying. With good weather he hoped to reach America in from 34 to 35 hours.

The beach was dry for the start and the weather clearing. The runway was lined by civic guards and soldiers with fixed bayonets. A crowd of about 10,000 persons watched the Kingsford-Smith get away on what he promised his financee will be his last great flight.

MAY CUT IMMIGRATION TO RELIEVE UNEMPLOYMENT

WASHINGTON, June 23.—(AP)—A 50 per cent cut in immigration was proposed today to relieve unemployment.

Chairman Johnson of the house immigration committee made the proposal in a resolution to make the reduction effective during the fiscal year 1931.

In an informal statement, however, he conceded that there was little likelihood that his measure would be adopted at this session, but expressed belief that it would be passed next winter, and if it proved effective, would be made a permanent law.

To insure that the reduction would cut down the influx of alien labor, the resolution proposes that in no case could an immigration visa be issued unless the consular official receiving an application was convinced that the applicant's admission "would be not detrimental to employment conditions in this country."

Canada's allotment under the terms of the resolution would be 24,207, Mexico's 9,470, Cuba's 1,778 and Newfoundland's 1,501.

No agriculturists would be admitted from Europe, and their places in the quotas would be taken by relatives of American citizens. No change would be made in the present regulations which permit the entry of skilled labor where a legitimate need for it was shown.

BYRD HAD PERSONAL CHAT WITH LINDBERGH

NEW YORK, June 23.—(AP)—A luncheon talk, a dinner talk, a radio talk, and a personal talk—that was the program today for Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd.

A hard program for one who is a doer rather than a talker, but it has been his daily fare since returning last week from his flight over the south pole, and it will continue to be the order of his days until he definitely retires to private life on July 13.

The day began with the personal talk, a private chat with Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who came from Englewood, N. J., where his young wife and less than a day-old babe were "both doing nicely," to renew a friendship begun when both the Byrd and the Lindbergh Atlantic flights were in preparation.

It was a meeting of mutual congratulations, Colonel Lindbergh receiving congratulations on the birth of his son with a pleased grin and the rear admiral receiving the congratulations of the flying colonel on his Antarctic exploits.

FIGHTING FOR RECALL OF MAYOR BOWLES, DETROIT

DETROIT, June 23.—(AP)— Winners in all the rounds thus far advocates of the recall of Mayor Charles Bowles were hoping tonight to overcome the last barrier to a recall election with the battle in circuit court over an injunction is resumed Wednesday.

Today, the recall sponsors succeeded in having their chairman, Walter B. Cary, listed as a co-defendant with City Clerk Richard W. Reading in the injunction proceedings instituted by Bowles supporters seeking to restrain the city clerk from calling the election demanded by 114,119 voters.

Their counsel also forestalled a suggestion for a five-day delay in court proceedings. A recess was taken, instead, until Wednesday at 2 p. m. when, Judge Arthur Webster warned, attorneys for the mayor should have their briefs ready. The case must proceed, he declared, not later than Wednesday.

WORLD WAR VETS' RELIEF BILL PASSED BY SENATE

Vote Was 66 to 6—Senate Had Rejected Amendment Designed to Bring the Bill More In Line With the Wishes of President Hoover—A Substitute Bill Introduced By Senator Bingham, Embodying the Original Program of the American Legion, Was Voted Down—Connecticut Senators, Bingham and Walcott, Voted Against the Bill—The Measure Now Goes to the House.

WASHINGTON, June 23—(AP)—Disregarding again the wishes of President Hoover and in the face of an almost certain veto, the senate late today passed by the overwhelming vote of 66 to 6 the modified house bill liberalizing provisions of the World war veterans act of 1924.

The avalanche of votes for the measure was roared out by the senate in answer to the last minute protest voiced by Mr. Hoover who quoted Secretary Mellon as saying the legislation would necessitate a certain increase in taxation next year.

Through seven long hours of debate both republicans and democrats deplored the president's stand. A substitute by Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, which he brought from a white house conference, was shouted down without a record vote. Another substitute by Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut, embodying the original program of the American Legion for veterans relief met a similar fate after Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader, had pleaded for it.

The bill which extends compensation up to a maximum of $100 a month to disabled veterans now goes back to the house where quick approval of the senate amendments is predicted.

An immediate veto by President Hoover is expected at the capitol in view of his announcement yesterday. Only nine republicans were recorded in opposition to the measure in the senate today and leaders have little hope of sustaining a veto.

The six who voted against the measure were Senators Bingham and Walcott, Connecticut; Gillett, Massachusetts; Hastings, Delaware; Reed, Pennsylvania and Watson, Indiana. In addition, Senators Moses, New Hampshire, and Grundy, Pennsylvania, were paired against it, while Senator Smoot, republican, Utah, also was opposed to the bill although he was unable to vote.

Thirty-three republicans, including many administration regulars; the lone farmer-labor senator from Minnesota, Shipstead, and 32 democrats voted for the bill.

Senators Shortridge, republican, California and George, democrat, Georgia, led the fight for the bill reported by the finance committee and as finally passed. Shortridge said he feared "the man I supported in the white house has been misled" regarding the bill and contested the president's statement that the measure would cost $102,000,000 the first year. He contended it would cost only $74,000,000.

Leading an assault on Mr. Mellon, Senator Lafollette, republican, Wisconsin, belittled claims that a treasury deficit would result unless taxes were increased following enactment of the veterans measure.

"I venture the assertion," Lafollette said as loud applause broke out in the galleries, "that Andrew W. Mellon has never been right regarding any prediction of a deficit made at a time when a measure was pending he did not like."

"He opposed the soldiers' bonus because he said it would create a deficit of $600,000,000, yet within 90 days we had a surplus of $200,000,000," the Wisconsin senator asserted. "So that if the greatest secretary of the treasury since Hamilton was off to the tune of $300,000,000 in 90 days."

Reed was alone in opposing the committee bill on the floor, but sensing the sentiment of the senate he did not press for a record vote on his substitute.

He contended the bill would take care of only 100,000 or about one-third of the total veterans who could not trace their disabilities to service origin. His substitute would have provided a disability allowance or pension of from $12 to $40 a month depending on the degree of disability.

Opponents of the Reed plan contended it was inadequate and expressed surprise that it should have been brought in just before the final vote after the finance committee had first tentatively approved and then rejected a democratic plan based on the same principle after republican leaders had consulted Mr. Hoover.

Reed also lost in an attempt to eliminate from the bill a provision to compensate as well as hospitalize veterans who contracted venereal diseases while serving in the war.

The measure as passed liberalizes existing law by providing a presumption of service incurrence or aggravation for disabilities becoming manifest to a 10 per cent degree before Jan. 1, 1930. The present presumptive date is Jan. 1, 1925.

It also adds a long list of diseases to the presumptive clause and provides compensation of $8 a month to veterans while being hospitalized for diseases and injuries not incurred in line of duty; $30 a month for wives of these veterans without children; $40 for wives having one child, and $6 additional for those having more than one child.

Any compensation granted under the bill would be paid for not more than three years after its enactment. Meanwhile congress would make a further study of veterans' relief.

In a statement John Thomas Taylor, chairman of the national legislation committee of the American Legion, called upon the house "to accept the disabled veterans' bill just as it was passed by the senate."

Taylor said Director Hines of the Veterans bureau "repeatedly testified before the house and senate committees that one provision in the bill would save the government $42,000,000 and that if enacted into law the bill would run for three years."

"Under these circumstances," he said, "the bill as passed by the senate will only cost $32,000,000 and will bring relief to more than 100,000 distressed veterans and their families not now covered by law."

ROTARIANS CELEBRATING THEIR SILVER JUBILEE

CHICAGO, June 23.—(AP)— The receptions accorded ideals of Rotary International in 62 nations of the world were depicted in a series of tableaux tonight at the Chicago stadium in view of more than 15,000 visiting Rotarians and their friends. The program was the first of a series arranged for the entertainment of delegates to the organization's silver jubilee.

The entertainment followed an afternoon of business sessions at which plans for next year and the legislation coming before the delegates were discussed. Prominent in the discussions of the work to be carried out was the proposal forwarded by Secretary Ray Lyman Wilbur of the interior department to enlist world wide Rotary cooperation in a campaign to reduce illiteracy among the various nations.

Paul Harris, founder of Rotary, who with several associates established the first group in Chicago 25 years ago, was accorded the place of honor at tonight's program. His message to Rotarians assembled here and their 153,000 fellow members in 3,825 clubs throughout the world, said that hearts of men must be moulded so mutual understanding and good will will take the place of fear, hatred and war.

SEARACHING IN MOUNTAINS FOR MISSING BOY SCOUT

RIVERSIDE, Calif., June 23. —(AP)—Over the rugged, snow-draped crags of Mt. San Jacinto, 10,000 feet above the southern California desert, despairing but determined searchers led by veteran Alpinists, hunted tonight for 12-year old Harold Johnson, Boy Scout, son of R. J. Johnson, postmaster at Corona.

Harold strayed from a company of scouts on a hiking expedition last Friday. He had bedding as was versed in mountain and timber lore and known to be resourceful. But the fact he has a foot ailment and virtually no food caused friends to doubt he might survive until found.

An army aviator yesterday spied a boy he thought might be Harold, but no trace of him was found by the land searching party. The chief fear was that he may have fallen over a cliff and be lying injured and helpless in some canyon or crevasse.

Search was to continue into the night despite the growing feeling of its futility.

PIECES OF YACHT WRECKAGE BROUGHT TO NEW LONDON

NEW LONDON, June 23. — (AP) — Pieces of wreckage and a broken ring buoy of the schooner yacht Varuna which sank in Long Island sound Saturday off Larchmont, N. Y., after being run down by another yacht, were brought to the Coast Guard academy wharf today by the Pequot, coast guard cable ship.

The Pequot's attention to the sunken craft was called by a speedboat. A mast of the Varuna, owned by John Remsen Bishop, of White Plains, N. Y., protruded above the water.

The yacht was run down by the Shadow K, owned by Carl G. Fisher. Two passengers aboard the Varuna and her crew of six were rescued after they were thrown into the water.

There were no marks on the bodies, however, all the carcasses were lying some distance apart. The heifers were among a herd of 30 pedigreed cows. The felling of many trees in this vicinity had led many to believe that a "twister" accompanied the storm.

Further damage from a downpour of rain and a considerable amount of hail was reported as having been caused during a storm which swept about this section Sunday afternoon, striking especially heavily in the town of Hampton and neighboring districts.

DANIELSON

THREE MEMORIAL WINDOWS GIVEN TO ST. ALBAN'S CHURCH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, June 23—Three beautiful stained glass windows have been presented to St. Alban's church by Guy P. Miller of Bridgeport in memory of relatives that lived in the parish, and they are to be installed early in July.

The windows are to be placed in the sanctuary. Two of the windows are 8 feet 6 inches in length, the central one 9 feet long. The subject of the window that is to occupy the position at the left is the Nativity. The one at the right depicts the Resurrection and the central one, over the altar, the Ascension.

The windows have been manufactured by the Payne studios of Patterson, N. J., and are said to be very beautiful.

July 9 has been provisionally selected as the time for the dedication service. On that day the Colonel Daniel Putnam association will hold its annual gathering in Brooklyn, and Mr. Miller, who will be in attendance there, has suggested that the service be arranged for that evening. Rev. J. Rees Jones, the rector, said this afternoon that he has written Mr. Miller agreeing to arrange the service for that date.

Mr. Miller has been a generous benefactor of St. Alban's church, having in the past presented it with various other memorial gifts.

On Friday of this week Attorney E. L. Darbie, grand master of the Grand lodge of Masons of Connecticut, will be in Greenwich to assist, with other grand officers in the laying of the corner stone of a public library.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Amile Farron.

Mrs. Amile Farron, 75, died this morning at the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam, where she had been a patient for the past three weeks. For some time past she had been in failing health. Mrs. Farron was a native of Canada, a daughter of Custe and Eliza Dupon Tetreault. The greater part of her life was spent in Danielson, where she has been a resident for close to half a century. In addition to her husband, Joseph Farron, Mrs. Farron leaves a son, George, resident in Los Angeles, a daughter, Mrs. Lyman D. Crandon of Watertown, Mass., and a sister, Mrs. Mattie Breault of Providence. She was a member of the Westfield Congregational church.

Pupils attending Killingly High school, outside the senior high, making perfect attendance records during the past school year are: Albert Gallup, Walton Holehouse, Walter Rzezniklewicz, Norman Tremoly, Athena Pappajion, in grade 7; Zegmont Gzesak, John Kohler, Koula Evergates, Iva Lewis, in grade 8; Edward Gasiorek, Philip Gendreau, George Haveles, James Haveles, Roger Nash, Harold Payne, May Berth, Dorothy Corcoran, Gabrielle Fortier, Blanche Goulet, Beatrice Harold, Antonia Haveles, Stella Jaworski, Ella Wheeler, Frances Williams, Mary Pike, in grade 9; James Couture, Norman Desnoyer, Gordon Gallup, Robert Gay, Burton Hollowell, Jack Huntington, James Ingall, Ronel LeBelle, Richard Wells, Marjorie Codding, Yvedis Daillida, Bridget Jaworski, Muriel Parker, in grade 10; George Ingalls, Isabella Abbott, Ruth Abbo, Priscilla Codding, Frances Gasiorek, Minnie Johnson, Carmen McEwen, Gertrude Nichols, Ruth Smith, in grade 11; George Couture Sheldon Ennis, Francis Hammett, Herbert Motz, Loretta Mullen, in grade 12.

Mrs. Jennie R. Dixon, Rev. Everett S. Lyon and Rev. O. P. Campbell will deliver addresses when the Ashford Baptist Sunday school association holds its regular meeting here on Wednesday, the morning session opening at 10 o'clock, at the Baptist church. There are to be several conferences during the day. All interested in Sunday school work have been invited to attend. There will be attendance from various towns of the country.

King George Jacques said this afternoon that the prospects just now are not very good for East Killingly holding its annual old-time observance of the Fourth. It so happens that King George observes his birthday on the Fourth, and he always has been a leading enthusiast in arranging celebrations of the holiday at East Killingly, but this year finds him temporarily incapacitated by lameness and he does not feel quite equal to his efforts of the past. "But I'm getting better and will be O. K. again after a time," he remarked this afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Abbott of Providence were here yesterday saying adieu to friends before they depart for what is to be a two years' motor trip of the United States. The first long lap of the 25,000 to 30,000 miles they expect to cover before they return will take them to Montana and Wyoming. They will spend several weeks of the summer visiting national parks and other places in the northwest and then will turn south through Colorado en route to New Mexico. Next winter they will spend in Florida and adjoining states. Next spring they go to California, along the Pacific coast, thence from Seattle to Alaska, back to the United States, thence through the Canadian Rockies and, for the second winter, to California and home in the spring of 1932.

Motorists continue to complain of the extra driving hazard that is placed upon them by the practice of a great many people who walk in the street, though even good concrete walks border it. At times they walk three and four abreast. The danger of an accident is often very great, yet, say the drivers, no one seems to do anything to correct the situation.

In the town court this morning the case against Edward Frechette, Danielson, continued from last week, was disposed of by fining him $100 for having operated a motor car while he was under the influence of an intoxicant. Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart, Sergeant G. L. Gardner and State Officer H. Theodore Strand testified as to Frechette's condition at the time of his arrest. Of the fine imposed $50 was remitted. Frechette was represented by Judge Joseph Smith of Moosup.

Another case heard in the town court this morning was that of William Steen, Elmville. He was sentenced to 60 days in jail on charges of intoxication and breach of the peace.

Chief A. P. Woodward of the Danielson fire department and Ira A. Warren, superintendent of the fire alarm telegraphy system, left here today for Rutland, Vt., where they will attend the annual convention of the New England Fire Chiefs' association.

As the Fourth comes on Friday this year, many are looking forward to a triple holiday.

PUTNAM

TRUDEAU MURDER TRIAL OPENS AT WORCESTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 23.—Unmoved by legal proceedings centering about him, Leon A Trudeau, 26, of Webster, walked into the county courthouse at Worcester this morning to answer to a charge of murder in the first degree. The victim of Trudeau's alleged crime was his 24-year-old wife, Mrs. Celia Trudeau, of Lake street, Webster, whose body was found on the Webster-Putnam road, near the Connecticut state line, on the morning of Feb. 22.

Judge Nelson Brown of superior court presided at the opening of the murder case this morning. Most of the morning session was taken up with the counsel on both sides arguing on various motions entered by Trudeau's lawyers. The courtroom held an audience that filled it to capacity. During the early hours, large crowds of curious persons unable to gain admittance to the room, milled about the outside to get a glimpse of the alleged murderer as he was being whisked from the Summer street jail to the courthouse.

Prominent among the state witnesses was Miss Lena Wieczek, being held under bail as a material witness. Miss Wieczek is from Worcester and was first arrested as an accessory after the fact. It was said tonight that the murder trial would swing into action Tuesday with the formal opening of the case by the state of Massachusetts, represented by District Attorney Edwin G. Norman.

The Trudeau murder case is of especial interest to the people of Windham county. The murder is believed to have been committed on the deserted Wieczek farm in Wilsonville, within a mile of the Connecticut state line. Although the body of the young matron was found beaten and strangled at a point well into Massachusetts, Trudeau, after his arrest, confessed to having had an altercation with his estranged wife at the Wieczek farm in Wilsonville a few minutes before she "jumped out of the car" (Trudeau's) on the night preceding the murder.

Attorney Fred W. Cronin of Worcester, attorney for the accused man, has questioned the jurisdiction of Massachusetts in the case and this is one of the motions over which there was an argument at the opening of the trial this morning.

Mrs. Mary Zemba, who on Friday fired several shots at Mrs. Mary Zella of Park street, two of which took effect, was still being held at the local police station today. She is charged with assault. The disposition of the charges against her will be made after physicians examine her to determine her mental condition. It was expected that a doctor would make the examination today.

"Can you give us any information concerning the accident in which six motorists met death on the North Woodstock road today?" was the pith of dozens of telephone inquiries which reached the local Bulletin office late last evening and at intervals this morning. There was an automobile accident on the North Woodstock road Sunday afternoon and the wreckage of one of the cars involved, as it lay alongside the state highway, presented the aspect of a ghastly catastrophe, but fortunately only one member of the party was injured. This was Leslie J. Beatty of 14 Foster street, Webster, Mass. Beatty sustained a laceration of the ankle caused, it is believed, by flying glass.

The grossly exaggerated report to the effect that six occupants of the two cars colliding at the Woodstock corners had been killed spread rapidly and was generally accepted, despite the emphatic denials that such a tragedy had taken place, which were made by this office and by Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart of the state police barracks at Danielson.

Arthur Andrews of Buffalo, N. Y., is spending his annual vacation at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. N. Andrews, of Farrows street.

Captain of Police A. J. Dubreuil has returned to duty after a three-day leave of absence.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Caroline H. Lowell

The funeral of Mrs. Caroline H Lowell, for many years a resident of Pomfret, who died Friday at her home there, was held this morning at 9:30 o'clock with services in the Christ Episcopal church. Rev. Leonard R. Richards, pastor of the church, officiated at the service. The body was shipped to Brooklyn, N. Y., for burial in the family plot in Greenwood cemetery there.

A special session of city court was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Judge M. H. Geissler presided. The only cases presented were those of two men charged with intoxication. They were disposed of by the imposition of a fine in one case, and a jail sentence in the other.

Miss Marjorie C. Bradford, assistant clerk of courts, was in Willimantic today, attending a short calendar session of superior court. A number of Putnam members of the County Bar association, interested in cases which were tried this morning, were present.

Klondike shanty, which for a number of years served as an interlocking tower at the north end of the New Haven road's yards here, has been removed to West Thompson and reopened as a block and signal station. The purpose of the re-opening of the station is part of the railroad's plan for coping efficiently with the section arrangement of the State of Maine express trains which are running regularly over the Norwich branch of the line. Since the onslaught of summer passenger traffic headed for the vacation lands in the northern parts of New England, the fast midnight express train is divided into sections. Several other block and signal stations along the branch have been opened and will remain so during the rush period.

The condition of Joseph Dymek of New York city, injured in a motorcycle accident Sunday morning, was reported at the Day Kimball hospital today as being considerably improved. Dymek is suffering from a fracture of the leg and an abrasion of the skull.

All is quiet on Oak hill. The steel workers whose metallic melodies have for the past month and a half literally driven residents of the section mad, have ceased operations, and now the only disturbance emanating from that spot is an occasional thump of a tester hammering the steel plates on the new one million gallon tank. "It's all done except for the painting," Chief Thurston said this morning.

Lieut. Allan Thayer, 14th Cavalry, U. S. A., stationed at Fort Ethan Allen, Burlington, Vt., left this morning for his post, after spending a short furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Thayer, of King street.

Mrs. Annie S. Rafferty of Grove street, is the owner of a new automobile which is equipped with radio set, unique in design and construction. The device is a large size set cleverly concealed beneath the dashboard. Its operating dials are artistically arranged on the automobile control panel. A loudspeaker is conveniently located in an out-of-the-way corner in the top of the body of the car. The set operates with all the precision and tone quality of the large home radios. Engineers have so designed the set that the variation of radio waves received while the car is in motion has not the slightest effect in marring the reception.

"We advise Palmolive because of its safe, soothing cosmetic oils"

CARRIE B. FARNHAM

well-known beauty expert of NORWICH

"SOAP and water cleanliness is a basic part of all our home beauty treatments. But not any soap will do. We specify Palmolive." So says this beauty shop. And more than 23,000 beauty specialists of distinction, here and abroad, also specify Palmolive.

Why vegetable oils are best

As you know, the skin is very sensitive, and must be very carefully handled. Palmolive Soap lather cleanses without irritation. It leaves the skin soft and smooth, and in wonderful condition for your beauty expert's treatment.

Unless the skin is thoroughly cleansed twice a day, dirt and dust and cream and make-up gather in the pores of your face and soon become hard little accumulations which develop into blackheads and pimples. These unsightly blemishes are a sign of neglect on your own part. Use the right soap, use the right cleansing method, and you are taking the best steps toward complexion beauty.

Palmolive is a pure vegetable oil soap. Its color is the natural color of palm and olive oils. The delicate natural odor of these vegetable oils makes the addition of heavy perfumes unnecessary.

This is the Palmolive treatment

With both hands make a smooth lather of Palmolive Soap and warm water. Massage this gently into the skin, both face and throat, for about two minutes. Then rinse it off with warm water until you can actually feel the accumulation being swept away. Now, give a final rinse with cold water, even icy water. This is refreshing, and closes the pores, preventing too much dirt and grease from getting underneath the surface of the skin.

There is only one person truly qualified to advise you, and this is a trained professional beauty expert, who has spent time and study learning how best to care for your good looks. When she tells you to use Palmolive you have the highest possible authority, and 23,720 such experts, today, advise this vegetable oil soap. You will probably use it for the bath as well as the face. It costs only 10 cents a cake, you know . . . little enough to pay for a safeguard to beauty.

The beauty salon of Carrie B. Farnham, with its skilled operators, offers the highest professional standards in beauty care.

These cosmeticians have had expert training and valuable experience in every department of beauty culture. It is such experts as these who advise Palmolive Soap! Certainly no one could speak with greater authority.

"Your skin must be kept clean and free of irritation. The vegetable oils in Palmolive Soap are soothing, refreshing, penetrating. You should use this palm and olive oil soap twice a day to safeguard complexion beauty."

POLITICAL EXPEDIENCY

Once again the United States senate has turned a cold shoulder on the advice furnished by the president and given its strong approval to the legislation which was presented to it by its finance committee for veteran relief. It is another instance which goes to show that all it desires of a presidential view is to vote in a contrary manner.

The impression must not be gained that the president is opposed to relief for the veterans. That he has clearly set forth. He favors relief, but not to the extent that has been provided for either in the bill that has been approved by the house or by the modified bill which has now received the support of the senate. He has set forth that the legislation is not sound, that it discriminates in favor of those who can get into hospitals and those who cannot, and goes much farther than is justified by conditions. It calls for expenditures which have not received the approval of veteran members and their organizations. It goes far beyond what was sought in the way of relief, and threatens an increase in federal taxation.

All this has been disregarded by congress, as well as all past practices in providing for veteran relief, but Connecticut has cause for much satisfaction in the fact that its senators are recorded as opposed to it, though they have not taken the position that there should not be a fair treatment of the relief demand.

By the course which it has adopted, it will be impossible for congress to dodge the charge of playing politics and making provisions for favorable results by the various members when they come up for election next fall. They have seized upon an opportunity to delve into the public treasury for campaign funds and thereby insuring the votes from a considerable number at the coming election. Rather does the impression grow that they have had their eyes centered upon the election.

Because the senate bill differs from that passed in the house, it will be necessary to return it to that body for approval or change before it will be submitted for presidential action. Unless it receives different treatment than is expected, it bids fair to receive the disapproval of the president, action that will be based upon sound principles rather than political expediency.

INSURED PRESIDENTIAL BACKING

Prior to the New Jersey primary it was proclaimed that the president was giving his support to Dwight W. Morrow. This brought a prompt denial. President Hoover has taken the position that he will not take part in any primary contest, and he did not depart from that decision in the New Jersey contest.

Now that the republicans of New Jersey have disclosed an overwhelming decision in favor of Mr. Morrow, the situation is different. Mr. Morrow is the standard bearer of the republicans of New Jersey. That being the case, nothing stands in the way of a statement to the effect that the president and the administration will give full support to Mr. Morrow, and such has been made. It is reasonable to suppose that the same thing would have been done had either of the other candidates been successful. The choice of candidates rests with the republicans of any state. It is not a matter into which the chief executive can be expected to enter and he has no intentions of so doing.

It is no secret that the president has always thought well of Mr. Morrow. He would not have kept him at Mexico City and he would not have sent him to the London conference if he had not been impressed by his ability and character. He recognizes, of course, the value which such a man as Mr. Morrow will be in the United States senate. Possibly no presidential endorsement is needed in the New Jersey contest, but it is recognized that Mr. Morrow's statement concerning prohibition may have created the impression that he was not looked upon with favor by the president. Such is not the case. President Hoover knows Mr. Morrow's worth and he will not let a difference of opinion on a vital question stand in the way of his senatorial ambitions. The presidential statement of support thus clears up any doubt on that point.

HELPING NICARAGUA

Two years ago the United States undertook the supervision of the elections in Nicaragua at the request of that government. The desire was that there should be a free and open election. It took some time to make the necessary arrangements but that is what Nicaragua received. That it was impressed by the opportunity afforded is evident, but because one supervision was successful it did not follow that subsequent elections could be carried out without the stimulating and protective influence that was exerted on the previous occasion.

Nicaragua has been convinced that one successful election should be followed by others. It has, therefore, sought the aid of the United States in supervising its congressional election, which will be held later in the year. As supervisor, in response to that request, this government has detailed Captain A. W. Johnson, who has already left for Nicaragua to prepare for that event. He is allowing plenty of time in which to get in touch with conditions, set forth the necessary regulations and direct activities in keeping therewith. He has gone to help that republic to repeat election conditions whereby those who are entitled to vote will be permitted every opportunity to do so without fear of intimidation, and to prevent the polls being controlled by influences which, without supervision, might seek to restore the undesirable conditions which formerly prevailed.

In rendering this service for Nicaragua, this country has no other interest than it had two years ago. Deplorable conditions existed. It is too soon to feel that they could not easily be restored. Through continued examples of what an election should be, it is to be hoped that the time will come in the not distant future when Nicaragua will be able to master the situation itself and show the proper civic pride in demanding nothing else. This country has no other than an altruistic purpose in rendering such assistance to others, but it is certainly hoped that others who need better election conditions will be inspired by the results being obtained in Nicaragua and apply them to their own needs. Nicaragua is looking well to its own interests and its government is to be commended for the attitude it is taking.

COL. FIERRO'S ACCOMPLISMENT

When Colonel Lindbergh flew into Mexico and on to the countries south, it was a flight from which good results were expected. It was proclaimed as a good-will visit and it was expected to bring the nations of Central America and northern South America closer together. It was looked upon as the initiation of flying service between the countries that would not only result in the quicker handling of the mails but would inspire those countries to greater interest and effort for aviation.

It was not the first time they had seen a flying machine, but it brought before them a world-known figure, one who could be expected to inspire them with the need of backing increased airplane development. Whether the direct result of that flight or not, it has been noticeable that Mexico has been showing increased ambitions aviation-wise, since that time. The flight made by Colonel Lindbergh gave them something to aim at. Unfortunately, in the two attempts which have been made by Mexican aviators to repeat his performance, the first was killed almost before he got started and since then another long non-stop flight from Mexico to Brazil resulted fatally.

Not daunted by the death of Captain Carranza in New Jersey, as he left New York for Mexico City, Colonel Fierro set forth on the second endeavor by a Mexican aviator to cover the distance without stopping. He was confident that he could cover the distance in 16 hours. He was not only successful in reaching his destination, but he came within 35 minutes of the time he set. He thus not only lowered the record but he may well have gained the Lindbergh reputation of being on time.

This flight should mean much to Mexican aviation. Colonel Fierro has proved his ability as a long-distance flier and navigator. He has set a new mark at which others can shoot. He has demonstrated Mexican flying skill and it is to be expected that his achievement will be an inspiration for still greater aviation activity in the republic to the south. While Colonel Lindbergh brought the nations closer by his accomplishment, Colonel Fierro has helped to further annihilate distance. Look at it as you please, it certainly points to greater things in the future.

NO AMERICAN BOMBERS

Under ordinary circumstances there would be no objection if manufacturers in this country received and filled an order for 20 flying machines from a foreign government. It would be looked upon as a business transaction favorable to American industry.

When, however, the soviet government of Russia sets out to acquire 20 bombing planes, it is a move that may well be looked upon with suspicion. Russia has its object, of course, and when it seeks to place the order in this country it doesn't necessarily follow that this government will prohibit the filling of it, but when the government, upon learning of such a prospective deal, indicates that it regards it with disfavor, respect is invariably shown for such an opinion.

That is what has been done in the case of the Baltimore concern which could probably have received the soviet order for bombers involving a contract to the amount of $2,000,000. Upon learning the government's attitude, the negotiations were called off.

What the government knows about the soviet desire for bombers has not been revealed. Whether it had been attempting to get them from other countries without success before it began negotiations here is not known. It seems impossible to look upon such preparations as other than putting that country in a position where it can carry out some of its trouble-making ideals and it is quite apparent that no country is going to contribute to something which may be turned upon itself.

The soviet government doesn't stand in the right kind of a position for this government to approve all of its trade propositions, and yet looking with disfavor upon the order for bombers is no different than the government has done in regard to foreign loans which it felt might be employed for war purposes.

When the president of Cuba cuts his own salary in two while making a fight to keep the budget down, he makes an appeal that should produce results.

Just because some of Mr. Morrow's friends are mentioning him as presidential timber doesn't necessarily mean that he is being groomed for 1932. Mr. Morrow says it is bunk, but who knows?

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 23—The Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the house of representatives, is soon to lose his ecclesiastical home, for the Metropolitan Methodist church, of which he is pastor, has been purchased by the government and will be replaced by a government building.

And speaking of house chaplains recalls that day during the World war, when Billy Sunday, then holding a series of revival meetings in Washington, opened the house with prayer, in place of the regular chaplain.

It was when antagonism towards Germany was at fever heat; word had gone forth that Billy Sunday would offer the opening prayer, and as a result practically all the 435 members of the house were in their seats when the session was called to order by the speaker.

The galleries were crowded, and in the press gallery every seat and every inch of standing room, was filled by correspondents, craning their necks and straining their eyes to catch a glimpse of the famous evangelist.

Billy Sunday stood first at the clerk's reading desk directly in front of the speaker; soon he was striding back and forth on the little platform, gesticulating and exhorting as he prayed. He lost no time in telling the Lord, in forceful and explicit language, just what ought to be done with Germany; as an enemy of the United States; the allotted three minutes for the opening prayer passed unheeded; Billy waxed strong on patriotism and pointed to the great flag behind the speaker's chair, as he dramatically prayed the Lord to "stand by." It was a tense moment in that huge hall where the declaration of war had but recently been pronounced by President Wilson.

Then came the "Amen," slowly, and dramatically pronounced.

Did that great assembly stand with bowed heads?

It did not.

The members of the house forgot it was a prayer, not a patriot call to arms. They burst into instant and loud applause. Then recalling the occasion, they grinned sheepishly and sank back into their seats, and the business of the day was begun.

If you have ever spent New Year's eve in Washington you have heard the splendid chimes of the Metropolitan church ring out a typical "The king is dead—long live the king" tribute to the "old gentleman with the scythe," and the little winged baby, by which illustrators are apt to depict the old and the new year.

The chimes are the first to be installed in the capital city; the bells bear the names of the donors, and although all inscriptions are quotations from a verse in the Bible, some are quite unusual.

Take for instance, the bell given by Rarey, the famous trainer and horse jockey of that period. The bell bears his name, and the inscription is of his own selection. It reads: "In that day shall there be upon the bells of the horses holiness into the Lord."

The passing of the Metropolitan church arouses interest among many who not of that faith, have listened to the chimes, and gazed on the wonderful spire, which is considered the most beautiful of any in Washington.

And now the building, erected about 1870 is to give place to a modern government structure.

At the dedication of the chimes, Gen. Grant, who was a regular attendant at the church was present and on the walls of which is now a bronze tablet in his memory. According to tradition part of the pulpit and altar rail are made from wood brought from the Holy Land and the Garden of Gethsemene, and from the Cedars of Lebanon; the keystone above the arch over the pulpit was cut from a stone found in the ruins of Solomon's Temple and bears the inscription "Jehova Jireh."

Twining up the sides of the church is an ivy brought from the tomb of Martin Luther. Steps will be taken to preserve this historic relic.

President McKinley was a member of the Metropolitan church, and its books bear record of many others notable in political and political life of the capital.

The new assistant secretary of war, Frederick H. Payne, and Mrs. Payne of Massachusetts, propose to spend the entire summer in Washington regardless of congress or the weather.

The secretary feels he wants to become absolutely familiar with the duties of the office; and Mrs. Payne will "stand by," until the job is finished.

They have established themselves house keeping, and have made big strides towards fitting in with Washington social and official life.

They had many friends here before Mr. Payne assumed the office. Among them are the Tilsons' for Col. John Tilson and Col. Payne are old cronies. Tilson was in charge of the house measures on ordnance, during the world war, as Tilson is an expert along that line. He knew Payne then, and regarded him as an ordnance expert and a fine fellow.

Whether or not it is so, folks here are giving Tilson the credit of placing Payne's name before the President, as a man who would be remarkably qualified to be assistant secretary of war. As Tilson is one of the closest and most trusted friends of the president, it sounds as if it might be true.

Stories That Recall Others

Verbatim

The desire of political office aspirants to give all the information possible to voters, and the great lengths to which they have gone to prepare speeches of high oratorical quality, was demonstrated clearly recently at a political meeting.

Mr. Aspirant, who was the principal speaker of the evening meeting, was in the midst of a long, dramatic recital of the great work of his political party and was reading both rapidly and forcefully from a neatly typewritten manuscript when he suddenly brought his speech to a temporary halt by reading part of the author's instructions to the speaker. The instructions were "Stop here for applause."

Six-year-old Kenneth Azdell, of Hickman, Ky., was brought to a Memphis (Tenn.) hospital to be cured of the cigarette habit. He has been rolling his own for three years. When Kenneth was three, he wanted to "smoke like daddy." His father gave him a cigarette "To make him so sick he would never want another one." But Kenneth did not get sick. He got the habit, and although his parents tried to break it many times, the lad would become ill when they took his makin's away.

SHORT NOTICE

The handsome traveler looked over at the pretty girl time and again.

At frequent intervals the pretty girl glanced at the handsome traveler just across the aisle.

Once their eyes met. It was enough.

She gave him one-fifth of a smile and he bridged the gap with a magazine.

"I'm not going to apologize," sighed the man, settling down beside the girl. "After all, this life is too short to bother about conventions—always."

"Yes?" murmured the girl, making more room for him.

"But what will we tell your mother?" smiled the handsome man, chuckling at his private brand of humor.

"Indeed, what can tell tell her?" returned the maid.

"Perhaps we could find some mutual friends, if we went over a long list of acquaintances in six or seven states." He turned his eyes full on the girl, waiting for a reply.

"It isn't necessary," she finally told him. This time he was rewarded with four-fifths of a smile.

"No, I thought not. Are you going far—going home?" The girl shook her head.

"Yes and no," she confided. "I am leaving home and I'm going to New Castle, Washington." The man sighed.

"What a commotion you'll make when the population gets a lingering look at their new arrival," he declared.

"Thank you but they've seen me before," she said simply. "I just went home on a visit. My sister got married and I had to act as bridesmaid, much against my will."

The man considered this gravely.

"Did you catch the posies?" he quizzed.

"No, I let the others scramble for the bouquet. I have no great desire to be next."

"But you should. When the right one comes along."

"Perhaps—and did you say you were a married man?" There was a wee twinkle in the girl's eyes as she sprung the query.

"Not you." The man gazed out of the window. "No," he added, "in spite of all the pretty girls I've met."

"On trains?"

"Trains and steamers, hotels and private houses. But, of course, I never met a girl like you." The girl laughed softly.

"Oh, you must have," she argued. "There are at least six like me."

"Why six?"

"I have five sisters—all good looking."

"Hmm!"

"And about telling mother," continued the girl. "I shall certainly do that little thing, by mail."

The man stirred uneasily.

"Why—what do you mean, tell her by mail?"

"I'm going to write to her as soon as I've had lunch in the dining car."

"Yes? And what will you say to—to your mother?"

"Oh, I'll say, 'guess who tried to flirt with me on the train? Then I'll say, 'I was flabbergasted, mummy, to find that a handsome traveling man turned out to be—'"

"Er—go on," begged the man.

"Turned out to be little Fudge Nichols, who used to lug my books to school at Benton Harbor and tell me lies about the railroads and dining cars and—"

"Hmpp," cried the man, "so we did know each other, anyhow." He picked up his magazine. "I might have known little Nancy Heller—by that nose and the suspicious grin."

"Aren't you going to have lunch with me?" asked the girl sweetly.

"Why—ah, no thanks, I'm not hungry." The man backed off. "I get off at the next station anyhow. Business first, you know. Give my regards to your folks—and mother."

The girl nodded and smiled—five-fifths of a smile this time—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 23—In the lobby of the State-War building is a bronze tablet commemorating horses and mules which served in France during the war.

It was a rather belated gesture, conceived by the horse lovers in and out of the military service.

So far as the Bystander knows the next episode of after-the-war days touching upon the part dumb animals played in the struggle came this year.

It was the announcement that a decoration for valor in action had been awarded to Curtis Harrison of Columbus, Ohio, for what he did to save the horses of his battalion wagon train in a gas attack.

600 Gas Shells

Harrison was assistant battalion wagon master when some 600 gas shells were dropped into the town of Migneville when his train was halted. He managed to adjust gas masks on all his animals. Then follows this notation:

"Later, when shrapnel and high explosives were thrown into town and penetrated the barn in which the animals were billeted, Corporal Harrison entered the place alone to care for them, being knocked over twice by the conclusion of high explosives and twice wounded in the leg by pieces of shrapnel.

With utter disregard for his own safety he remained on duty for twelve hours in the effort to keep the animals in places of safety that they might be ready to effect a movement of the battalion next night."

The Bystander has looked over the army's big Book of Heroes. It records briefly the act for which each decoration or citation was awarded. It is a wonderful story of courage; but there is nothing quite like this case of Corporal Harrison.

In battle, with human life at stake, courage is a common enough quality. Records of any army write that story clearly. But Harrison's case was different. And probably he acted with no thought of heroics or decorations. It was just his job and he did it; that was all.

Comradeship

Cavalrymen, once the corps d'elite in any army, although now overshadowed by their brethren of the air, always have been noted for the affection troopers develop for their mounts. Man and horse form a cavalry battle unit. Their's is a glorious comradeship in training and in war.

One of the most effective British war pictures is keyed to that. It depicts a squad of mounted scouts galloping away from an advancing enemy. In the foreground a horse is down and dying, his rider beside him, risking death or capture by his delay. The grim face of the trooper is working with emotion as he turns to speed after his flying comrades. And the title is just: "Goodbye, old pal."

But who ever heard of an army mule being called "old pal?"

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Peter Tries to Call Jerry Muskrat

Be sure you know just what to do,
Lest you in vain your action rue.
—Old Mother Nature.

Peter Rabbit sat on the bank of the Smiling Pool. The Black Shadows lay heavy across half of it. It was very still and the water was as smooth as a sheet of glass. Peter was watching for Jerry Muskrat. He had been watching for some time. Jerry hadn't appeared. He had seen and heard nothing of Jerry. He wondered if Jerry could be somewhere over in those Black Shadows. You see, Peter wanted somebody to talk to. Redwing the Blackbird had gone to sleep long ago. For some unknown reason, Grandfather Frog was nowhere about. There was no one.

There was a sharp, sudden boom just over Peter's head that made him jump. Yes, sir, it actually made him jump. You see, it was so wholly unexpected that for an instant Peter didn't realize who or what had made that noise. Then he realized that it was Boomer the Nighthawk. Boomer had swooped down in that heedless way of his to check himself just above Peter's head, making that loud noise. And then his swift wings had taken him up in the air again. Peter hadn't even had time to protest.

The faintest of faint odors tickled the wabbly little nose of Peter. It was an odor that he recognized. It was an odor that he never got anywhere excepting around the Smiling Pool, or in certain places along the Laughing Brook and the Big River. Peter sniffed two or three times and finally caught it again.

"Jerry is somewhere around," said Peter with a grin, "for that is his own special perfume that I smell. Several others of my acquaintance carry perfume, but none like that that Jerry Muskrat likes so much."

Of course, Peter meant the musk which has given Jerry his name of muskrat. Unlike Jimmy Skunk's, Jerry Muskrat's perfume is not unpleasant. Peter rather enjoyed it as he sniffed and sniffed, for it was not too strong. Then, too, he felt certain that Jerry must be near, or there would be none of that odor.

"I know what I'll do," thought Peter. "I told Jerry Muskrat that I would not thump on the roof of his house. I won't thump to be mean, but I'll just call him. If I thump once or twice, he'll know that I'm here and then perhaps he'll come out. It's a good thing that I know just where his house is in the bank. If I didn't, I wouldn't know where to come. I won't thump hard. I'll thump lightly and Jerry will understand."

So Peter hopped along until he judged he was right over Jerry Muskrat's house. To make sure, he peered over the edge of the bank. He could seee an entrance under water—a hole. Peter hopped back a little way, so as to get right over Jerry's bedroom. At least, that was what he was trying to do. He knew that from that opening down under water a quite long hall led at a slant up to a snug bedroom just a little way below the grassroots.

Peter thumed lightly; then hopped over to the edge of the bank and loked down. He expected to see Jerry Muskrat come out of that hole down under water. Jerry didn't come out. So, after waiting a few minutes, Peter went back and thumped again, this time a little harder than before. Once more he hurried to the edge of the bank and looked down. He waited in vain. No Jerry Muskrat appeared. A third time Peter went back, and this time he thumped twice and he thumped hard.

"There!" said he. "I guess that will wake him up. He must have been sound asleep." Then Peter once again hurried to the edge of the bank and looked down. Some one shot out of that hole under water, but it wasn't Jerry Muskrat.

YOUR HEALTH

Parents and Teachers Should Know About Posture

By Sven Lokrantz, M. D., Los Angeles.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Good posture is one of the fundamental principles of good health. In considering the posture of the school children we should think of three positions: (a) habitual posture, (b) relaxed posture, (c) attention posture. By habitual posture we mean the position assumed with no strain of the different segments, the head, chest and abdomen; by relaxed posture we mean the position assumed when muscular control of bodily balance and gravity is at its minimum; while attention posture is that in which all muscles dealing with gravity and balance are active. We should strive to bring the habitual posture as near as possible to the attention posture.

There are several types of poor posture. 1. Round shoulders is the most common of incorrect postural conditions. In a picture of round shoulders we have forward head, scapulae protrudling, depressed chest, and protruding abdomen. 2. Scoliosis is a lateral curvature of the spinal column. This condition as well as the previous one may be postural or structural. Because of the child's clothing it is sometimes difficult for a layman to detect this condition. A difference in the height of shoulders, of hips, and of the tips of the scapulae are characteristic signs. 3. Holding the head forward is common among school children suffering from malnutrition. There may be only a slight tilting of the head forward. The positions of the different segments of the body are otherwise correct. The poise of the head is characteristic of the person, his breeding and character. 4. Lordosis is the forward curvature in the lumbar (lower) region of the spinal column. This condition is common among gymnasts and children doing much athletic work and is often due to a misunderstanding of the right position. It is very harmful and is the cause of many conditions that lead to poor health. The lumbar curve is one of the most beautifully curved lines in the human body. 5 Flat back shows a flattened spine in the lumbar region, which is in a vertical line with the dorsal part of the spine. This condition is not so common among school children. 6. Improper balance, although the segments of the body may be in right relation to each other, finds the entire body inclined forward or backward. The forward inclination is particularly harmful. It usually means an insufficient oxygen supply for the lungs.

Poor posture often leads to the following conditions; weakened lungs; damaged heart, due to diminished space for development; imperfect brain development; protruding abdomen; failing and dropping of the stomach and intestines; hernia and appendicitis; malnutrition; constitutional weakness and fatigue. In poor posture the body loses many of the lines that have been made eternal by great sculptors and painters, and a disfigured bony frame is one in which beauty of body lines has been destroyed. So posture is a matter for both parents and teachers to watch carefully.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The New England Knitting Co., Winsted.

The New England Knitting company was organized October 13, 1887, for the manufacture of knitted fabrics, and rented a small part of the property of the New England Pin company in Winsted. Its principal sponsor was Leverett W. Tiffany, who was its first general manager, retaining that office until 1920, when he retired from the company. The original officers were: Henry Gay, president; E. B. Gaylord, secretary and treasurer; L. W. Tiffany, general manager. In 1902, J. E. Spaulding replaced Mr. Gay as president, and L. W. Tiffany replaced Mr. Spaulding in 1911 in that office, all other officers remaining the same in the meantime.

The company started manufacturing wool and wool mixed underwear of the medium and heavy weights of standard use, and still continue to make the same goods. They sell only jobbers and some chain stores, and enjoy a good business on their goods. During the World war about 80 per cent. of the manufacturing was sold to the United States army. Production runs normally about 55,000 dozen a year. The mill has been closed for only three months in 43 years.

In 1920, L. W. Tiffany resigned and E. B. Gaylord took over the management with Irving C. Valentine as assistant, the former being elected president upon Mr. Tiffany's death in 1927. The company bought its rented quarters in 1926 and gradually expanded, buying the entire property of the New England Pin company in 1930. Goods are sold by C. C. Valentine & Co., who first handled the company's product as agent, but who is now represented on the board.

The capital stock is represented by 3000 shares of $100 par stock held for the most part locally. The present officers are:

E. B. Gaylord, president and treasurer; I. C. Valentine, secretary and assistant treasurer; Wm. H. Phelps, vice president.

I. C. Valentine is at present acting directly as manager of the plant, working along lines of policy as outlined by the president and directors.

The Berlinger Einheitzeit company operates a system of electrically-controlled clocks throughout Berlin. Burglars entered the company's branch station in the suburb of Pankow with the intention of stealing the copper wire and lead stored there. They cut down all the wires in the building and all the electric clocks in Pankow promptly stopped running. The police reached the Pankow station just as the burglars were about to leave.

WEDDINGS.

Barry—Mahoney

One of the prettiest of June weddings occurred Monday morning at 8 o'clock at St. Patrick's church when Miss Mary Eleanor Mahoney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James O. Mahoney of No 5 Falls avenue, became the bride of Richard Joseph Barry of Hartford.

The ceremony was performed by Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael H. May who presided at the nuptial mass. Seated in the sanctuary was Rev. Raymond J. LaFontaine of St. Thomas seminary, Hartford. The sanctuary of the church was banked with palms, ferns, mountain laurel, and baskets of spring flowers. On the altar was an attractive display of deep pink gladioli, Boston ferns, and carnations.

The bride had as her only attendant her sister, Miss Jane Dorothea Mahoney. The best man was James J Nester of Hartford, a close personal friend of the groom.

The bride was charmingly attired in a colonial gown. The bodice was of pale pink taffeta, and the tulle skirt in bouffant style was in tiers shading from pale pink to a deep rose. Her picture hat of pink horsehair was attractively trimmed with a soft pink bow. The maid of honor wore a gown of the same period with colors ranging from apple green to emerald. Both the bride and her attendant carried colonial bouquets of old fashioned flowers.

The musical program was directed by Henry J. La Fontaine. During the service the Ave Maria by Percy B. Kahn was rendered by Miss Sadie Driscoll, and the Veni Creator was sung by Roderick F. Sullivan. The communion hymn was a baritone solo by Mr. La Fontaine

Following the ceremonies a breakfast, attended by the immediate families of the bride and groom, was served at the Norwich inn. Mr. and Mrs. Barry left early in the afternoon for an unannounced wedding trip. They will make their home at 133 Dover road, West Hartford, and will be at home to their friends after October 1.

Hess—Vitagliano

The marriage of Melvin Hess of Wisconsin, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hess, and Miss Jennie Vitagliano, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Vitagliano of 54 Division street, was solemnized at St. Mary's Memorial church at 8 o'clock Monday morning, the ceremony being performed by the pastor, Rev. George J. Donahue, with many relatives and friends in attendance. The altar was beautifully decorated with June flowers and palms.

The couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Dominick Jacaruso. The bride, who was charming in a gown of white georgette, wore a bridal veil of tulle caught with orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Jacaruso wore pink georgette with hat to match and carried pink and white roses.

A wedding breakfast and reception were held at the home of the bride's parents after the ceremony and later in the day Mr. and Mrs. Hess left on a honeymoon trip to New York city. Upon their return, in about ten days, they will be at home to their many friends in a newly furnished apartment on Union street.

The bride, who was the recipient of numerous useful and beautiful wedding gifts, wore a suit of tan georgette as a going-away costume. In attendance at the wedding were people from New Britain and New London.

ACKNOWLEDGES COURTESY OF NORWICH TRAFFIC OFFICER

Robert J. Smith, state senator from South Manchester, who was passing through this city on Yale-Harvard boat race day, has acknowledged in a letter to Mayor Lee Roy Robbins the courteous treatment accorded him by a Norwich traffic officer.

The following is the letter to the Norwich mayor:

South Manchester, Conn.,
June 21, 1930

Hon. Lee Roy Robbins
Norwich, Conn.
My dear Mayor:

The writer had occasion to attend the Yale-Harvard boat race at New London yesterday and in the course of my travels went through the city known as the "Rose of New England."

When I arrived in the center of the city I stopped to inquire, from one of your policemen, as to the direction for the road toward the east side of the river. Your officer was so courteous that I could not refrain from dropping this note to you to congratulate you on the hospitality that your police department is apparently showing to strangers. I do not know the officer's name but he was standing at the junction of the two main highways—one leading to the west side of the river and one to the east side over the bridge. On returning home, after dark, through your town the writer by mistake went the wrong way up a one-way street the entire length and up to the time of writing this letter I have not been notified to appear in the Norwich police court.

With kind personal regards, I am

Yours very truly,
ROBERT J. SMITH.

SHOW PROGRESS MADE IN NORWICH SCOUT WORK

In a report by Scout Executive John Sellman, presented to the executive committee, he showed the following progress made in the work:

Four hundred ninety-three scouts enrolled, including 255 tenderfoot, 185 second class, 43 first class. Of the first class, four are life scouts, three star scouts, and one an eagle scout. Some 40 different scouts are now working on merit badges.

There are several troops now meeting whose membership is not yet enrolled. They are: Elizabeth Street school troop, the American Legion troop, the Sterling troop, the Willington troop, the Putnam troop 5.

Three cub packs with meetings weekly at the Jewish synagogue, the United Congregational church and St. Patrick's church.

Cubs groups have also been started in Stafford Springs and in East Woodstock. Boys enrolled and not enrolled therefore receiving some direction from this council approximate 600 boys. This is a very good record when it is recalled that in August 1, ten months ago there were but 84 scouts actually enrolled under this council.

Camping

Indications are that the total number of scouts attending Camp Wakenah (35 last year) will exceed 75 this year. We understand that troop camps of a two weeks' period will be conducted for Putnam scouts and for Willimantic scouts.

Training

Training courses for scoutmasters have been conducted in Norwich, Putnam, Stafford Springs with a total enrollment of 40 men of whom 36 have received certificates of leadership. Two Patrol Leaders training courses have been conducted for boy leaders in Norwich and Stafford Springs with a total enrollment of 50 boys.

At the Norwich May court of honor, one scout became first class, four scouts second class, and 17 received merit badges.

Civic Service

Since the last board meeting scouts have rendered civic service in Norwich as follows:

Numbering houses, flag ceremony at Norwich Town cemetery for French dead, planting memorial trees at Elizabeth street school, making trails and furnishing entertainment at Lucas Memorial park, 208 scouts and cubs marched in Norwich on Memorial day.

We are informed that the scouts participation in Memorial day services in Stafford Springs and in other districts was of a highly commendable nature.

Reading

Three Scout Service libraries are now installed in Norwich, Putnam, and Stafford Springs, respectively, and a check up shows that they are being increasingly used.

Publicity

Our monthly publicity folder reveals that 150 inches of newspaper publicity appeared in the local newspaper since the last board meeting in May with one photogravure of Putnam scoutsmaster in a state paper yesterday.

Jamboree

The major activity occuring since the last board meeting was the Jamboree rally at which 400 scouts from all over the territory gave a very excellent demonstration of scoutcraft activities. Attendance at the Jamboree which was held at the armory approximate 800 persons

Regional Executive To Visit

The Regional Scout Executive Ralph Nodine pays his first visit to this council for purposes of inspection next Monday, May 23. A supper is being planned by the scoutmasters to be held at the Park church at 6.15 as which it is expected members of executive board and interested friends will be present. Following the supper at 8 o'clock it is planned to have all the Boy Scouts of the city meet to greet Mr. Nodine and to receive at the hands of the court of honor the final awards of the season. Reservations for the supper must be made in advance.

PUBLIC HEALTH NURSING SHOWS VARISD ACTIVITIES

The reports of the public health nursing department of the United Workers for the months of April and May show the following varied activities: 1,470 patients were under care on April 1, and the admittance of 156 new patients and the readmittance of 11 brought the total number under care during April to 1,637. A deduction of 148 discharged patients made 1,489 the total of patients under care on May 1. During April, 1,250 visits were made.

The well babies conference at Yantic was held in the recently-remodeled parish house and was rewarded by the registration of 18 children, despite the inclement weather. After the measuring and weighing of these children, feeding and behavior problems were discussed with the mothers. The importance of toxin-antitoxin in preventing diphtheria and the value of the Shick test were especially stressed. Mrs. Clarence E. Carpenter assisted the nurses at the conference.

April also saw conferences in Taftville and Occum. The month of June will introduce to Greeneville a conference to which all of the babies and children not yet in school will be welcomed. This conference will be held in the supper room of the Greeneville Congregational church.

The monthly round table of the board of health nurses and the nurses of the United Workers was held in the town health office. Reports from the mental hygiene congress were heard and discussed.

May ushered in 153 new patients to add to the 1,489 under care on the first of that month; 1,328 calls were made by the nurses during this month. Four Rock Nook children's clinics were held, with an attendance of 238; 57 were registered at eight well babies conferences; and 36 were in attendance at the three tuberculosis clinics held.

At the May meeting of the Graduate Nurses' Association of Connecticut, held in Meriden, the public health nursing department of the United Workers was represented by the following board members and nurses: Miss Edith Young, Mrs. Hibbard Norman, Mrs. Charles Olson, Mrs. Phillip Welles, and the Misses MacKenzie, Murphy, Peckham and Hopkins.

First Selectman William S. Murray presided over the monthly meeting of the Norwich Social Workers' round table, which was held at No. 9 Washington street. Workers were present from the following organizations: Town of Norwich, bureau of child welfare, visiting teacher service of the public schools, Diocesan bureau, Humane society, family welfare department, mental hygiene department and public health nursing department.

The Misses McNamara, Reed, Murphy and Maher are the nurses whose vacations will be enjoyed during the month of July.

Friday, June 20, was the date of the well babies conference in Occum, which was held in the clubhouse of the Totokett company under the supervision of a nurse from the public health nursing department of the United Workers.

SCHEMLING TO SPEND THREE HOURS IN NEW LONDON

Max Schmeling, the only heavyweight champion to win a title on a foul, will spend three hours this afternoon with State Athletic Commissioner Thomas E. Donohue at the latter's home in New London.

The king of the boxing world, accompanied by his American manager, Joe Jacobs, will arrive at New London this afternoon at 1 o'clock by train from New York. His visit will be primarily to fulfill a promise he made some time ago to Commissioner Thomas E. Donohue to call upon him at his home after being compelled to cancel a trip to Hartford to attend a testimonial dinner given for Mr. Donohue.

A delegation of German-Americans from New London and Norwich, headed by Fritz Vogt, will be at the Union station with Commissioner Donohue to meet the champion.

Mr. Vogt said that plans for the reception have been changed owing to the fact that the visit will be exceptionally brief. Arrangements to have the Bulkeley school band at the railroad station were cancelled because the student musicians are out of school and many of them have already left the city.

The reception committee and the champion's party will ride in automobiles to the home of Mr. Vogt, 94 Truman street, where

TWO FORMER PROVIDENCE AMATEUR STARS APPEAR ON MAJESTIC CARD

Two of the classiest of the lighter boys from Providence display their wares here at the Majestic Roof on the card put on by Jackie Burns, local promoter. They are Tony Catalano and Tony Ruggerio, well known to local boxing fans who have followed the destinies of the amateurs during the past year or two. Both boys were contenders for the Golden Glove tournament. Catalano in the 126 pound class and Ruggerio in the 135 pound division.

It will be remembered that Catalano was one of Jimmy Quinn's bitterest opponents during the local boy's sojourn in the amateur ranks. Ruggerio was in the same division with Al Kogiol on the Providence fistic amateur bill of fare.

Catalano is slated to go six rounds with Romeo Dubois of New Haven in the semi-final. Although this is Catalano's first appearance in a local ring Dubois is no stranger to the fight faithful in eastern Connecticut. Dubois in his last engagement in Norwich hung a knockout on Rene Pelloquin, the fighting midget from Danielson. It was a sweet fight and one that will be remembered for a long time to come. Catalano is a real sweet puncher and is faster than Peloquin which should make Thursday night's bout well worth seeing.

Ruggerio appears in another six rounder with Joey Oliver of New Haven, one of Billy Higgins' boys. Oliver is a boy who has only lately sprung into prominence and within a short period of time has fought his way up the ladder of pugilistic endeavor. This is his first appearance in the eastern part of the state the same as it is Ruggerio's. Ruggerio is perhaps better known than the New Haven lad through his showing in the amateur ranks. The Providence boy is a southpaw with an awkward and deceptive style of fighting, a fact that makes him a very puzzling opponent. For all his awkwardness Ruggerio hits hard and he has a habit of cutting his opponents badly when he connects.

These two bouts should be fast affairs with plenty of action and slugging which is what the fans in this part of the state seem to enjoy most. Such bouts to support the main bout between Marty Owens and Alex Touraine should pack the roof to the limit.

DERDA PITCHES NICE GAME FOR RUBBERMEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, June 23—The Kaceys lost to the Rubbermen by the score of 10 to 5 in the Jewett City Twilight league game this evening. Derda, the winning pitcher, was given a five-fun start in the first inning and, allowing but three hits, was in no danger at any part of the game. The bunting policy adopted by the Kaceys, with a five run margin against them, and three men on failed to result.

Connolly, pitching for the Kaceys and a Putnam Trade school student, handled the mound fairly well, allowing but one base on balls.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WAUREGAN, June 23—Plainfield defeated Wauregan Monday evening in the Eastern Connecticut Twilight league at Wauregan by the score of 1 to 0. Plainfield scored the only run in the fourth inning when Leroy Dissinger walked, stole second, went to third on an infield out and then pulled the famous Ty Cobb stunt by stealing home. He fanned seven batters, two of them with the bases loaded in the third inning.

GRANT LEADS QUALIFYING ROUND IN CONN. GOLF

HARTFORD, June 23—(AP)— Bobby Grant, youthful captain of the Wethersfield Country club golf team, lead a qualifying field of 164 for the Connecticut state golf championship with 149 today. Grant scored a 74 over the Hartford Golf club course in the morning and a 75 over the Wampanoag layout in the afternoon.

Frank Ross, former state champion, of the Wampanoag club, finished second to Grant, just one stroke behind the brilliant youngster from Wethersfield. Fred Jarvis, Jr., of Goodwin Park, Charley Clare, of Race Brook, New Haven, W. Carson, of Westport and Paul Havlian od Brooklawn, Bridgeport, tied with 153. Sidney Mott, of Mill River, was in third place, with a fine 152 only to withdraw from the competition.

Barring a stiff wind, which bothered the shot makers, ideal weather conditions prevailed. Both courses were in excellent condition, the fairways and the greens being well grooned and the greens fast and true.

Jarvis played with Dew Ahern, the Willimantic stylist. Jarvis took a 78 in the morning and a 76 in the afternoon. Ahern, one of the feared youngsters in the tourney, had a 77 in the morning but plenty of worries in the afternoon before he carded a 82. Clare and Caron, playing in the same threesome, were consistent. Clare, with a 77, topped Carson by a stroke in the afternoon and Carson, with a 76, had a one stroke lead over the Brooklawn star in the morning.

Scores more than 162 were out of the championship flight and those who made 162, nine of them, will play off tomorrow morning for the three vacant places in the first 32, or the championship flight.

The championship flight play will begin after the playoff tomorrow morning. The battle for the championship will be waged over the Wampanoag links where the second flight and the fifth will also show its golf. The other flights, of 16 each, will play at the Hartford Golf club.

Attention Rose City Ramblers

The Italian Jr. league team will play the Rose City Ramblers at the Hollyhock Island diamond at 6:30 o'clock Tuesday evening

Last night after another heavyweight bout was won or lost, depending on the way you placed your money, in the most approved manner—on a foul, we met Jack Maher, old time referee and second in the state.

Jack never tires of talking about the old days when boxers were fighters and not prize waltzers and diving beauties. Jack was in a reminiscent mood and he told us this one about Benny Leonard and Chick Brown when they fought in New Haven. Here's Jack's story:

"It was when Chick Brown was being heralded as Connecticut's hope for the lightweight title. Chick had been knocking off the second raters with regularity and finish. The fans were crying for a bout with the champion of the division, who at that time was the greatest of all lightweights, Benny Leonard. The fans hollered so loud that the promoters lent an attentive ear and could hear the coin jingling in the old [illegible]. We who knew Brown and Le[illegible] knew that Brown had as much chance of beating Leonard as an alley cat has of killing an elephant.

But the fans had to be satisfied so the promoters got in touch with Billy Gibson and the match was arranged. But we also wanted it to be a good fight and we hoped that Leonard would take it easy for the first few rounds, to give the fans a break for their money. But if it did end suddenly it was their own fault for they demanded the bout.

Well, Brown was pretty well set up over his bout with the champion and he was going to show the people just how good he was. When the boys were in the ring getting their instructions Chick kept glaring at Leonard and when ordered to their corners and to come out fighting Chick looks at Leonard and says, "They tell me you ain't ever had your air mussed." And with that he reaches out his glove and musses us Leonard's hair, saying as he did, "Well, tonight's one time when you're going to get it mussed. Leonard never said a word, he just looked at Brown.

As we took Brown to his corner we told him to lay off that stuff or he'd get his brains knocked out. Chick comes back with, "He ain't so much a champion." Well, Brown sailed into Leonard with all he had in that first round and the Italian supporters were tearing up the seats in their excitement and were hollering, "Killa de champ, Chicki." That's just what Brown was trying to do. When Brown came back to his corner we told him again to lay off or he'd be knocked kicking. But Chick was out to win. "I can knock him out easy, he ain't got nothing he can hurt me with." And he tears out again. About the third round Chick gets pretty cocksure he is going to lick the champion so he sticks out his chin with his gloves at his side and says, "So you're the champ, eh? Well, hit me and see if you can knock me." Leonard snaps one to the chin. Brown blinks and his knees kind of quiver but he is still on his feet. Out goes the chin again and Leonard takes another pot shot at it. Four times he does this and Brown just laughs at him. Billy Gibson is white as a sheet and can't quite get what's going on in the ring. Neither can we.

Brown sticks the chin out again. Leonard starts his blow but we see his shoulder drop and we know it's not for the chin he's hitting this time. I reach for the bucket because I know it's all over. Leonard's glove goes clean out of sight in Brown's stomach. A surprised look comes over his face and he starts to sink slowly at the knees. Leonard walks to his corner and starts taking off his gloves. Chick is on the floor struggling for breath but he don't know it. We work over him an hour in the dressing room before he comes back. And then the first thing he says is "Did I lose?" Chick thought he was as good as the champ but what made Leonard champion was that he could think about three times as fast as his opponent. Benny was a great champion. All he said after the fight was, "Chick can't take them in the stomach, can he?"

PITTSBURGH, June 23.—(AP)—Benny Bass of Philadelphia, world's junior lightweight champion, won an unpopular decision over Joey Goodman, Cleveland, in a ten-round bout here tonight. Bass' title was not at stake.

The fight was close throughout, with both boxers showing respect for each other's punches. The decision was roundly booed.

BOTTLERS TAKE UNDISPUTED LEAD IN CITY LOOP BY BEATING ITALIANS

How times have changed. They may be tough for most of us but they sure are good for the Thermos Bottlers. The Hastedt-Driscoll combination, a tail end club a year ago, last week made its 1930 debut by upsetting the champion Smoke Shop club and last night it went one better by slipping into the undisputed lead of the current chase through a lopsided win over the Italian Young Men's club. The final score was 9 to 3.

In defeating the Italians the Bottlers put Lefty Lucier, another champion to rout, clubbing his offerings for an even dozen hits. They went right to work on Lefty in the first inning and with the exception of the third and the sixth counted at least once in each frame. In the meanwhile Andy Kotch, veteran of the one-time Richmond team lobbed his way through a five hit mound exhibition. With a sweeping outcurve Andy had the Italians entirely at his mercy, keeping clear of trouble during the entire seven innings of play.

Four of the Bottlers hit safely at least twice. Normandin and Hull turned in a double and a single apiece while Mullins and Eccleston worked the former Smoke Shop champ for a brace of singles. Yerrington led the hitters with a pair of one-ply smacks. Afield, Blindy Blinderman, Bottler right gardener was the star. He pulled down four hoists, two in the fifth inning. The score:

Citizens-Smokers Tonight

Those fans who remember the Polish Citizen-Smoke Shop games of a year ago need not be told what to expect at the campus tonight. For the benefit of the few fans who blossomed during the winter, here's a tip. Don't miss tonight's game. The Cits and Smokers, two of the leading clubs in the 1929 chase, renew their year old feud this evening, and according to all indications the rivalry between the two is as warm as ever. Every time the two teams come together a year ago every available inch of space at the Academy campus was taken and on each occasion every one present left the field satisfied that the game played was "the best yet."

Both club have been shaken up considerably since last seen on the same field together but the feeling is still there. The Smokers have made one start to date and lost while the Citizens have done nothing more than play an exhibition game.

Last Thursday evening the latter were scheduled to play the Royals, but the poor condition of the playing field resulted in the postponement of the official contest and the exhibition showing. If nothing else, the Citizens proved in that "make believe" affair they have one of the strongest pitching staffs on the circuit. Six different hurlers were displayed during and with the exception of one, Leo Jarvis, each worked his inning nicely. With the exception of Cimmy dashing Polish shortstop, every man in the Citizen lineup is a mound artist.

It's hard telling just who will start on the opposing hills but a guess gives Magnum as the Smoke Shop choice, and either Boots Greene or Pete Finn as the probable Polish artist.

ROBINS TIE RECORDS IN BEATING PIRATES

PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 23—(AP)—Tying two National league records while pounding out 28 hits of every description, the Brooklyn Robins day defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 19 to 6.

In the sixth inning, the Robins tied the one-inning consecutive hit record held jointly by the Cubs and Cardinals, when they connected with ten successive hits. Lopez made the last out, being caught at the plate while trying to score from second on a single.

Continuing on in the seventh, the Robins hit safely twice more before a batsman was retired to run their consecutive hitting to 12, tying the mark made by the Cardinals against the Braves on Sept. 17, 1920. The Cubs hung up their one inning hitting record against the Braves on Sept. 7 of last year while the Cards made theirs against the Phillies June 12, 1922.

Babe Herman led the Robins attack, pounding out his sixteenth and seventeenth home runs of the season. Gilbert also hit for four bases. Jim Elliott went the route for the winners while Meine was the principal victim of the Robins' assault. The score:

Hon. George A. Ross of Lisbon tells of the recent detailing of plans, which have been made by President Angell of Yale university with reference to memorial gifts which have been received by that college. Among those to receive recent mention is one of $45,000 by Henry L. Johnson Memorial Publication Fund. The gift of Leeds Johnson, '98, in memory of his father, Henry L. Johnson, '60. The name of the late Henry L. Johnson is closely connected with much of Griswold Civil war time history.

President Angell is a cousin of Miss S. K. Adams of the Jewett City Savings bank.

Henry L. Johnson was a cousin of the late Mrs. Ida Browning Ladd, and of Mrs. R. R. Church.

In Daniel L. Phillips' history of Griswold, he speaks of Henry L. Johnson as follows: He graduted from Yale college in the class of 1860, studied law in Hartford for one year: in July, 1861 he enlisted in the Fifth Connecticut volunteers and was made commissary sargeant; promoted the same year to second lieutenancy. In '62 promoted again to first lieutenancy.

The following year he was appointed assistant adjunt general on the staff of General Terry, with the rank of captain. When the fighting before Petersburg and Richmond became serious he was transferred to General Burney's staff. He resigned his commission a few days after the surrender of General Lee. In 1866-7 he became a member of the New York Stock Exchange.

Leeds Johnson who gives this memorial fund in memory of his father is now a member of the New York stock exchange.

The Johnson family name appears first in the Preston records about the year 1700 and from that time a long line of "Churchmen" in Preston, Pachaug, Jewett City and now in New York.

POETRY

Whittlin'

In blacksmith shop and country store,
I see no whittlers any more
It makes me think, around these parts,
That whittlin's one of those lost arts
That rise and flourish, wane and pass,
Like temp'rin bronze—or Venice glass.
I guess 'twas lost about the time
That thinkin' got to be a crime.

When I say whittlin' I don't mean
A'scrapin' wire or spark plug clean,
Nor makin' whistles in the Spring;
I mean a wholly diff'rent thing.
I mean the whittlin' that was done
In sober earnest—not for fun.
They whittled not for what was wrought
But rather as an aid to thought.

To figure close—to fix a trade
When some decision must be made—
A good jack-knife and piece of pine
And whittlin' shavings from it fine
Just soothed and smoothed and made things straight
And helped the mind to concentrate.
It helped when things was out of joint
To whittle deep and to a point.

At politics they'd anguty
An' how the words and chips would fly.
An' you could tell where there had sat,
Some notching, hagging Democrat,
Outnumbered, in unequal strife,
But fightin' back with tongue and knife.
All 'round was shavin's slick and slim
—Republicans had heckled him.

In Washington I heerd 'em say
Beneath the White House, hid away.
They've found a room all set apart
Devoted to the whittler's art.
Some President the kinship knew
'Twixt whittlin' straight and thinkin' true.
I do not choose to give his name—
It's whittled deep in Halls of Fame.

Now'days we take things on the run
An' do a thing—because it's done.
We never stop to calculate
To reason out or meditate.
Opinions too, that's handed out,
We swaller down without a doubt.
—'Pears to me that it would pay
Sometimes to whittle a diff'rent way.

—Mark Whalon, in Rutland Herald.

June

'Tis June again; the rose-hedge all ablow
Tempts with its fragrant sweets marauding bees;
The sunny hillslopes and the emerald leas
In drifts of gold and white are all aglow
With buttercups and dazzling daisy snow,
Where lambkins play at hide-and-seek 'neath trees
Melodious with song-bird symphonies
And mating wood doves' gentle croonings low.
O happy, happy June, your thousand dear
Delights of song and bloom and lovers' vows
The enraptured robin sings among the boughs,
While all glad Nature's joyous chorus swells
In unison, and far off, silvery clear,
Resounds the tinkling of gay wedding bells!

—Louella C. Poole in Boston Transcript.

WESTERLY

DRIVERS FINED AT NIGHT COURT SESSION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, June 23.—A night school session of Third district court was held by Judge Oliver H. Williams about midnight on Sunday that Connecticut motorcycle riders might learn the difference between Rhode Island and Connecticut motor traffic laws. The "tuition" in amount to all but one "student" was a $15 fine and $5 costs, coming under the subject head of driving motorcycles at a rate of speed greater than reasonable and proper. One of the eight young men making up the class was found to have been operating without a license and "post-graduate" fees amounted to a $1 fine and $5 costs. There was one "pupil" with whom Judge Oliver H. Williams had some difficulty, in making him understand that the rate of driving a motorcycle sidecar through the village of Ashaway on the Noosneck Hill road at between 60 and 65 miles an hour was an excessive rate. In fact, when he informed the judge that he was leading the line, Judge Williams quickly understood that he was an "advanced pupil" and promptly imposed a fine of $25 and costs.

Drivers before the court were: Leon Joseph Landry, 871 Main street, Bridgeport; Eugene Corbitt, 24, 97 Yale street, Stratford; Thomas Miner Buckley, 23, 126 James street, Bridgeport; Arthur Fray, 23, 1717 Howard avenue, Bridgeport; Sheldon F. Rose, 27, 46 Pacific street, Bridgeport; Max Feitzib, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; George Anthony Lebutis, Bridgeport, and George Kiev Liofsky of Bridgeport, the latter being only 17 years of age and without license.

Sergt. Florence J. Harvey and Trooper Lawrence Simmons followed the motorcyclists toward Connecticut on the Nooseneck Hill road about 8:30 p. m., Sunday, and found that they were traveling between 35 and 40 miles per hour through Hope Valley, and then did not overtake them until the Meeting House bridge was reached over the Pawcatuck river and in that distance they had much exceeded the 60-mile rate.

Commendable progress has continued to be made on the improvements in the widening and resurfacing of West Broad street in Pawcatuck. Selectman Babson has promised to have at least a cleared street surface for the Knights Templar street parade of Narragansett commandery, No. 27, K. T., on next Wednesday evening. The curbing on the north side of the street has been set back an average of 18 inches and the laying of new cement sidewalks will be started tomorrow.

With the setting back of the curbing on the north side of the street the South County Public Service Co. has also set back the bases of three street lights, one control base and one for a signal light and police box.

Three new large hydrants have also been installed along the thoroughfare. There are two to replace the smaller hydrants on the north side, one in front of the Richmond block and the other in front of the People's Mission. A new one has been placed in front of the Commercial hotel on the south side.

After the laying of the cement sidewalk on the north side of the street, which work should be completed in two days, the task of setting back the curbing on the south side will be started. The final finishing touch will be the spreading of Kyrock over the present pavements.

For a second time the Watch Hill fire fighters were called to duty over the week-end, on Monday, when a fire discovered on the roof of the private bathing pavilion at Watch Hill shortly before noon threatened the destruction of the bath houses at this popular bathing beach. The blaze was at first seen on the roof of the men's section by an employe of the bath houses, who with several of his companions fought the blaze with garden hose until the arrival of the Watch Hill fire company of 25 men under command of Chief George W. Hoxsie, who finally extinguished the blaze.

The origin of the blaze could not be determined, but it is believed to have started from the outside. The bath houses were occupied by a number of bathers at the time and the fire raused considerable excitement. The damage is estimated at less than $100.

Largely attended prize speaking exercises were held on Monday night in the auditorium of the Westerly high school in which there were ten contestants. At the conclusion, the awards were announced as follows:

First prize for girls, Isabelle Leon, Class of 1930, subject, Die Mutter; second prize for girls, Martha C. Nardone, Class of 1931, subject, In Truth; first prize for boys, Thomas A. Wright, Class of 1930, subject, Gunga Din; second prize for boys, Frank Acolina, Class of 1930, subject, The Prisoner's Plea.

The judges required over half an hour to make their decision and when the announcement was made by Kenneth Baisley, he announced that the judges arrived at their decision with great difficulty.

The judges were Mrs. Roy Rawlings, Mrs. John Champlin, Jr., and Kenneth R. Baisley.

This year for the first time the interest from the Otis Pendleton Chapman, Jr., prize speaking fund is available. This fund, which amounts to $15,000, was left by Mrs. Chapman in honor of her husband, who was a member of the graduating class of 1896. The will provides that $17.50 shall be awarded to each boy and girl as a first prize and $12.50 to each boy and girl winning second place.

IF A BLACK SNAKE BITES HERE IS A REMEDY

Recently Stretch Moran was walking in his garden, getting the weeds out before the stuff would grow, whistling while hoeing, before the sun went down. Near the garden was some high grass, and soon Stretch heard a noise. A black snake, about six feet long, stood on its tail, all ready for a flying tackle. It sure was some mad by the fire in its eyes. Afraid of snakes? Moran hates them! The angry snake made a spring for the gardener's face. Moran swung the hoe but missed, so the snake got hold of Stretch's leg, good as a leg hold to any wrestler. Gee! Talk about shaking like a dog after a flea! Stretch did not know how to get rid of the mad snake. It was a hot day and that put pep into the snake. But in some way Moran did get the snake from his leg without getting bit and threw it to the grass. He thought he had killed it for good. So he went back to hoe the weeds again. It seemed about ten minutes after when he stopped to wipe the sweat from his forehead and looked and saw the snake had come back to life and was ready for another battle with the new cucumber grower in the fishing village. The snake got set, ready to steal a march on Moran but quick as a flash he made a nice three base hit with the hoe and caught Mr. Snake on the chin, sending him to the 19th hole like on the golf links.

This time Moran said to himself: "That snake is dead all right this time! He won't come back and it will give me a chance to get the rest of the weeds out of the garden!" So back to work he went, happy to get rid of Mr. Snake, who had twice tried to get him. He was almost done with the weeds when, looking around, he saw the same snake on his tail again, ready to spring at the tomato farmer. "I never thought that snake would come back for another swing on the chin!" Stretch was afraid and mad. Taking a swing with the hoe from the ground, like Sharkey might do in the ring against Schmeling, he caught the snake with a hay maker on the chin and down he went, dead as a door nail, all in a heap. This time the snake was dead for keeps. It had a white mark under his chin, meaning if the snake had bit Moran he would kiss this North America good bye, for it is poison. The snake, eyes closed for good, was sure a relief for the young farmer. "That snake would have killed me, if it had got a good hold! Well, that is off my chest!"

A snake book that tells all kinds of reptiles from a green snake to one 12 feet long, was showed by Leo Harris to the tomato raiser, to let him know what is what. If anywhere snakes try to get a hold or two, it is a good thing to know what they are. When you are working out in the woods, or on a farm 40 acres long and a couple of miles away from the house and you cannot call for help, then you know what to do with a mad snake. "It sure was some battle. Before I could put to sleep a June white-throated black snake! It took me 40 minutes before the snake went out of the world for good. That snake had nine lives, like a cat for three times he came back for more, each time madder than ever, but found a Bobby Jones waiting for him with a hoe good as a golf stick. If the 9th hole was open the snake could be buried on the last shot he got after the sun went to bed and pulled over the bed sheet for the night!" Farmer Moran went into the house with all the weeds out of the garden and the lady of the house said, "Why, you look some white! Has something chased you? A bear or a wild cat? Better sit down and have a cup of Down East tea that will brace you up!" He told the snake story to her and she said, "Why Stretch! Lucky that mean crawler did not bite you! They are poison! I'm glad anyway you put him away for good, never to return! But anytime a snake bites you and no one is around, take out your jack knife, cut out where the snake bit you then put on some chewing tobacco. That will take away all of the poison. I learned that trick from a snake charmer who was in a circus that could swing a snake large as a telephone pole. Say, he got bit many times until he could swing them clear and could talk to them and that is what he always did. So remember that, Stretch, if you get caught again with a mad snake from the woods do what the snake charmer told me. He used to board at our house when he got tired of traveling with a circus all over the world." Farmer Moran will always remember that.

Carolina Woman Lost 47 Lbs

In 3 Months and Feels Years Younger

"I have been taking Kruschen Salts for nearly 3 months. I have continued taking one teaspoonful in warm water every morning. I then weighed 217 pounds, was always bothered with pains in my back and lower part of abdomen and sides.

"Now I am glad to say I am a well woman, feel much stronger, years younger and my weight is 170 pounds. I do not only feel better but I look better, so all my friends say.

"I shall never be without Kruschen Salts, will never cease taking my daily dose and more than glad to highly recommend it for the great good that is in it." Mrs. S. A. Solomon, New Bern, N. C., Jan. 1930." "P. S. You may think I am exaggerating by writing such a long letter but truly I feel so indebted to you for putting out such wonderful salts that I cannot say enough."

"Pains Across Small of Back--Took The Strength Right Out of Me"

Montville Young Matron Not Disappointed After Taking Three Bottles of Bon-Tone. Feeling Quite Different, She Says

Mrs. John W. Perry, of Montville, Conn., states: "Between my bowels, kidneys and stomach failing to work properly, I was pretty well discouraged. I had pains across the small of my back that took the strength right out of me, and my bowels needed additional help to work thoroughly. I had a lot of indigestion and these spells would come upon me day or night. I lost a lot of sleep because of them, and I started to feel this after a certain length of time. I came to the point where I had that 'tired feeling,' and it was a drudge to get any work done.

"One day my sister went into Starr Bros. and bought me some Bon-Tone. Eager for results, I took it regularly, and I was not disappointed. I have now taken three bottles of Bon-Tone; and it seems too good to be true, but I'm feeling quite different now. My bowels are regular; my back no longer pains me; and my stomach does not distress me with those awful gas spells. I sleep much better, and consequently am feeling stronger and happier. The tired feeling has disappeared, too and my work is soon done these days. It feels so good to be well again that I am pleased to recommend Bon-Tone to you. Try it for a while, and see what a wonderful change it makes see what a wonderful chage it makes in you!"

F. H. DAHL TO ERECT NEW SIX ROOM BUNGALOW ON BOSWELL AVENUE

June to the present date is exceeding all the other months of the year in the number of building permits issued by Fire Marshal Henry R. Taft. To Monday of this week 23 permits had been granted and a number of applications received for permission to build new houses, garages and make alterations to present houses. During the past week seven permits were granted, including one for a new bungalow to be erected on Boswell avenue for F. H. Dahl.

The past week, with its inclement weather, was not conductive to building operations in the city although considerable progress was made on projects where the greater part of the work was on the interior. The outdoor work on building jobs was at a standstill practically all the week. At the Norton Memorial gymnasium the work of putting the roof on the structure is well along. Contractor W. S. Spencer is doing the work.

The building permits issued during the past week follow:

To Angelo DeForest Lincoln to build a frame porch on his house at 68 Summer street. The porch will be 4x7 feet. The porch will be finished in shingles. The estimated cost is $50.

To the A. C. Swan Co. to alter the present runway at the service station on Oneco street. A shed will be built under the runway for the storage of sawdust. The shed will be approximately 8x10 feet. The estimated cost is $25.

To F. Oscar Dahl to erect a frame bungalow on Boswell avenue for himself. The bungalow will be 26x28 feet with stone and cement foundation. There will be six rooms and bath. The interior will be finished in hardwood and hard finish plaster. The exterior will be finished in clapboards and non-combustible shingles. The plumbing will be done in brass. The estimated cost is $4,500.

To Manuel Santos to build a one-car garage, 10x16 feet, at 172 Whipple avenue. The estimated cost is $50.

To Mrs. Emma A. Byers to make alterations to the present frame building at 64 Asylum street. The alterations include the closing-in of the porch to make a sunparlor. A partition seperating two rooms is to be taken out to make one large room. The estimated cost is $500.

To Jacob Savage to build a three-car garage on North Main street. The garage will be 20x30 feet and will have cement foundations and floor. The estimated cost is $400.

To Lyman DeRosier to build an addition to the present house on Gleason street. The addition will be 6x14 feet and will be used to enlarge one room. The estimated cost is $25.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

During the past week there were nine sales of real estate in Norwich as compared to 12 sales for the corresponding week in 1929. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $60,750 and $36,020.

In New London last week there were four sales of real estate, a decrease of one sale from the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $66,977 and $16,135.

NEW LONDON

Building activities in the city were handicapped by poor weather for the first time in weeks during the past week. Outside work had to be suspended in many instances for at least two days. In general, however, much progress was reported on all of the larger jobs, particularly those of the Connecticut college new administration building, and the Lawrence and Memorial Associated hospitals new children's annex and boiler house.

Building Permits.

Mary Bartolucci, garage, stone construction, Shaw street, $300.

Nutmeg Fireworks Co., temporary building, corner Main and Masonic streets, $200.

Mendel Zimmerman, frame addition, Midway place, $400.

Number of permits issued for the week, 7; estimated cost of buildings, $1,800.

SEPTIC TANKS AND CISTERNS IN SUMMER HOME

To fit the vacation needs of most families, a summer place need not be an elaborate affair, complete with formal dining rooms, many servants and all the citified accessories with which movies delight to reveal.

The ideal summer home is one which gives vacationists the utmost in trouble-free relaxation. It may be extremely simple, but for the average family it should not be so primitive that it does not provide reasonable safety, sanitation and other safeguards of health and comfort.

Ordinarily, the sanitary equipment of a summer home is its weakest feature, in spite of the fact that the dangers of inadequate sanitation are generally recognized. Yet there is no reason why the matter of sanitation should be considered a problem, as it can be very easily provided for. A simple septic tank, of the type commonly found on farms, will solve the problem at minimum expense.

Such septic tanks are best when constructed of concrete. While they are simple enough in construction many vacationists prefer to have them built and installed by local contractors who are familiar with the procedure.

Another piece of equipment which has been found a distinct aid in maintaining health and comfort is a modern concrete cistern, designed to insure a constant supply of clean soft water. It is a great improvement over the old rain barrel, which is a natural breeding place for mosquitoes and other pests.

With an assured water supply and proper sanitary facilities, many of the needless hazards of "the simple life" are completely eliminated. The cost is small and such improvements are practically permanent.

With a septic tank, a bathroom can be added to the summer home's equipment, an improvement which means much in terms of convenience as well as sanitation. All domestic sewage goes into the septic tank, where bacteria break down the solids. From the tank, the fluid content is led away in drain tiles and finally discharged, into the ground or a natural drainage system. By this time the discharge is colorless odorless and harmless.

SUBURBAN HOMES ARE MORE IN DEMAND

A continued demand during May for small homes in suburban areas immediately adjacent to the larger cities of the east is indicated in an analysis of statiscal data compiled by the F. W. Dodge corporation of New York, according to a statement by Homes Owners' institute. In two of the five geographical divisions in which residential contract awards lead other classifications, one and two-family houses predominate both as to cities and suburban areas, while in a third, the total for contract awards for May was about eually divided between one and two-family houses and apartments and hotels.

These sections embraced the New England states, Metropolitan New York and vicinity (Northern New Jersey, New York city, Long Island and Westchester, Orange, Putnam and Rockland counties, New York), the Middle Atlantic states, the Kansas City territory (western Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska) and the state of Texas.

Of the larger cities in the first three divisions—Boston, New York and Philadelphia—New York alone showed a pronounced trend toward resumption of multiple unit residential construction—hotels and apartment houses.

In New England where residential construction contracts totaled twelve million dollars, ten million dollars was involved in one and two-family houses. But in the city of Boston alone, the division between one and two-family houses and apartments and hotels was nearly even, with the former having a shade the better of the devision.

The following table shows the residential and public works and utilities ratios for May by percentages.

GET RID OF MOLES WITH MONOXIDE GAS

Recently a home owner was annoyed by the discovery that a herd of ground moles had moved upon his premises and were busy digging tunnels directly beneath the surface of his cherished lawn. He tried a trap, but no having any clear idea of how the thing should be operated he soon gave that up and wrote to a county league official for advice. A few days later he was somewhat flabbergasted to get a letter which read something like this:

"The best way to get rid of moles is to poison them with monoxide gas. The process is quite simple. Merely back your car to a point near one of the mole 'tunnels,' attach one end of a piece of rubber hose to the exhaust pipe of your car and run the other end into one of the 'tunnels.' Then run your motor for several minutes and you will have rendered the moles null and void."

At first he was inclined to believe that some would-be punster was having a bit of fun with him and was a trifle wrathy about it. Then a well-informed friend showed up, read the letter of advice and stated that the county league official not only was in earnest but had suggested about the most effective means possible for exterminating the pesky mole.

It is to be assumed that this treatment does not necessitate backing one's car directly upon the lawn. A long section of hose should be all right, in which event one might leave the car in the driveway, carry the nozzle end of the hose anywhere desired and then let the deadly monoxide get in its lethal work.

ADD NEW LIFE TO THE DINING ROOM

Few persons can afford or even want to follow the old Roman custom of having a separate dining room for each season of the year. Space saving of modern times prevents four dining rooms to the house, but a different scheme of decoration for each season will do for the one-dining room house what four dining rooms did for the Romans.

One suite of furniture may be the center around which the four dining rooms of the modern home are built.

The real change in the room may be brought about by the use of different accessories. Summer demands coolness in every room in the house and dining in summer may be made much more pleasant for the whole family if the dining room looks cool and decidedly different from the way it looked all winter.

A change in draperies will make the biggest change in the appearance of the dining room. In place of heavy dark ones, gay cotton ones may be substituted. In place of the thick rug, a light linen one or a linoleum one may be used. Growing plants in the dining room, in attractive plant stands, add the note so desired in summer. Glassware in cool green and blue tints is inexpensive and attractive.

In a clear blue ice berg, one of a large field encountered near Soukhoi islands, the carcass of a black bear was found embedded in the ice.

OVER ONE BILLION SPENT ON HOMES YEARLY

An expenditure in excess of a billion dollars annually would be required to replace or repair homes in this country made uninhabitable by the passage of time, it has been determined on the basis of the average life expectancy of dwellings. Considerably more than this amount is expended each year in new residential construction because of the need to modernize dwellings and such additional factors as the increase in population and the yearly loss caused by fire, windstorms and explosion.

Fires and windstorms destroy property worth a half billion dollars annually. Although it is not known what percentage of this valuation may be said to include dwellings, it is known that more than 60 per cent. of the the fires occuring annually happen in homes.

Even with adequate insurance protection against damage to property by fires, windstroms and explosions, the valuation of dwellings destroyed and damaged yearly by such occurrences does not begin to represent the actual economic loss suffered by home owners. Not until comparatively recently has there been offered to home owners a form of insurance protection which will eliminate all possibility of direct loss because of fire, windstorm and explosion. This form of protection, commonly known as rental value insurance, supplies the funds to pay the rent of similar quarters while a home is being rebuilt or repaired following a fire, windstorm or explosion, and may be obtained in connection with either fire explosion or windstorm policies.

Where the owner of a dwelling is either insured against fire for the total valuation of the property or up to 80 per cent. of it, the cost of rental value insurance may be determined generally as samounting to 3 per cent. of the fire insurance premium. A somewhat similar form of protection has also been extended to cover the rental value of places of business, and because of its application commercially is known as business interruption insurance.

Just as fire insurance, for example proves to be a stabilizing influence not only in construction but in all business, the form of protection known as rental value or business interruption insurance has been designed as an additional step in the rehabilitation of property damaged by fire, windstorm or explosion and in the maintenance of the family ties and business activities affected by such occurrences.

FRINGE ADDS FINISH TO YOUR DRAPERIES

That finished look every woman admires in draperies many be achieved even with draperies made at home, by the use of trimming suitable to the style of drapery and the material.

A fringe of one of the many kinds will give to the draperies a more complete look, a more satisfactory appearance than can be obtained by use of drapery material without trimming.

There are cotton fringes of every color and of many kinds and these are appropriate for use with the cretonne draperies so popular for the home during summer. The fringe may be of the most prominent color in the figured pattern, or of contrasting color.

A hen that produced 329 eggs in a year recently was sold by J. R. Crocker of Martindale, Texas, to a Pennsylvania poultryman for $50.

TERRA COTTA TILE, SIMPLE LINES BIG COST SAVERS

We certainly have been far behind Europe in accepting the modern style for residences.

It is strange that the nation always first to accept other time, labor and money-saving artifices should not be eagerly adopting a manner of home building that has so much to commend it in this direction.

In our usual building styles it is the irregular wall formations and sloping, broken roofs that add so much to the cost factor.

Walls can be cast in forms instead of being laid up by hand. Instead of wasted attic space, we can now utilize every square foot of the house.

If a dwelling in the modern manner be well designed, it is not an ugly thing, in spite of what romanticists may say to the contrary.

Terra cotta tile can be just as decorative and interesting as classic ornament, hand hewn timbers or brick patterning.

The sketch shows an example of how attractive such a house may be. Walls are of buff-toned concrete cast in wood forms. The decoration is terra cotta tilling in warm colors and modernistic patterns.

The entrance door has a central glass panel guarded by a modern metal grille.

As the house is rectangular, except for the very slight projection used to accent the entrance bay, the plan permitted a straightforward logical disposition of rooms.

The entrance hall is also the stair hall and contains a large coat closet, while a lavatory is provided off the stair landing.

The living room is directly behind the dining room and a fireplace in one corner of each room shares a common chimney.

A convenient butler's pantry is located between dining room and kitchen. Four bedroom and a bath are located on the second floor.

The cost of building this residence would range from $10,000 in New England and the middle Atlantic seaboard states to $8,000 in the south and west.

THREE ATTRACTIVE HOUSES BUILT ON OTIS STREET

The three houses pictured bove are owned by Frederick S. Armstrong of 395 Washington street and were built by him on Otis street. The houses were built at various times, the one at the right having been completed only a few weeks ago. They are of modern design and each is a two apartment house. The same general type of construction is carried out in each house and each has the same general exterior finish. The exteriors are in wide colonial clapboards on the first story with shingles on the second story and composition shingles on the roofs.

The interiors are very nicely appointed there being fireplaces in each apartment which is finished with hardwood floors and trim and hard finish plaster walls. The three houses are the most attractive of the newer houses on the street.

Stock Fire Insurance and National Prosperity

That American business is sound is witnessed by the huge construction program which marks this year 1930.

Billions of dollars are being invested by public utilities and railroads; by municipal, state and federal governments in public buildings, plants, bridges and highways; by private interests serving the public in a large way. Improvements, extensions and new projects are the order of the day. Prosperity and credit in this country cannot long be jarred by any speculative flurry.

A Wall of Defense

One major reason for this is the protection afforded by insurance. Stock Fire Insurance alone provides a coverage of around 150 billion dollars, thus setting up a wall of defense for industry and property that no adversity can seriously harm.

Without the support of Stock Fire Insurance the billions for new enterprises and replacements could not be spent. Business would undertake no such pretentious program without the stabilization, the protection and the indemnity which Stock Fire Insurance makes possible.

Yet consistently, through the last twenty years, the cost of this basic commercial necessity has declined.

STOCK PRICES CLOSED HIGHER AFTER MANY NEW LOWS EARLY IN THE SESSION

NEW YORK, June 23.—(AP)—After making new lows in the forenoon, prices of stocks and the leading speculative commodities rallied in the afternoon markets today. Wall street, however, was not inclined to celebrate the upturn prematurely, for it recalled that recent interruptions in the long downward trend had been both technical and brief.

Stocks more than regained their early losses, which had been made on two distinct selling movements, the second more vigorous than the first. In the grain market July wheat closed only an eighth of a cent lower against the morning's break of nearly 3 cents to 89 1-2, the lowest since 1914. Other months made small net advances. The early losses in cotton ranged from about $1.50 to nearly $2 a bale, but these were substantially reduced and the market closed 60 cents to $1.10 lower. Corn was steadier, finishing a cent to a cent and a half higher.

Execution of the large week-end accumulation of selling orders, including week-end margin holdings, broke stocks at the opening, which saw blocks of 10,000 to 40,000 shares. Bears hastened to follow up the decline, working actively in U. S. Steel, American Telephone, American Can, General Electric and others, in the hope of bringing them to or through the resistance levels of last November.

Enough support was forthcoming to start a rally that eliminated the 2 and 3-point losses of the first half hour, but the upturn only encouraged further and ore strenuous operations for the decline, with the result that shortly before noon the leaders had gone below the earlier lows. U. S. Steel was swept down to 152 1-2, American Can dropped to 109 1-2 and American Telephone to 200 1-4. Prices remained at the bottom only a short time, however, and on the first appearance of resistance the bears were satisfied to cover. The ensuing advance carried well through the remainder of the session, although final prices were somewhat below the highs. The composite of 90 shares advanced 3.3 points. Net gains in the more active issues ranged from 1 to 6 points.

Expressions of opinion on the industrial outlook were somewhat at variance. One organization said its expectation of an early and substantial recovery had not changed, while another held that business was not yet "out of the woods."

The day's net gains were largest in the utility stocks. American Telephone was up 5 1-2, Consolidated Gas 3 7-8, Electric Power & Light 6 3-4, North American 2 1-4 and Public Service of New Jersey 4 7-8. Peoples Gas closed 11 points lower against an earlier decline of 30.

In the industrial group, American Can netted 5 7-8 higher, Bethlehem Steel 2 1-4, U. S. Steel 1 1-4, Westinghouse Electric 3 7-8, Radio 1 5-8, General Electric 1 3-4, International Harvester 3 1-2, Johns Manville 1 1-4, Standard Oil of N. J., 2 3-8, Houston Oil 5 and Eastman Kodak 4 1-2. J. I Case was up 14 points. New York Central, after making the new low of 153, closed at 158 1-2, a gain of 3 1-4. Southern Railway, at 103, was 2 7-8 higher.

Foreign exchanges were firm. The Spanish peseta rallied several points.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, June 23.—(AP)—Wheat prices rebounded suddenly today coincidently with rallies in quotations on securities but not until wheat had fallen into the "eighties."

For the first time in a long while the July delivery of wheat here, which represents the 1930 domestic crop now being harvested in the southwest, went under 90c and sold today at as low as 89 1-2c a bushel, whereas for 15 years past a dollar a bushel has been generally regarded as about the lowest figure at which wheat could sell.

Big arrivals of wheat at Texas, Oklahoma and southern Kansas points today received much of the blame for new low prices established today, and so also did continued dearth of any adequate export demand.

Closing quotations on wheat were notably irregular, and unsettled, ranging from 1-2c decline to 7-8c advance compared with Saturday's finish. Corn closed 1a1 3-4c up, oats 3-8a5-8c advanced, and provisions 5a85c down.

Provisions underwent a sharp drop on account of liquidating sales and as a result of declines in the value of hogs.

NEW YORK, June 23.—(AP)—A special meeting of stockholders of the North American company has been called for Aug. 6 to vote on proposals to increase the authorized common stock to 50,000,000 no par shares from 10,000,000; to change 1,392,322 shares of unissued authorized 6 per cent $50 cumulative preferred into the same number of shares of no par serial preferred stock without so changing the 906,678 shares now outstanding, and to increase the amount of serial preferred so authorized to 5,000,000 shares. Stockholders also will be asked to vote on a proposal to extend and renew the corporate existence of the company for a period of 50 years commencing June 14, 1940.

Directors of American States Public Service company have authorized acquisition of two additional electric properties, located in Idaho and Montana. The identities of the units were not disclosed.

The Japanese silk industry will continue the 20 per cent production curtailment for another year.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

ANNUAL PASTURE FIELD DAY AT STORRS

A third annual pasture field day has been planned for visiting the experiment at Storrs on Saturday, June 28. Many Connecticut farmers are watching this experiment closely and have requested another special opportunity to go over the fields and to learn what the experiment may mean for their own farms.

The primary purpose in the minds of those who planned the pasture grazing experiment was to find what returns would be secured from various treatments of fertilizer and lime. That grasses and clovers would respond to certain fertilizing elements has been known for a long time. However, there have been few attempts to measure the response of pasture plants through the grazing of animals. For a number of reasons the measurements secured through pasturing are not the same as when the forage is cut as hay or when clipped frequently.

The pasture land used for the experiment was a typical neglected pasture prior to cutting the brush and building the fences ten years ago. During 1921, 1922 and 1923 the plots were grazed without fertilization. In the spring of 1924, limestone, superphosphate, nitrate of soda and muriate of potash were applied alone and in several com inations. These were used as a topdressing and without plowing, harrowing or reseeding. The first five years after treatment showed a return of $8.54 for each dollar invested in superphosphate, $2.64 for each dollar in limestone and $1.13 for each dollar in nitrate of soda. There has been no commensurable response to the potash. Another way of interpreting the results would be to suppose $100 invested in limestone at $6 per ton and superphosphate at $20. If applied as in the experiment, the returns for the first five years above the cost of the treatment on the basis of actual measurements, would be $638. At the end of this period there would also be an excellent turf of Kentucky blue grass and white clover.

Several of the much discussed fertilizer treatments are being studied. These include superphosphate alone superphosphate with lime, complete fertilizer with and without lime, application of all of the nitrogen in the spring and applications divided between the spring and the summer.

In addition to the inspection of the plots on field day, there will be a discussion of the value and utilization of pastures on the dairy farm. Dr. L. A. Maynard of the Animal Husbandry department of Cornell university will discuss the place of minerals in dairy feeds and how pastures may supply nutrients in addition to those more commonly considered important. Dr. Maynard has conducted research in animal nutrition which has attracted national attention and is an authority in that field.

The program for the entire day is as folows:

10 a. m. D.S.T.—Inspection of pastures.

12 m.—Basket lunch, near experimental fields. Free coffee. Sandwiches may be purchased.

1 p. m.—Address, Dr. George A. Works, president, Connecticut Agricultural college.

1.20 p. m.—The Nutritional Value of Pastures, Dr. L. A. Maynard, animal husbandry department, Cornell university.

2 p. m.—Pastures and the Dairy Herd, Prof. G. C. White, dairy department, Connecticut Agricultural college.

2.20 p. m.—How the Experiment Is Conducted, B. A. Brown, agronomy department, Connecticut Agricultural college.

2.45 p. m.—Inspection of pastures.

THE MAN WITH THE HOE HAS THIS TO SAY

Get all the tender annuals planted. This is the season when they will spin as soon as the hot sun gets in its work.

All seedlings should be moved from frames and boxes into the open ground at once before they become too large to move easily.

Keep the pods nipped on the sweet pease. They will stop blooming if seeds form.

Keep the spray handy and take a shot at all bugs that show themselves.

You can plant sweet alyssum, candytuft, and dwarf marigolds for edgings still and get bloom the greater part of the summer.

Keep on sowing carrots and beets. You will need them later.

Let the asparagus start growing up. It doesn't pay to cut it too late in the season.

Get your bedding plants properly spaced and thin them by pinching out straggly stems. It will help a lot in getting a fine mass of bloom.

Top dress the lawn with bone meal or other commercial fertilizer. The rains will soak it in and get the grass ready to withstand the coming dry hot weather.

You can plant corn every week this month to be sure of a succession.

Attend to staking plants that make tall growth, particularly delphiniums and dahlias.

Get in all the perennial seeds now. Nothing is gained by delay and their growing season will be none too long.

You can still plant cucumbers. Stick in seeds where the bugs have got the earlier ones.

Keep the onions weeded and give them a shot of commercial fertilizer.

If you are of an economical turn, you can transplant beets, carrots and other root crops when you thin them.

It is now time for the main celery crop to be set out and started on its way.

Sow more annual poppies. You can still sow Icelands and get fall bloom.

Keep after the weeds. This is their busiest season. If you keep as busy as the weeds there won't be any.

Get in the last of the dahlias and set out another batch of gladiolus bulbs.

Plant Early Fall Turnips.

Turnips are a cool season crop but for the fall and winter supply they must be sown in June and July. They will get a start and make a slow growth until the cool weather sets in and then they will rapidly develop fine solid roots. The American table now demands its turnips fresh and young. The old mature roots are not in much demand except in localities where the green grocer does not flourish. A supply all summer is easily maintained in the home garden.

For the early fall crop plant now. The turnip likes a mellow rich soil and its success and mildness of flavor depends upon keeping it growing without check. The later planted turnips should have frequent cultivation to keep a dust mulch established and preserve the moisture in the soil in hot weather. Old-fashioned gardens usually allowed the turnips to grow up to weeds in summer and with this careless treatment always got a good crop of turnips.

Although the practice usually was due to a dislike of hoeing turnips in hot weather, there was a real reason for the success of the turnips. With the heavy growth of weeds above them the soil was shaded and the plants protected from the hot sun and thus growing conditions were improved for them. However, the weed practice is not to be recommended. The weeds take enough nourishment from the soil, and distribute a crop of seeds for future generations that do no real good to the garden. The same quality of turnips will be developed by good hoeing or cultivating with a wheel hoe.

The turnips are seldom thinned in the old-fashioned garden but left to struggle along. Also they are usually sown broadcast. They should be sown in rows and thinned and then a uniform crop of finely shaped roots will be harvested, a delight to the eye, and of the best table quality. They will also furnish fine roots to exhibit at the fall shows where turnips are always one of the staples exhibited.

The purple top sorts are favorited in the home garden and also for the show table. For winter turnips the orthodox planting day for years has been Orangeman's day, July 12.

W. A. Belleyn of Jericho, Vt., obtained 230 of his famous photo micrographs of snowflakes this last winter, bringing his collection up to 5,340. As usual, he noted among the many thousands he examined that many of the lacy crystals greatly resembled some of those he had previously seen or photographed, yet no two were exact duplicates. No two of the hundreds of thousands he has studied and observed in the last forty-five years have been exactly alike.

For Davis' Post?

Among those mentioned to succeed James J. Davis, as secretary of labor, is Representative Albert Johnson of Hoquiam, Wash. He carries a union card.

BEFORE JUNE JOINS THE "NEVER-COME-BACK-AGAINS"

SOON this June will join the long list of things that will never come back again.

And the low June prices on Reading Anthracite will be a matter of history for another year.

Wise buyers will make arrangements with their coal merchants for next winter's supply of Reading hard coal. With their bins filled, they can go vacationing carefreely, knowing that when the first frost spells "heat quick, please", they'll have no worries about fuel.

Your coal merchant has Famous Reading Anthracite or can get it. Call him, and insist on having Reading hard coal, for nature never made, nor has man discovered, a finer fuel.

BALTIC

Roland Manice, of little flat, Baltic, assisted by Jerry Arpin, J. Roberts and other members of the Baltic S. A. club, built and launched a new swimming raft and float, Friday night, in the Shetucket river at Baltic. It is 20 feet square with a tower 10 feet high and spring boards in the center. A large crowd enjoyed the bathing at Depot Hill sandbank, the water being 21 feet deep at the four sides of the float.

A clergyman went out with a boatman to try his luck at deep-sea fishing. They were a long way from shore when a sudden squall blew up which seemed likely to overwhelm the small craft.

"I wish I had been a better man," groaned the boatman as he strove at his oars.

"And I wish I had been a better swimmer," remarked the clergyman, thoughtfully.—Montreal Star.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

Today marks the final showings of those gay, giddy, irrepressible lunatics, "The Cuckoos," starring Bert Wheeler and Bob Woolsey, the erratic comedians of Rio Rita fame and their big cast of over a thousand boys and girls in a delirious pageant of joy and nonsense. Starting tomorrow the ever-changing mask screen of the cool Broadway offers a new note with the presentation of Tolstoi's immortal story "The Living Corpse," screened under the title of "Redemption." Like all Tolstoi's stories, this, too, is brimming with passion and young love, and the cast of stars portraying the principals is fitted for the roles, with John Gilbert, Renee Adoree, Conrad Nagel and Eleanor Boardman, all young, all noted for their passionate, romantic screen roles in previous productions. This newest Gilbert success has its locale in the old Russia of the czars, romantic and colorful background, and with the irresistible Gilbert as the young Russian officer torn between love for his beautiful wife and the mad call of a gypsy ancestry. Strong tense drama and burning passion dominate the picture, which revels in colorful scenic surroundings, among the highlights being a mad race against time across the limitless snows in an open sleigh, a grim courtroom trial, the mystic dances and ceremonies of an old gypsy tribe, and a brilliant orthodox Russian wedding, with the clergy in their marvelous robes, the great choirs, the sacred ikons, since doomed by the soviet, and other big scenes which will live long in memory. The long program of surrounding featurettes are in direct contrast to the drama of the feature, abounding in comedy and color and offering a perfectly balanced program of sheer delight.

CARPETING TO THE WALL

Carpets for the entire floor are gaining favor. They combine well with the normal styles of furniture for which there is an increasing demand. Both plain and allover design carpets are shown. Sheen type rugs and domestic Orients are enjoying a great popularity. Blues and browns, tans and reds in ground colors are heading the list.

NEW LONDON WOMAN BOUND OVER ON BIGAMY CHARGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 23.—Anna Swazey, alias Anna Duane, 35, residing at 25 Jay street and employed by the Mitchell ward of Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, was presented in the police court this morning, charged with bigamy. Probable cause was found and the young woman, who was held in bail of $500 for trial at the next term of the superior court, was remanded to jail, for she was unable to obtain a surety on the bond.

The woman, whose maiden name was Anna Avilliar, was married about 18 years ago to John Sylvia, of Stonington. About 12 years ago, Sylvia died and on Nov. 11, 1918, Anna married A. E. Swazey, at New Bedford, Mass. Swazey is now a resident at Stonington. On Nov. 7, 1927, Anna deserted her husband and came to New London, where she was married to Edward H. Duane, 28, a member of the United States Coast Guard, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Royal W. Ferguson, pastor of the Montauk Avenue Baptist church. Recently Duane made complaint to Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer and as a consequence a warrant was issued for the woman's arrest. Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith arrested the woman at the hospital this forenoon.

ANNOUNCE MARRIAGE WHICH TOOK PLACE YEAR AGO

Announcement has been made, by Mr. and Mrs. David P. Hoare, 16 Williams street, of the marriage of their son, Leo J. Hoare, to Miss Evelyn Lee Simmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Simmons, Worcester, Mass., the wedding having been solemnized a year ago at St. Francis Xavier church, Hyannis, Mass., by Rev. Mortimer Downing. Mitchell Bootman, Jr., was best man and Mrs. Mitchell Bootman attended the bride. The marriage was kept a secret until after the bride and groom had completed their college studies. Mr. and Mrs. Hoare are now enjoying their belated wedding tour and upon its conclusion will reside in Albany, N. Y. Mr. Hoare, a graduate of South high school and of Vesper George School of Arts, Boston, is also a graduate of Bulkeley high school, this city, and last week graduated from Holy Cross college, Worcester.

WEDDINGS

Malone—Welch

William J. Malone, Franklin street, and Miss Anna V. Welch, New Britain, were married at 8 o'clock this morning at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, the nuptial mass being celebrated by Rev. Timothy M. Crowley. Joseph R. Malone was best man and the bride's aunt was bridesmaid. Mr Malone is employed as a truck driver by the city of New London. Mr. and Mrs. Malone will make their future home on Colman street.

Papers of incorporation were filed today for record at the office of the city clerk by The Guardian Thrift & Loan Corp. of Eastern Connecticut, with offices at 25 State street. The paid in capital in cash is $31,350 and $150 in property. The officers of the corporation are as follows: President, Elijah Williams, New Haven; secretary, Edward J. Brennan, New Haven, and treasurer, Thomas E. Cahill, New Haven.

The pleasure and fishing launch, Anna, which was in collision with a United States Coast Guard patrol boat in the upper harbor boat race night and which was extensively damaged, sinking after she had been towed to the pier of the Coast Guard academy, was raised today by a lighter. The launch was placed in a cradle and this afternoon was taken to Noank, where repairs will be made.

Mrs. E. Francis Mahan, Pleasant street, was operated upon at Lena hospital, the operation being the third that Mrs. Mahan has experienced within a short time. Mrs. Mahan is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Reeves, 47 Riverview avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel S. Marsh, Miami Beach, Fla., formerly of New London, are spending an indefinite period in this city.

Paul Rotzko, Uncasville, was charged with reckless driving and driving without a license. On the first count a fine of $25 and costs was imposed and on the second charge Judge Daniel M. Cronin imposed a penalty of $5 and costs.

An automobile owned by Grace R. Moriarty, New Britain, was taken charge of by the police this morning when it was found in the yard of a residence at 1157 Ocean avenue. The auto, which was taken to a garage, was driven there Saturday night. The police of New Britain have been requested to make a check-up for the purpose of ascertaining whether the auto was stolen and then abandoned in this city.

Charles F. Moeller, about 62, residing in Waterford, in which town he conducts a small confectionery and tobacco store on the Boston Post road, New Haven turnpike, attempted suicide at his home late yesterday and he is now a patient at Lawrence Memorial hospital where it is said that his condition is favorable, although he is suffering from loss of blood and is extremely weak. Moeller, a former candy maker in the employ of the M. P. Johnson company, this city, is said to have been despondent of late because of domestic troubles. Yesterday afternoon he seized a razor and slashed his throat and wrists. He was found by a member of his family in a pool of blood and almost unconscious. Medical aid was summoned and after Moeller had been given emergency treatment, was taken to the hospital.

Eleanor Tillinghast, of Easthampton, L. I., and 103 Federal street, reported to the police late this afternoon that a bag containing wearing apparel had either been stolen or lost from her automobile. She had been at the Union station and does not know whether it was stolen there, or whether it fell from the car as it was driven to Federal street. Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray was assigned to make an investigation.

The fire department was called out shortly after 4 o'clock this afternoon in response to an alarm sent in from Box 4, corner of Jefferson avenue and Bank street. When the firemen arrived at Jefferson avenue their services were required, but only for a brief time, to subdue a blaze in a hen house off Jefferson avenue.

Joseph Sammataro, 18, of 121 Shaw street and employed at Maloof's ice cream and confectionery store, Bank street, and Joseph Vocalino, 18, of 52 Prest street, were arrested tonight, charged with theft. The youths went to Groton, boat race day eve and were at the Hotel Griswold pier where numerous small boats were tied up. The following day Spencer Borden, Fall River, Mass., of the yacht "Sally Ann," reported to the police that the boat's tender, which also carried the boat's name on the stern, had been stolen while it was moored at the dock. Today, Charles Bahm, of the United States coast guard shore patrol, observed the boat pulled upon the shore in Shaw's cove and communicated with police headquarters. Detective Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith went to the cove and after finding the boat and observing that it had been stripped, made an investigation which resulted in it being determined that the outboard motor, oars, etc., had been removed to the cellar of Sammataro's home. The officers went there and found the equipment and then arrested Sammataro. He implicated Volalino and the latter was arrested by Patrolman Frank Philopena. After their arrest the youths declared that they were on the pier when the boat was rowed there and that the occupant hired them to take charge of it. When the yachtsman did not return, the youths said, they rowed a man to a boat in the harbor and then returned to the pier. Later, they rowed up stream and beached the boat. Boat race day night, Sammataro says that he went to the Groton shore and putting the boat overboard, rowed to the cove where he stripped it and took whatever equipment was of value to his cellar.

The two new motorcycles which the city purchased three weeks ago for the police department are not operating with satisfaction and as a result both cycles this afternoon were withdrawn from service and were taken to a service station where they will remain until a mechanic from the factory comes to New London and makes such adjustments as will cause the cycles to perform in a satisfactory manner.

Jean Bennett, Bridgeport; William Reardon, Uncasville; Gladys Whitney, 20 Jefferson avenue; Marion Gifford, 14 Steward street; Mrs. William Pinch and infant daughter, 83 Rosemary street; Mrs. John Ruggero, 22 Denison avenue; Mrs. Costas James and infant son, 128 Willetts avenue; Mrs. Joseph Sousa, 12 Richards street; Peter Carchidi, 41 Front street; and Patrick Hogan, 21 Orchard street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial associated hospital, were discharged Sunday and today.

Robert Dawson, New York; Mrs. Edward Sullivan, Groton; Mrs. James Chapman, Blackhall; Mrs. Addison Schofield, Mystic and Mrs. N. L. Bradshaw, 30 West Pleasant street, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged over the week-end.

James Wiggins, formerly of Shaw street and for 11 years prior to his removal to New York employed as janitor of Nameaug school, spent the week-end at Ocean Beach.

Miss Dorothy Andrews, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orville G. Andrews, 30 Gorton street and employed as assistant to City Treasurer Herbert G. Huntley, was admitted to Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital today and tomorrow will undergo an operation for appendicitis.

Two Norwich girls, neither over 12 years of age, became stranded in New London last night and were taken charge of by the police until their parents could come for them. The girls came to New London during the day and went to Ocean Beach where they spent all their money. In an endeavor to return to their homes, the girls went to Main street and when they attempted to stop several automobiles they were observed by Patrolman Michael Dorsey. After questioning the girls, they were taken to police headquarters. The Norwich police communicated with the girls' parents and an hour later the pleasure seekers were enroute to their homes for the parents came here by automobile.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Red Arrow Auction.

The 11th Red Arrow auction will be held at the Palace theater tonight at 9 p. m. when 133 articles of valuable merchandise will be sold for Red Arrow money to the highest bidders. The auction committee has devised a new method of conducting the auction which will greatly expedite it and add to the interest of the Red Arrow patrons.

Although the Red Arrow game has been in operation for 11 months, it holds the attention of the Norwich public with increasing interest. The Red Arrow club expects a packed house on Tuesday night. The Palace theatre is being cooled artifically so as to make it comfortable for the audience attending the show and auction.

Owing to lack of action in the local organizations most of them having adjourned for the summer months, the Red Arrow club has put a time limit upon the organization contest recently announced in the local press.

The time limit expires June 30th, and if by that time a number of organizations will manifest themselves willing to enter the contest the Red Arrow club will proceed with it as announced. Otherwise the contest will be deferred to a later and more propitious date. Two prizes aggregating $300 are offered.

Palace Theatre.

Tomorrow, Thursday and Friday, the Palace theatre brings to its patrons a double-feature bill that could scarcely be duplicated. It includes "A Lady of Scandal," starring the great Ruth Chatterton, and a light vacation romance, "Two Weeks Off," with Jack Mulhall and Anita Page in the featured roles.

RUTH CHATTERTON and BASIL RATHBONE
"THE LADY OF SCANDAL"

Consider the atmosphere and plot of "A Lady of Scandal." Once again, Miss Chatterton, queen of the screen, is cast in a role that permits her to give full expression to her amazing talents. We see her as lovely Elsie Hillary, darling of the London musical comedy stage. She is friendly with John, son of Lord Crayleg a friendship which the noble lord does his best to break up. He offers her money to leave the boy alone, but the only result is that the two immediately become engaged.

Then Lord Crayle begins to scheme. He brings this seductive woman into his home, hoping that she will be frowned upon by English society and shamed out of this match with his son. But what happens? Instead of English society women putting Elsie in her place, she herself shows them a trick or two. In fact she shows them so much, and so many bewildering things happen to her, that before the picture is well launched, fate has spun an amazing web in which this poor girl's fortunes become tangled. It is what well might be called a "different" picture.

In "Two Weeks Off" we meet the breezy Jack Mulhall and the shapely Dorothy Mackaill starring together for the last time. We see a bevy of young men and girls having the time of their lives at an ocean beach. Gertrude Astor and Eddie Gribbon help the cast along with hilarity. Jack himself, a plumber, is mistaken for a movie star, and has a grand time masquerading. Come and see the marathon dances, the fight between the hero and a life-saver. Come and enjoy the whole grand tangle that starts when Jack is forced to become somebody he isn't. It is the liveliest thing that has come to the Palace screen in some time.

Today for the last times the Palace presents the uproarious Marie Dressler and her side-kick, Polly Moran, in the new comedy drama of the stock market, "Caught Short." This is just the time to see this great picture.

She thought:
"I hate saying 'no' again, but 'B.O.' spoils you as a dancing partner."
Yet, to be polite,
She said:
"Too bad I didn't know about the dance sooner. I'm dated up for that night."

Girls always had 'another date' —until he ended 'B.O.' (Body Odor)

HE KNEW he wasn't popular with girls. But he never suspected why until one day a clerk in a drugstore suggested Lifebuoy to him.

GREENEVILLE

ATTENDED FUNERAL OF DAUGHTER-IN-LAW

Mrs. Daniel Shaw has returned to her home on Boswell avenue after spending a few days at Bound Brook, N. J. While there she attended the funeral of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Joseph Shaw, which took place Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Masonic temple. Rev. W. H. Fassitt, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, officiated. Special services were conducted by the members of the O. E. S. society. Burial was in a family lot in Bound Brook cemetery. Mrs. Adelaide Shaw, was 57 years of age, very well known in Masonic circles as the founder of the chapter of the Order of Eastern Star and its first worthy matron, and prominent in the work of the Methodist church. She died very suddenly at the Mullenberg hospital at 9:30 o'clock Wednesday evening. She had been taken there when overcome by a fainting spell at the meeting of Emanuel Chapter O. E. S. in the Masonic temple, Plainfield, N. J.

Mrs. Shaw made no mention of feeling ill when she went with her husband, Joseph A. Shaw, to the meeting. While seated there, however, she complained of being short of breath and finally retired to a less crowded room in the temple. She was there attended by a nurse who happened to be present in the audience. Realizing Mrs. Shaw was grievously ill, Dr. Hughes was called and administered treatment which should have revived the patient, but, this failing, he had her taken in an ambulance to the hospital, where she expired twenty minutes after being admitted. Mr. Shaw was with her at the end. Besides her husband she is survived by two sons residing in New York city, William and Edward and three grandsons. There are also two sisters. She was born in Lodi, N. J., a De Block, one of the pioneer families to come here in colonial days from Holland. Thirty-nine years ago she and Mr. Shaw were married in Passaic. Besides being instrumental in founding the chapter of the O. E. S. Mrs. Shaw was the past district deputy, and past grand representative for the State of Washington. She was advisory president of the Women's Auxiliary of the Methodist church and teacher of the Fidelis Bible class. Mrs. Shaw has a large circle of friends in this vicinity who upon learning of her sudden death will be grieved.

TAFTVILLE

CORPUS CHRISTI OBSERVANCE IS VERY IMPRESSIVE

Corpus Christi, the feast in honor of the institution of the blessed sacrament, was celebrated Sunday at Sacred Heart church, when, after the high mass of the day, a service was held in the open air, which annually attracts hundreds to the village to witness the religious homage paid to the Sacred Host. While the feast day actually fell on Thursday last, that date being set because the church is unable to commemorate a feast during the penitential season of Lent, its celebration was on the following Sunday, thereby permitting all the parishioners to participate. Corpus Christi is observed in this manner throughout continental Europe and certain sections of Canada, and each year the custom is continued in Taftville, one of the few places in Connecticut to observe it with all its old world splendor and religious fervor.

In former years it was customary for the procession to form at the church directly following the last mass of the day, and to march to an elevated section of either Merchants avenue or Hunters avenue; but, during the past two years, traffic has increased so much along these highways that it was deemed advisable to hold the ceremony on the Providence street grounds, where the high cliffs at the western end of the field furnish a wonderful background for the service.

The procession left the church, proceeding south on Hunters avenue, and east on South B street, where it entered the grounds. The line of march was marked on the field by Crusaders' banners of white on which a blue cross was outlined. Scores of automobiles from neighboring villages lined the eastern boundary of the grounds, and hundreds of people had gathered before the marchers arrived on the field.

The marshals of the procession were John J. Daley and Joseph C. Marsan, who were followed by a crucifer and candle bearers. Behind these came the massed flags of the United States with the tri-color and fleur-de-lis banners of France. They made a most colorful sight. Following these were the parochial societies of the parish with many hundreds of members; the pupils of the Sacred Heart school under the direction of their teachers, the Sisters of Charity; the Children of Mary societies dressed in white with veils; the Rosary society; the Ladies of Ste. Anne; members of Ponemah council, No. 34, Knights of Columbus; the St Louis society; the St. Jean Baptiste society; the members of Council Gagnon, Union St. Jean Baptiste; the members of the 1930 class of Sacred Heart school, the girls attired in white with white hats; a score of acolytes in red cassocks and white surplices, and the clergy of the parish. Scores of tiny girls, the first communicants dressed in white frocks and wearing veils, strewed flowers in the path of the Sacred Host. Other acolytes carried smoking censers.

The Host was carried in a monstrance borne by Rev. Frederick R. DesSureault, the church pastor, wearing a cope of white and gold. He walked under a canopy, carried by the collectors of the parish, Christopher Caron, William Malone, Ernest Phaneuf and Peter Benoit. A guard of honor composed of members of the parish who are members of Peter Gallan post, No. 104, American Legion, wearing the Legionnaire caps, walked beside the canopy. All along the line of march, the people knelt devoutly as the Blessed Sacrament passed by. The men's choir chanted hymns in honor of the Eucharist, and the church bell pealed out as the procession neared the cliffs.

Among the rocks on the western end of the field, a beautiful white altar had been erected, attractively decorated by the Sisters of Charity with early summer flowers. Behind and above it stood 50 little girls in white, holding flowers and banners bearing the word "Sanctus."

Upon reaching the altar, the choir sang several hymns, after which Rev. Father DesSureault gave benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, the vast assemblage kneeling in the field. After the service of adoration, the procession returned to the church, leaving by the Providence street entrance while the church bell was again rung.

The whole service was most beautiful and inspiring. Each group moved into a place on the field assigned to it by the master of ceremonies, Jean B. Gauvin, and was very orderly and dignified. Houses along the line of march on Hunters avenue were appropriately decorated in observance of the feast.

COLCHESTER YOUTH DROWNED IN LEBANON WHILE BATHING ALONE

Charles Koshko, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Koshko of Colchester, was drowned about 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon while bathing alone in a brook alongside of the Fitchville-Colchester highway about four miles east of Colchester in the town of Lebanon. He was the fifth person all of them youths between the ages of nine and 22 years, to have lost his life by drowning within four days in the vicinity of Norwich, four of them meeting their death in the Occum section of the city. The body was recovered sometime after the accident and efforts to revive him by artificial respiration and other means were without avail.

Earlier in the day the drowned youth in company with Samuel Legonsky had started out from Colchester in a machine, with the object of going to the Lebanon Country club, George W. Schiller, proprietor, which is located near the scene of the drowning, and where Legonsky was to apply for a job. Reaching the bridge under which the stream flows Koshko announced that he was going in bathing and donned his bathing suit to do so. Legonsky drove on to Schiller's place. How Koshko met his fate will probably be never known, but it is the opinion of Medical Examiner Dr. C. C. Glidersleeve, who was called, that his feet became caught between rocks on the bottom of the stream, while bathing.

According to the story told the medical examiner two boys, whose names could not be learned, came along later and while swimming in the pool, the depth of which is about nine feet, noticed Koshko in a crouched position at the bottom and getting hold of him by the hair and arm, dragged him ashore.

Frederick Swatzburg of No. 21 Maple street, with George Jackson of Yantic, on their way to Schiller's place on business, said that he heard the screams of the two boys and stopping his car, saw Koshko sprawled out on a big rock that was just covered with water. Bringing the drowned youth up onto the bank, Watzburg and Jackson worked frantically over him for three quarters of an hour. In the meantime, the central fire station was called for the inhalator.

The two Norwich men later placed Koshko in their machine and started to drive to the W. W. Backus hospital. Enroute Swatzburg still worked over the youth, until they arrived in front of No. 23 Town street where they met Deputy Chief Dennis J. Brennan and George Maloney of the fire department, coming with the inhalator. These two tried to resuscitate Koshko by use of the machine, but without success after an hour's time.

Medical Examiner Glidersleeve pronounced death due to accidental drowning and gave permission for Undertakers Cummings and Ring to take charge of the body.

Besides his parents Koshko is survived by three sisters. He was a student at a New London high school.

GIRL FATALLY BURNED AT RUTH ST. HOME

Concetta Serruta, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincenza Serruta of 2 Ruth street, died of first degree burns and shock at the W. W. Backus hospital Monday afternoon at about 1:30 o'clock. She was rushed there about four hours earlier after her clothes had caught fire on a stove at her home. The child was alone at her home at 9:23 in the morning and it is understood went to fire a coal stove. She lifted the stove lid to throw on some shingles and the fire ignited her dress. She was soon a mass of flames. In the meanwhile she had rushed out into the yard and neighbors who had been attracted by her screams came to her aid. They pulled the burning clothing from her body and rushed her into a house nearby where olive oil was applied to the burns. In the meanwhile Joseph Lorello, a resident in the vicinity was advised to call a doctor. Under the impression that it was the fire department that was wanted he put in a call to department headquarters. Deputy Chief Brennan and Engine Company No. 3 made a fast run to the place. The deputy chief upon learning the particulars summoned Dr. Louis T. Cassidy and the hospital ambulance. The child was rushed to the hospital and everything was done for her without avail.

Sermon on Prayer Life.

Sunday morning at the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church the pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter, preached on the theme, "I Give Myself Unto Prayer," the text being part of Psalm 109, verse 4. The junior vested choir sang an anthem under the leadership of Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich, the organist. The beautiful figral decorations included a number of bouquets of cut flowers which were taken to sick members following the service.

COMPILING DATA FOR DAVISON GENEALOGY

Data to cover all known living collateral descendants of Robert and John Davison, who came to America from Aberdeen, Scotland, in 1687, is being assembled by Economies Publishing company for the Davison genealogy.

Living descendants and intermediate family records of the Smedly and Davison families who were among the early pioneers in Litchfield county, Norwich Landing and Hampshire county, Mass., are among the family names on which it is intended to enroll all births, marriage and death dates from their first arrival in America down to 1930.

John Smedly and his brother Baptiste, sons of Robert Smedly and Mary Raffold came from Parish of Odell, Bedfordshire, diocese of Lincoln, England, and settled in Concord in 1636 and their offspring removed to West Hossack, now Williamstown and from there scattered through Fairfield, Litchfield, and other Connecticut towns and through the middlewest.

The Davison family originated with Robert Davison of Aberdeen, Scotland and his wife, Elizabeth Brainerd, who with John Davison came to America in 1687, settling in Needham, Mass. Their children removing to Dudley. They have spread their descendants throughout this country and one is known to be living in India.

Dominicus Davison and Asa Davison removed ultimately to Ware, Mass., after having lived in Wales, Mass., and Stafford, Conn., and Litchfield, Conn., and their progeny was exceedingly numerous.

O'BRIEN GREETED SON WITH BYRD EXPEDITION

Patrick O'Brien, a former resident of Norwich, whose son Edward was with the Byrd South Pole expedition, went down on the tug Riverside, one of the official city boats, to meet Admiral Byrd's party when it arrived in New York harbor last week. As the tug came alongside the "City of New York", Mr. O'Brien shouted out to his boy on the South Pole ship. Of the greeting between father and son a New York paper said:

Patrick O'Brien, of 129 E. 180th St., the Bronx, has been in the fire department's telegraph bureau for 27 years. His son, Eddie O'Brien, was a fireman, too, until he left the fireboat New Yorker to go with the expedition.

"Eddie!" yelled O'Brien from the rail. "Hey, Eddie, it's your old man!"

Eddie waved. O'Brien stuck out his chest. His mustache wobbled.

"That," he announced, "is my kid. Yeh, that big guy with the grin."

Mr. O'Brien rode up from the Battery to city hall in an open car with his son.

PARTY EXPENSES IN RECENT CITY ELECTION

In the recent city election in Norwich the expenditures by the republicans were not so much but that they had a balance left over, while the democrats spent all that was contributed for election expenses. BLAZE STARTED IN JUNK DEALER'S WAGON

About 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon the fire department was called out to extinguish a fire in a wagon filled with paper and rags which was parked in front of No. 12 St. Regis avenue. Hyman Friedberg of No. 76 Spring street a junk dealer and owner of the wagon had driven it up and parked it in the street. As he did so painters working on an adjoining building shouted to him to unhitch his horse from the wagon if he did not want it to burn up.

The painters helped the junk dealer to unhitch the horse and dumped out the contents of the vehicle which was slightly scorched from the blaze that was extinguished by the firemen with chemical and water. Engine No. 2, Squad A and Deputy Chief Dennis J. Brennan responded.

YALE DIVINITY SPEAKER BEFORE NORWICH MINISTERS

The Norwich Ministers' association, which held its June meeting Monday morning at the Otis library building, had for its speaker Rev. Hamish Mathews of Yale Divinity school. His informal address was along the line of work among the immigrants and at the jails, and he made several interesting suggestions. In regard to the jails, he recommended that the association appoint a visitor who shall visit the jail once or twice each week in order to talk personally with the prisoners. He also suggested religious services on Sunday and that some arrangement be made by which books can be supplied to the prisoners. He suggested that assistance be given immigrants in the preparation of their first citizenship papers.

The meeting was opened by President Gurdon P. Bailey at 11 o'clock and prayer was offered by Rev. Joseph Cooper. Upon vote of the association, the president named a nominating committee to report at the meeting in September. The committee named was Rev. A. N. Foster of the Universalist church, Rev. Mr. Cooper, and Rev. C. H. Ricketts of Greeneville Congregational church.

Rev. A. N. Foster spoke of three special events affecting three ministers of the association, the 25th anniversary of Rev. David A. Pitt's ordination to the ministry, the retirement of Rev. Mr. Bailey from the active ministry after being connected with the Norwich association for ten years, and the transfer of Rev. E. W. Gantt to a new pastorate in New Britain. The secretary, Rev. G. W. Potter, was directed to write to each, expressing the fraternal greeting of the association.

The meeting adjourned till September, after hearing the address by Rev. Mr. Mathews and discussing the suggestions he made.

PLANE SOUTHERN CROSS SOMEWHERE ALONG N. F. COAST LOST ABOVE THE FOG 160 MILES OFF CAPE RACE AT 11.25 P. M.

Wireless Station At Cape Race, N. F., Plainly Heard the Plane's Signals, But Failed In Attempt to Give It Its Bearings—Believe the Reception Set of the Plane Is Out of Adjustment—At 12.10 A. M. the Southern Cross Advised the Canadian Radio Station of Unavailing Efforts to Pick Them Up.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 24.—(AP)— At 11:25 p. m. (EST) the following message was picked up by the department of marine here from the Southern Cross:

"Now very dark. Almost blinded with motors ringed with flame, still 160 miles from race. Dickens of struggle keep awake now. Drone of motors makes me tired. Faint streak of approaching dawn."

FAILED IN ATTEMPT TO GIVE PLANE BEARINGS

HALIFAX, N. S., June 24.—(AP) — The Canadian government wireless station at Cape Race reported at 11:40 tonight that the radio reception set of the Southern Cross was apparently out of adjustment. The plane's signals on a 600-metre wave length were being plainly heard, but attempts to give the plane its bearings failed.

WAS UNABLE TO PICK UP CANADIAN RADIO STATION

HALIFAX, N. S., June 25, (Wednesday)—(AP)—At 12:10 a. m. (EST), the following message from the transatlantic plane Southern Cross was received by the radio station at Chebucto Head:

"Advise Canadian radio station at Cape Race we have been making every effort to pick them up for the last few hours."

EARLY REPORTS FROM PLANE SOUTHERN CROSS

(By the Associated Press)

Two hundred and fifty miles off Cape Race, seaward-stretching southwestern tip of Newfoundland, Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith's swift Southern Cross at 8:03 p. m. E. S. T. Tuesday had all but completed her westward crossing of the Atlantic.

A dense fog enveloped the Australian ace and his three comrades, but cheery radios reported "All quiet above the fog banks, 2,500 feet up. Everything O. K." The wind was slight.

Her gasoline load lightened, the Southern Cross was capable of making within a little more than two hours her first landfall in the new world. Thence she will turn and head southwest for New York, more than a thousand miles distant, where she is expected at about 10 a. m. E. S. T. Wednesday.

At Roosevelt Field, L. I., preparations rapidly went forward for receiving her. A revolving beacon was kept flashing, and arrangements were made to handle a crowd of spectators anywhere up to 200,000.

NEW YORK PLANS RECEPTION FOR SOUTHERN CROSS CREW

NEW YORK, June 24.—(AP)—Ambitious plans for the reception of Captain Kingsford-Smith and the crew of the Southern Cross were formulated tonight by Grover Whalen, chairman of the mayor's reception committee.

Mr. Whalen said he would be at the field to greet the Southern Cross crew and that he had dispatched telegrams to the British ambassador, the Irish Free State minister, air attaches of the two offices, the Australian consul general and the three United States secretaries inviting them to join him.

A ten-passenger Fokker airplane was dispatched to Washington tonight to await the pleasure of the British ambassador, the Irish minister and the others.

A civic reception with Mayor Walker greeting the airmen at city hall is being planned for either Thursday or Friday. According to tentative plans the Southern Cross crew would be flown from Roosevelt field to the Battery in an amphibian, picked up there and taken to city hall up the "Glory Trail" — lower Broadway.

FOUR ARRESTS FOR HOLD-UP OF RAILROAD WORKERS

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 24.—(AP)—Four men who gave their names as James Ventail, 22, Lynn, Mass.; Peter Martin, 28, Philadelphia; Joseph Martino, 25, Bridgeport, Conn., and James Kelley, 22, Stamford, Conn., were held here tonight for police of Rome, New York, in connection with the hold-up of five railroad workers in that city.

The four were said to have admitted the hold-up, in which a toy pistol was used. The railroad men were locked in a box car after being relieved of three watches and about $5. The hold-up men "rode the rods" on the next train west, hopping off at Minoa, east of this city.

Vetail was picked up by state police near that village this morning and his description of his companions led to their arrest on a street here late today.

Far from downcast at the threat of prison bars, the quartet appeared cheered by the prospect of regular meals for a while.

RAIDS BY DRY AGENTS IN EVENING CLOTHES

NEW YORK, June 24—(AP)—A large squad of federal prohibition agents in evening clothes tonight raided the Central Park casino and the dining rooms of the Hotel Ritz Carlton. Several socially prominent patrons of the exclusive establishments were arrested together with waiters and other employes.

More than 200 persons were dining in the casino when four agents, sitting at a table, rose, walked to the veranda and signalled to 16 of their aides. The raiders approached the diners and took those alleged to have liquor to the police station.

The casino immediately became the scene of the wildest disorder. Guests accused the agents of insulting women, and Sidney Solomon, owner of the casino, phoned police headquarters and demanded that an emergency squad be sent. He said the agents "looked like robbers."

SERIOUS MUTINY IN RANGOON CENTRAL JAIL

RANGOON, Burma, India, June 24.—(AP)—One of the most serious prison mutinies in recent Indian history occurred here today in the Rangoon central jail. Before the police and wardens had subdued the rioters, in two hours of firing, 45 persons were killed and 71 wounded.

The dead included two sentries, two military police, a prison truck driver and forty convicts.

The armed forces of the law poured volley after volley into the ranks of the stubbornly resisting prisoners, literally mowing them down. Many of the injured were not expected to survive.

One report attributed the outbreak to indignation among the Indian convicts over the findings of the Simon commission.

The authorities said that all indications pointed to a well organized plot for a jail delivery.

VICTORIES CLAIMED BY NATIONALIST CHINESE

SHANGHAI, June 24.—(AP)— Rebel claims of trapping 20,000 government troops near Tsinkiang in China's northern war theatre, were disputed today by nationalist leaders while the veil of government censorship continued to obscure what actually was transpiring in the war-torn area.

FLEW 900 MILES WITH NO VIEW OF OUTSIDE WORLD

SCOTT FIELD, Ill., June 24.—(AP)—An instrument for blind flying with which two army officers have been experimenting for several months today enabled Captain William C. Ocker, one of the inventors, to pilot a plane approximately 900 miles from San Antonio, Tex., to Scott Field, Ill., from a covered cockpit that afforded no view of the outside world.

He was accompanied, and part of the time aided, by Lieut. C. J. Crane, co-inventor, who occupied an open cockpit as a safety pilot. Their destination is Washington, D. C., where they expect to fly tomorrow after stopping overnight at Wright field, Dayton, Ohio.

Captain Ocker, who termed the trip an unofficial test, said he experienced no great difficulty in today's flight but that a few times he strayed from his charted course and had to be righted by Lieut. Crane. Both Ocker and Crane said they believe the device will prove a success for blind flying.

It is a flight integrator, a model airplane mounted on the instrument board. It combines the functions of a bank indicator, inclinometer and turn indicator.

BURIAL OF SPANG DRAWS VEIL ON WEST ROCK TRAGEDY

ANSONIA, June 24—(AP)—Six graves in St. Peter's cemetery at East Derby tonight contained the mangled and broken bodies of Raymond C. Spang, Ansonia World war veteran, his wife and four children.

Victims of one of the most poignant tragedies in the history of New Haven, Spang and the five members of his family whom he hurled from the towering summit of West Rock Saturday before ending his own life with a suicidal leap off the cliff, were buried today following a requiem high mass at the Church of the Assumption.

Hundreds of persons crowded into the church, hundreds lined the streets outside the edifice. There were friends of the family in the crowds and chums of the four children. Most of the spectators however, were drawn to the church and the streets outside by the overpowering sadness of the tragedy which the demented World war veteran had enacted during a maniacal frenzy on the day following his escape from a New York hospital for the insane.

No word of censure was heard in the crowd against the perpetrator of the tragedy. Only pity and sorrow were expressed.

BOMB MADE FOR CIVIL WAR WOUNDS A BOY YESTERDAY

BEDFORD, Pa., June 24—(AP)—Russell Lybarger, 18, is a 1930 casualty of the Civil War.

A bomb made for use in the war between the States, and used by the Lybarger family for a door stop, exploded as young Lybarger attempted to chisel dirt out of the supposedly empty device. The blast shattered the youth's left hand, necessitating its amputation.

A member of the family brought the bomb from Gettysburg in the '60s.

REPORT CONSIDERED PARKER-COUZENS BILL

WASHINGTON, June 24—(AP)—Amid vigorous debate, the senate today began consideration of the Parker-Couzens bill to place interstate passenger motor buses under regulation of the interstate commerce commission.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, June 24.—(AP)—The National bank of Szechoslovakia today reduced its discount rate from 4 1-2 to 4 per cent.

SIMLA, India, June 24.—(AP)— The second volume of the Simon commission's report, which recommends an All-India federation composed of the native states and the British provinces, cannot be said to have received an enthusiastic reception from Indian leaders.

LONDON, June 24.—(AP)—Tiny lords and ladies, of noble and even royal blood, will be queens and dukes and barons for one day, June 26. All of London society is planning to turn out to see the matinee spectacle of one of Queen Victoria's early courts reconstructed by children who are descendants of people who attended the function back in the 1840's.

FLORENCE, Italy, June 24.—(AP)—Reliving a page of her medieval history, Florence today celebrated the festivity of her patron, St. John the Baptist. With ceremonies that had their beginning in the year 662, when the veneration of St. John the Baptist as the saint of Florence started, Florence became "fuori di si," or beside herself in her observance.

POPE PIUX XI THREATENED WITH UREMIC POISONING

VATICAN CITY, June 24.—(AP) — Pope Pius XI, who is 73 years old and has occupied the throne of Saint Peter since February 1522, today was reported ill with acute bladder trouble and threatened by the possible setting in of uremic poisoning.

The report threw Vatican City and Roman official and social circles into consternation this evening.

Officially, the first tendency was to discount the gravity of the illness because of the pontiff's vigorous appearance at services in Saint Peter's on Sunday for the canonization of two saints. The pope went through the four-hour ceremony with strong gestures and a firm resonant voice.

Consultation with doctors and the members of the pope's intimate suite later revealed the fact that he had been not a little troubled in recent weeks, and that Sunday's services, which had been preceded by a thorough drainage had proved a more severe strain than was anticipated.

The pontiff's condition is understood to have taken a turn for the worse yesterday and today, chiefly because he insisted on receiving numerous pilgrims from Spain and Italy.

TUMULTUOUS RECEPTION FOR COM. BYRD IN ALBANY

ALBANY, N. Y., June 24.—(AP)—Received by tumultuous thousands as wildly enthusiastic as any crowds yet to hail him, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd came to the state capital today to receive the distinguished service medal of the state of New York and to renew his old friendship with Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Coming from New York city in a navy destroyer with members of his South Pole expedition and his wife and mother, the admiral was landed on a shore black with admirers who broke through all police restraint to trample about the waiting automobiles in wild efforts to seize the explorer's hand.

With difficulty the procession crawled along the waterfront and turned into State street and up Capitol hill. For a time all progress was blocked by the crowds that filled the Broad steep street for a quarter mile from building line to building line. Mounted troops slowly wedged a narrow channel through the cheering throng, however, and the official party crept at last to Capitol park and the white steps where the governor awaited.

REASONS GIVEN FOR BEING OUT OF JOBS

NEW YORK, June 24—(AP)—There aren't enough horses for horseshoers, and there's too much rain for bricklayers. These were two of the answers Bronx residents gave when census enumerators asked them why they were out of jobs.

The 24th Bronx enumeration district showed an average unemployment of about 2.5 per cent out of 649,545 persons, 16,359 were jobless.

A speculator and trader was unemployed because of the "Wall Street crash," a taxi driver's "flivver was not working," a typist expected "to become a mother," a messenger had "no ambition," and most of a laundry driver's customers had gone to the country.

ENTERING 14TH DAY OF ITS REFUELING FLIGHT

CHICAGO, June 24—(AP)—Having successfully passed the hoodoo No. 13, "The City of Chicago" entered the 14th day of its refueling flight for world honors. At 4:40 p. m. (CDT) it had completed 13 days—312 hours—of flight.

John and Kenneth Hunter, the pilots, have expressed themselves in notes as confident they can increase the world's record of 420 hours, set last year in St. Louis. They already have broken their own record, 263 hours, by 50 hours. They set their previous record last summer with the same motor and plane, then known as the "Chicago—We Will."

DECREASE REPORTED IN REV. FREIGHT LOADINGS

WASHINGTON, June 24. — (AP) — Revenue freight loadings for the week ended June 14 were reported by the American Railway association to have totalled 927,754 cars.

This was a decrease of 7,893 cars below the preceding week, and a reduction of 143,491 cars below loadings for the corresponding week a year ago.

Cyclonic Storm In South Central Ohio

Storm Struck Farm Lands, Leveling Houses, Barns, Trees and Telephone Lines.

COLUMBUS, O., June 24.—(AP)— A storm of cyclonic proportions swept through south central Ohio shortly after noon today, levelling barns, houses, trees, telephone lines and causing injury to one person as far as could be ascertained on early reports.

The most severe part of the storm struck the farm lands just south of Circleville, leveled many houses and barns and threw all communications lines out of commission.

A violent wind storm came out of the west and swept through southern Fayette county causing fairly heavy damage at Buena Vista. It passed slightly north of New Martinsburg, covering a path about two miles wide. The storm felled trees and poles and caused other damage.

BOY SCOUT TRAINING SAVED HAROLD JOHNSON

RIVERSIDE, Calif., June 24.—(AP)—Harold Johnson, twelve-year-old, lost on Mount San Jacinto, remembered his Boy Scout training, and today while 150 searchers vainly combed the district, trudged into Snow Creek fish hatchery at the foot of the mountain.

For four days the boy crawled and slid down the side of the 10,000-foot mountain which has been scaled only three or four times in the memory of nearby residents. He was smiling a little, despite bruises and tattered clothing, when he knocked at the door of the hatchery and asked for bread and milk.

The boy had not eaten since last Friday when he became lost from a party of scouts hiking up the mountain. After he had refreshed himself he told how it happened, while word of his re-appearance was relayed by telephone to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Johnson, waiting at a nearby resort. Mr. Johnson is postmaster at Corona, Calif. Neither he nor his wife had given up hope, although searchers were pessimistic.

"I just went to look at something," Harold said, "and when I tried to go back I got lost." But he didn't get panicky. Naturally calm, he used his scout training and started picking his way down the deep and treacherous ravines. At night he slept under sheltering rocks. He found drinking water in streams and feeling certain he would come out safely, he didn't bother about food.

After resting and eating at the hatchery the boy was taken to Banning. There his overjoyed parents later joined him.

STUDIES OF ATTEMPTS TO RELIEVE UNEMPLOYMENT

WASHINGTON, June 24. — (AP) — Studies of attempts to relieve unemployment by increasing expenditures for public works have brought President Hoover's committee on economic changes to the conclusion that effective application of the idea requires a great amount of planning and careful timing.

The group includes in its membership Owen D. Young, President Green of the American Federation of Labor, Daniel Willard of the Baltimore and Ohio, and other leaders.

A summary of studies undertaken by its agents, issued today, said that "skillful timing in the use of a comparatively small margin of public construction" is the most important end to achieve, it suggested that it will be necessary to develop ways and means of anticipating the onset on a cycle of depression.

MEETING OF CONNECTICUT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

HARTFORD, June 24.—(AP) — The position of the Connecticut chamber of commerce on the retention of the so-called sound lines by the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad on which subject the interstate commerce commission is now holding hearings in New England, will be determined by a state-wide referendum to the members of the state chamber in accordance with a vote passed by its board of directors at a meeting held here today.

Officers of the state chamber for the ensuing year were elected at the meeting. They are:

President, Henry Trumbull, treasurer of the Trumbull Manufacturing company, of Plainville; vice president, John B. Byrne, vice president of the Hartford-Connecticut Trust company, vice president, James T. LaMotte Russell, president of the Manchester Trust company, South Manchester.

SUPT. OF BOYS' SCHOOL TO BE NAMED TOMORROW

MERIDEN, June 24.—(AP)—Following a lengthy session of the special committee of the board of trustees of the Connecticut school for boys, this afternoon, it was announced that the successor to the late John A. Tinsley, of Barbourville, Ky., superintendent-elect, will be named at the regular meeting of the board Thursday morning.

Eight candidates for the superintendency were interviewed and four letters from other applicants were considered. The committee announced that it would hold a brief session before the regular meeting Thursday, when one of the applicants would be recommended for the position to the trustees. The committee reported that of the 12 candidates, only four are residents of this state.

JUBILEE CONVENTION OF INTERNATIONAL ROTARY

CHICAGO, June 24.—(AP)—International good will became a Rotary byword today as twenty delegates from as many countries expressed a cross section of world opinion on human progress.

The delegates, attending with 17,000 others, the silver jubilee convention of Rotary International, an association of luncheon clubs with the motto, "Service above Self" were asked to state two things—the most interesting event in their countries last year and the most important event augmenting human progress

To Limit Debate On The Deficiency Bill

Senate Today Will Discuss Amount of Money For Law Enforcement Commission.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—(AP) — Approaching the end of its long session, the debate-weary senate today drew up a cloture petition to limit the length of speeches during its consideration of the vital second deficiency appropriation bill.

Tomorrow it will take up the dispute over the amount of money to be allowed next year for the Hoover law enforcement commission. Chairman Jones, of the appropriations committee, submitted an amendment to increase the $50,000 voted by the committee to the $250,000 requested by President Hoover.

The senate also must dispose of the battle begun tonight by Senators Ashurst and Hayden, Arizona, democrats, against the provision of $10,660,000 for starting construction of Boulder Canyon dam.

Senator Jones introduced the cloture petition and it will be voted upon automatically Thursday. If adopted by a two-thirds majority it restricts senators to one hour of debate. Senate leaders, hope, however, to finish the bill tomorrow.

Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, sponsored the $50,000 fund for the Hoover commission. His provision would restrict the commission to an investigation of prohibition alone.

The senate approved all the additions to the deficiency measure proposed by the appropriations committee, including $281,305 for the acquisition of land at Fort Bliss, Texas.

It also added an amendment by Senator Harris, democrat, Georgia, to provide $100,000 for a survey in connection with the control of cancer. Harris offered his amendment after hearing by the commerce committee on methods of federal cooperation in controlling cancer.

Only the prohibition and Boulder Canyon dam amendments remain to be voted upon.

All provisions in the house bill for new federal buildings were approved

CONFLICTING REPORTS ON RAILROAD CONSOLIDATIONS

WASHINGTON, June 24. — (AP) — Conflicting majority and minority reports were filed with the house today on the action of the house interstate commerce committee in redrafting the senate resolution to suspend all railroad consolidations until next March 4 and to declare illegal consolidations accomplished through holding companies.

The majority report, prepared by Chairman Parker of the committee, opposed immediate enactment of legislation prohibiting mergers through holding companies, recommending that congress should not act on this question until the committee had concluded its holding company investigation.

The minority report, signed by Representatives Middleston, Alabama; Parks, Arkansas and Crosser, Texas, all democrats, criticized the committee substitute for its failure to include provisions that would slow up rail unifications, which it said, "have caused market uneasiness throughout the country."

The substitute, instead of prohibiting, would require the approval of the interstate commerce commission for consolidations accomplished through holding companies.

BILL SIGNED CREATING FED. POWER COMMISSION

WASHINGTON, June 24.—(AP)—An independent federal power commission of five members was created today to devote its entire time to administering the nation's water power resources.

President Hoover signed the Parker bill to reorganize the commission. Under the act, the existing commission consisting of the secretaries of war, interior and agriculture, will be discarded. The president expects to name the members in time for the senate to confirm them before adjournment.

The reorganization was proposed by President Hoover in his recommendations to congress. He was supported by Secretaries Wilbur, Hyde and Hurley. They maintained that the business of the group had grown to such proportions that they were unable to give it proper attention along with their other duties.

Under the act, the new commission will begin functioning July 1, if three members have assumed their posts. President Hoover already has submitted to congress a request for $111,920 to cover increased expenses for the fiscal year 1931.

COURT DECISION AGAINST THE KING OF ITALY

NEW YORK, June 24.—(AP)—Tony Comincio, a peddler, never dreamed that when he died the king of Italy would claim to be his heir.

But when Tony died several years ago, leaving an estate of about $1,000, the king, through the Italian consul-general, claimed the estate on the ground that Comincio never became a naturalized citizen of the United States and left no next of kin. Public Administrator James F. Egan claimed that Tony must have had relatives entitled to the estate.

Today the appellate division of the supreme court upheld the decision of Surrogate Foley that the king is not the heir, and that as Tony lived in this country, the public administrator here is the proper legal administrator.

SALVAGING COPPER CARGO OF SUNKEN BARGE WINSACO

SAYBROOK POINT, June 24.—(AP)—A salvage expedition began work today off Cornfield Point lightship in Long Island sound, off the mouth of the Connecticut river, to recover a cargo of copper which was on the Winsaco, a barge which went down in a storm 16th months ago. The copper was consigned to Providence, R. I.

In the operations a metal water bell invented by Harry L. Bowdoin was to be tried out.

There had been previous attempts to salvage the copper and some of it had been recovered. Operations were begun yesterday by the Sub Ocean Salvage corporation, of New York, directed by Bowdoin, W. C. Stoechel and E. Schumaker.

HOOVER AGAIN CONDEMNS THE VETERANS' RELIEF BILL

The President Asserts That the Very Basis of All the Bill Sets Up An Untruthful and Physically Impossible "Presumption"—"Just Bad Legislation" — This Second Warning, As the Bill Goes Back to the House, Is Taken As a Positive Notice That a Veto Awaits the Measure At the White House.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—(AP)—In plainspoken terms, President Hoover warned congress today for the second time that he considered the veterans' relief measure bad legislation.

While the measure was going back to the house for agreement to amendments written into it by the senate before that group gave it the final pat of approval by 66 to 6, the president spoke in unvarnished phrases the opposition which he had signified in statements Sunday.

At the capitol, the second statement was taken as a positive notice that the measure would find a veto waiting for it if it journeyed down Pennsylvania avenue in the form in which it now stands. A caucus of house republicans was called for tonight to plan a course of action.

Although considerably changed by the senate, the measure which came back to the house was in the main the same which it passed several weeks ago by an overwhelming vote.

President Hoover said the bill was "just bad legislation" which would not receive the support of the country.

Standing in his private office with only newspapermen for an audience the chief executive spoke forcibly, several times departing from his prepared text as he sought to add vigor.

"The veterans' bill is more in the interest of veterans than in the interest of the taxpayer," the chief executive said.

"The very basis of all the bill sets up an untruthful, and, according to our physicians, a physically impossible 'presumption' and predicates its action upon this."

He asserted that it contained many discriminations and injustices, violating "not only the fact but the integrity of our government," and added:

"It is a sad thing for our government to set standards of subterfuge to our people."

The president said that except for some marginal cases, the government has long since generously provided for the men whose disabilities arise from the war itself, and added that the senate bill dealt with men in reality disabled from incidents of civil life since the war.

The measure, he said, selects a particular group of 75,000 to 100,000 men and makes provisions for them in the "most wasteful and discriminatory way conceivable and entirely neglects the equal rights to help of over 200,000 more veterans who are likewise suffering from disabilities incurred in civil life since the war."

"The sensible thing is either to take care of these emergencies or marginal cases and then soberly determine future action, or, alternatively, to make the beginnings of sound action now on such foundations as will contribute to the ultimate settlement of the problem with real justice to veterans and with generosity in solution for the future," the president said.

"Such action can be taken within our present financial resources, and I believe the nation would support that. I do not believe the country would support this bill."

Sunday, on the eve of the senate's vote, the chief executive, in a letter to Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader, said, passage of the bill "implies positive increase of taxation at the next session of congress."

He incorporated letters from Secretary Mellon advising against imposing the additional financial burden upon the government and from Director Hines of the veterans bureau stating that the bill would add directly $102,000,000 the first year to government expenditures for veterans and ultimately $400,000,000 annually.

On the heels of this warning, Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, presented to the senate a compromise approved by the white house, but this was shouted down without a record vote.

The proposal has been made by some of the republican leaders in the house that the Swick bill, which is similar to the Reed amendment, be substituted for the present measure.

It is estimated the Swick measure would cost the government about $35,000,000 the first year. However, this sum would be gradually increased to about $225,000,000 at the end of a five-year period.

Representative Rankin, of Mississippi, ranking minority member on the house World war veterans committee, said today in a statement the bill as passed by the senate "is supported by every single organization of World war veterans in the United States."

154 HOUSE REPUBLICANS TO SUSTAIN HOOVER'S VOTE

WASHINGTON, June 24.—(AP)—An agreement to sustain the president's anticipated veto of the World war veterans pension bill was entered into tonight by 154 republicans at a house republican caucus.

In taking this action the republicans specified that a substitute bill would have to be enacted immediately.

This number is more than one-third of the house members and would be sufficient to prevent that body from overriding a presidential vote.

The caucus took a poll of the state delegations to arrive at the decision. Many of the republicans were absent and several announced they were undecided.

Representative Strong, of Kansas, predicted that 200 republicans would join in upholding President Hoover's position on the veterans bill and that a suitable substitute would be approved by the house within 30 minutes after the Johnson bill had been vetoed.

A considerable number of the republicans at the caucus, he added, were still doubtful as to their course, but he expressed the opinion they would join with the party majority.

CLAIMS WAILING WALL IS PROPERTY OF ARABS

JERUSALEM, June 24.—(AP)—Auni Bey, Arab spokesman, today told the wailing wall commission that the Moslems own the wail and its surroundings and the burden of proof of Jewish claims rests upon the Jews. He made the statement at the private hearing now in its second day.

Auni Bey said the Moslems maintain the Jews are merely entitled to passage past the wall as are other outsiders. He suggested that the Jews present their case first and then the Arabs would reply. On behalf of the Moslem authorities Jamal Husseini disclaimed any knowledge of the defacing of Jewish inscriptions on the wailing wall. Husseini defended the practice of the Moslems' collecting any time and anywhere for prayers since, he said, they do not have regular places of worship.

He suggested that the large number of Jews at the wail last Saturday was due to a desire of the Jewish authorities to stage a demonstration. Mordecai Eliash, one of the Jewish spokesmen, explained that it was nothing unusual for a large number of Jews to be at the wailing wall on the first Saturday of the Jewish month. Emil Lodgren, the chairman of the commission, remarked that he and his fellow commissioners had visited the wailing wall area Saturday and had not observed anything unusual.

ACTION COMPLETED ON RIVERS AND HARBORS BILL

WASHINGTON, June 24. — (AP) — Final congressional action was completed today on the largest and most comprehensive rivers and harbors bill ever formulated when the house and senate approved the conference report on the Dempsey bill to authorize construction of more than 170 projects to cost $144,881,902.

Republican leaders believe President Hoover will sign the measure early this week. It is in line with his recommendation to congress for improvement of the nation's harbors and waterways to provide economical transportation.

The measure, which was in process formulation for three years, affects every region of the country. It commits the government to a number of important projects affecting streams in the Mississippi basin, and to improvement of the inter-coastal waterways and harbors of important ports.

As originally passed by the house it authorized construction to cost $116,286,027. The senate, however, added projects that increased the total by $28,596,875.

The construction is to be spread over a period of years ranging from 1 to 15. Approximately $30,000,000 of the $80,000,000 carried in the annual war department supply bill will become available July 1 for use on these projects. The remainder is to go toward Mississippi flood control work.

DANIELSON

VERDICT FOR DEFENDANT IN $10,000 DAMAGE SUIT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Conn., June 24.—The verdict is for the defendant in the case of Albert Webb, as administrator of the estate of his son, Charles Webb, vs. Charles A. Parker. Both parties to the action are residents of the town of Brooklyn. The suit, for damages of $10,000, was brought by Mr. Webb as the result of his son being fatally injured when the bicycle on which he was riding was run down by an automobile operated by Herbert Parker, son of the defendant.

The accident happened on the night of Nov. 27, last, on the state highway between Danielson and Brooklyn, at a point about a hundred yards west of Day street. Charles Webb was riding along toward Danielson on his bicycle, at the right hand side of the highway. Behind him and traveling in the same direction was the automobile operated by Herbert Parker.

A car coming in the opposite direction blinded Mr. Parker with its lights so that he could not see the Webb bicycle or rider and the collision occurred. The injured man lived until Dec. 4, when his death occurred rather suddenly.

Following presentation of the case of the plaintiff, who was represented by Attorneys E. L. Darbie and L. A. Veisard of Danielson, Attorney Harry B. Back representing the defendant, moved for judgment and waived nonsuit. Mr. Back represented to the court that the plaintiff had not proved negligence on the part of the defendant, nor had established that Charles Webb had not been negligent. It was contended for the defendant that the bicycle Charles Webb was riding at the time the accident occurred and in the darkness was without a rear light that would be visible at a distance of 200 feet, as the law requires.

The case was tried yesterday in the superior court at Willimantic.

Robert Kershaw Bennett, a Killingly man, was last night elected by the Providence school board to be a principal of one of the four new Junior high schools that are to be opened later in that city. Mr. Bennett, whose mother, Fannie S. Bennett, a resident of Dayville, where he lived while attending Killingly high school, graduated here in 1905. He entered Brown university in the fall and graduated in the class of 1909. He was elected principal of Killingly high school in 1911, and remained in the position for four years. At the present time he is principal of the Laurel Hill grammar school in Providence. His election to his new place, at a salary of $4,100 a year, carries with it a half-year's leave of absence with pay, which time he will spend in special study to prepare himself particularly for Junior high school direction.

Secretary L. Edwin Hill, Danielson, is a member of the advance party at the Tri-County Y. M. C. A. camp at Black pond in the town of Woodstock. Other leaders now at the camp are E. Thienes of the Hartford County Y. M. C. A., William Tyler of the Tolland County Y. M. C. A., and Leonard Black of the Southington Y. M. C. A.

The following department heads also are now at Camp Woodstock: George R. Westhover, headmaster of Woodstock academy, educational director; Jack C. Huden, professor of chemistry at Ansonia high school, instructor in nature study; Rev. Melville Osborne, pastor of the First Methodist church, Rockville, director of pageantry; Albert Gray, professor at the Troupe Junior high school, New Haven, swimming instructor and life-saving examiner; Guy Hastings, handicraft department; Miss Margaret Miel, school nurse at Woodstock, in charge of infirmary; Plummer Wiley, Hartford, camp engineer; Robert Shaw, in charge of culinary department, assisted by Nelson King of Putnam.

The first big event will be July 4, when many visitors will witness a special athletic meet in the morning, a parade by campers in costume, baseball game and aquatic meet. There is to be a fireworks display in the evening.

FUNERAL

Nazaire Sabourin

This morning the funeral of Nazaire Sabourin was held from the home in Goodyear, services being held at St. Joseph's church in Dayville at 9 o'clock. Many were in attendance. The officers of the solemn high mass of requiem were Rev. Ignatius Kost, the pastor; Rev. Anthelme Mollard, M. S., and Rev. J. A. Demers, M. S. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery, the committal service conducted by Rev. Fr. Kost. Bearers were Joseph LaBonne, Napoleon Carrier, Arthur Chabot, Xavier Blain, Peter Frechette and Joseph Billings. Martin T. Burns was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

About 60 grangers attended the grange Sunday service at the Goodyear Congregational church, where Rev. Charles A. Downs, chaplain of the Connecticut State grange, is pastor. The majority of the grangers attending were members of Killingly grange, but there were other grangers from neighboring towns. Rev. Mr. Downs preached from the text, II Corinthians 5:1, "That house not made with hands," and took for a theme The Abiding Personality. The instrumental music for the occasion was by Miss Lucile E. Downs at the organ, Miss Irene Cobb violinist, Miss Mae Longbottom saxophone and Joseph Greene trombonist. Vocal numbers were pleasingly given by Miss Nancy Whittaker. Officers and members of the grange, wearing their regalia and badges, made the collection at the service, which was held in the Community house through the courtesy of Supt. C. W. Young of the mill company. The floral decorations were donated and arranged by Mrs. C. A. Downs, Mrs. C. W. Young, Mrs. Charles Carver and Mrs. William Clement.

His Danielson friends find happiness in contemplating the fine record that William Schofield has made during the past school year as director of athletics at Crosby high school in Waterbury, of which he is an alumnus. Mr. Schofield was a star athlete at the Connecticut Agricultural college before coming to Danielson as a member of the faculty of Killingly high school and director of athletics.

Teams coached by Mr. Schofield and his assistants at Crosby during the past school year engaged in 57 contests in five major sports—football, baseball, basketball, track and swimming. Of these Crosby won 32, lost 22 and tied 2. Crosby's major opponents are Wilby, Naugatuck and Torrington. A review of the athletic activities at Crosby the past school year indicates that Mr. Schofield's advent as athletic director vastly improved the school's showing. During the year, 325 reported for the various teams. Having had such a full degree of success in his first year at Crosby, and with his system now well established, even greater things are looked for from Mr. Schofield's team during the next school year.

ELKS "GOOD WILL" CAR VISITS LOCAL LODGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 24—Officers of the Putnam Lodge of Elks at noon today welcomed W. B. Hart and his companion, who are driving one of the Elks' Magazine cars which is on a transcontinental automobile tour from the Pacific coast to Atlantic City, N. J., where the national convention of the order is to be held on July 7, 8, 9, 10, 11.

Mr. Hart was received by Lionel H. Charron, a past exalted ruler of the local lodge and delegate to the national convention to be held next month. Mr. Hart, who is a member of the Elks Magazine staff, sponsers of the tour, conveyed the good will greetings from the Grand Lodge officials to the local Elks.

The purpose of the tour is threefold: to carry a message of business confidence affording the lodges called upon an opportunity to support the efforts of President Hoover to induce the American people with faith in the economic soundness of the country; to carry information of and arouse interest in the grand lodge convention to be held in Atlantic City, N. J., in July; to establish personal contact between the magazine ("The Elks") and thousands of its readers and thus further cement the fine understanding and good will it already exerts.

The car left the city shortly after noon bound for a short visit to Danielson, the home of Exalted Ruler Frank M. Bedard of the Putnam lodge and from there was to go to Willimantic where a large reception in its honor was to have been given this evening. Norwich was included in the itinerary for Wednesday, when a visit would be paid the Norwich lodge.

MRS. ZEMBA IS BOUND OVER TO SUPERIOR COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 24.—In city court at a special session this afternoon, Judge M. H. Geissler granted a hearing in the case of Mary Zemba, Polish woman under arrest on a charge of assault with intent to kill. The testimony of Mrs. Mary Zella of Park street, was sufficient cause for Judge Geissler to find probable cause and order Mrs. Zemba bound over to the superior court for trial at the next session having criminal jurisdiction. Bonds of $2,000 were set for her release.

Mrs. Zemba, the assailant of the Park street woman appeared in court. Her face expressed outward calm and only at intervals did she interrupt the testimony given by Mrs. Zella. Her clothes were somewhat masculine and while the warrant was being read by her Attorney Johnson, Mrs. Zemba stood with her hands thrust in hip pockets in her skirt. She pleaded guilty, but the circumstances related in the testimony of Mrs. Zella necessitated the changing of the plea to not guilty.

Mrs. Zella told of knowing Mrs. Zemba for a number of years. She related the incident of Mrs. Zemba appearing at her home and asking for furniture which had been left in her care. She continued, relating how she refused to relase the property until the owner had arranged to settle for storage charges which they agreed upon. Mrs. Zemba, at this time, according to the witness threatened "to get her."

While walking along the railroad property last Friday afternoon Mrs. Zella was attacked by the infuriated woman who was armed with a 22 calibre revolver. She said that Mary came out of the bushes alongside the tracks and thrust the gun into her stomach, saying "Now I've got you where I want you." Making a gesture by waving her hand, Mrs. Zemba fired one shot. It went far off its course. A second one struck the woman in the neck and a third one a few seconds later entered her hand. She exhibited her wounds, which were carefully dressed.

Mrs. Zemba at this point denied the allegation of her victim which was to the effect that the shots were intentional. She put in, through Charles Bruzuk of Main street, an interpretor, that she only wished to frighten her debtor. The case terminated with Mrs. Zemba denying the charges. Late this afternoon she was committed to the county jail in Brooklyn to await a disposition of her case at the September session of superior court. It was said after the adjournment of court that the nature of the offense with which the elderly woman is charged provides for a long term prison sentence if the accused is convicted.

Mrs. Zemba was examined Monday by a local physician who reported to the police that he observed her to be mentally sound. The doctor asserted that the dire circumstances under which she had been laboring for nearly three months had affected her reasoning and had left her in a worn out condition physically. Mrs. Zemba who is thought to be a widower, is without a home. She had been out of employment for a number of weeks and was without financial maintainence. She had slept out of doors in parks and wooded areas in Putnam and Danielson and obtained food from sources where ever possible.

"Putnam" has been dug up, cleaned out and painted. Believe it or not, but it's a fact and a very commendable one at that. Residents of the city having occasion to walk to South Main street via the railroad sub-way at the depot, this afternoon observed the letters P-U-T-N-A-M set into the little plot of green on the north side of the depot and Union block, shining brilliantly in their new and badly needed coat of yellow paint which was applied this morning by Charles A. Ryan, a public spirited citizen. The letters are blocks of concrete. Only ordinary care has been accorded the little patch of green in recent years and because of this inattention, dust and dirt collected from the huge locomotives smudged the face of the blocks. Grass grew over them and made it difficult for transients passing in railroad coaches to decipher the word. This morning Mr. Ryan undertook to rectify conditions in the center of the patch of green and when he had completed his task, the former lustre of "Putnam" had been restored. He dug the dirt from between the letters, painted them with the new police traffic paint and swept the coal dust of locomotives out of the grass and then mowed it. Mr. Ryan's efforts have been recognized by local railroad authorities and he will perhaps receive official commendation from the city council at its next session.

Forest Morgan, a Rhode Island attorney, is due for some paging from the court officials of Justice Percy P. Tourtellotte's little department of justice in the village of North Grosvenordale. Morgan was involved in an automobile mishap in North Grosvenordale Saturday evening. Both the lawyer and Antonio Ierardi of North Grosvenordale were ordered into court by Officer Raoul Blanchard, the village officer, on a motor vehicle violation. Justice Tourtellotte convened his court last evening for the purpose of hearing the tales of woe. Only Ierardi appeared. Incidentally court was adjourned and the grand juror was instructed to communicate with the department of motor vehicles of the state of Rhode Island to learn why the barrister of "Little Rhody" ignored the court summons of Officer Blanchard.

JEWETT CITY

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT ROBINSON-GILL WEDDING

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, June 24. — The home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis A. Gill was the scene Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock of the marriage of their daughter, Sarah Genevieve Gill, to Earl Harvey Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Robinson. The ceremony and reception were out of doors in the beautiful grounds surrounding the house. The marriage ceremony was performed before a lovely hedge of laurel and red roses set between graceful white birches. As the Bridal March from Lohengrin was played by Miss Mary Prunier of Norwich, the bride, accompanied by her father and her attendants, walked from the front entrance of the house, and the groom and his brother, Theodore A. Robinson, from the rear, to the scene of the ceremony. Rev. J. Edward Newton of New Haven, the groom's uncle, was the officiating clergyman, the double ring service being used. Two ushers, Jay Ricketts of Hartford and Robert Henry of Terryville preceded the bride's sisters, Lois and Glorianna, in the bride's procession. The maid of honor was Miss May Vailin of Norwich, and the flower girl was Jayne Ricketts of Hartford, the groom's niece. The bride wore a charming white chiffon gown and veil, carrying a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor's gown was green silk voile and she carried yellow marguerites. The bridesmaid's frocks were yellow organdie, each carrying old fashioned bouquets. The little flower maid wore a dainty embroidered organdie dress with tulle hair ornament, and carried a basket of rose petals. After the ceremony, a buffet lunch was served. The bride received many gifts of money, linen, glassware and household furnishings of varied kinds. Her gift to her maid of honor was a crystal and chromium brooch, and to her bridesmaids, gold and sapphire bar pins. The groom gave his attendants silver belt buckle sets. The pianist received a jade and pearl necklace. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson will sail to Bermuda for their honeymoon. Mrs. Robinson traveled in yellow shantung with blue coat and hat to correspond. With the present shutting down of the local textile plant of the Fisk Rubber Co., Jewett City, people will be interested to read what Prentice W. Chase, editor of The Acco Smile, published for the operatives of the Ashland Cotton Co by The Ashland club, has to say in the current number about the local plant:

It might appear that within the past two weeks that things have slowed up in the new finishing department, but this is not the case. As a matter of fact much progress is being made but the work now does not show up quite as conspicuously as did the setting up of machinery.

At present the wiring and piping job is in the works and this same piping job is really quite a problem all its own. Much of this is very heavy stuff to handle with numerous valves, gates and junctions to contend with.

The water tanks are well under way and are three in number. The smallest of the three is of 25,000-gallon capacity and is located on a thirty-foot steel construction just outside the big mill. We understand from Mr. Wingate that the water from the river will be pumped to this tank from the river and be chemically treated before going to the filter tank which has been built under the floor of the finishing plant. This tank is a gravel filter reservoir.

After the water is used it will be pumped to the two tanks now under construction above the coal pit which are of 50,000 gallons capacity, each mounted on twenty-foot steep constructions. Here the used water will again be chemically treated and part of this will be drained to the river from the tanks. The heavy sediment or residue will be fed by gravity to the two lagoons now under construction in the lot next to the casino and after filtration from one lagoon to the other the water will flow back into the river cleaner and purer than it was before entering the mill at all.

The filtering arrangement has already been approved by the state authorities.

We are not informed definitely as to when the first actual finishing process will be under way, but it seems quite probable that within the next three weeks or at the most within the next four weeks the first piece of cloth should be in process of finishing.

The rest of the plant is running along with business fairly good on certain lines and we can consider ourselves fortunate in that so many mills nearby are running on short time.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Peter Gets More Than He Bargained For

You'll find through life that an excuse
Is seldom of the slightest use.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit had thumped twice as hard as he could on the roof of Jerry Muskrat's house, which was a hole in the bank of the Smiling Pool. Then Peter had scampered to the edge of the bank to look over to see if Jerry would come out of his doorway, which was under water. Some one came out, but it wasn't Jerry. No, sir, it wasn't Jerry Muskrat. Peter thought it was. He thought so right up to the time that a brown head appeared above water and a pair of eyes snapped at him angrily.

"Oh!" exclaimed Peter. "I-I-I hope you'll excuse me, Mrs. Muskrat" for that is who it was. "I was just knocking for Jerry."

"So you were just knocking for Jerry!" snapped Mrs. Muskrat, and her voice was very harsh and angry. "So you were just knocking for Jerry! It is a wonder you didn't thump a hole in the roof. You need to be taught a lesson, Peter Rabbit. I have more than half a mind to come up there and teach you one right now."

Peter backed away hastily, as Mrs. Muskrat began swimming towards the bank. "I-I-I'm sorry, truly I am," said Peter. "I wanted some one to talk to and I thought Jerry was probably in there asleep and that he would come out if I thumped."

"Well, Jerry wasn't in there, but I was!" sputtered Mrs. Muskrat. "I was, and so were my babies. It was enough to frighten them half to death. How would you like to have some one come thumping over the heads of your babies, Peter Rabbit? How would you like it?"

"But I didn't know there were any babies," protested Peter. "How was I to know? I wouldn't have frightened them for the world. Jerry hadn't told me that you had any babies."

"Oh!" exclaimed Peter, "I-I hope you'll excuse me, Mrs. Muskrat."

"I'm glad Jerry has sense enough not to be telling our private affairs to everybody," said Mrs. Muskrat. "However, that is no excuse, Peter Rabbit. No excuse at all. You had no business to be thumping on that roof."

By this time Peter was beginning to feel a little provoked. "This bank is free, so far as I know," said he. "I'd like to know who has any better right to sit on it, or thump on it, than I have. If you don't want your roof thumped on, why do you build a home here, anyway? I might have thumped here without knowing that your home was there at all. I guess I've a right to do as I please up on the bank."

Mrs. Muskrat's eyes fairly blazed. She started up that bank in a hurry. Peter took one good look at her. He noticed her long yellow teeth as she drew her lips back. Then Peter suddenly decided that he had business somewhere else. Away he went—lippety-lippety-lip. He glanced back. Mrs. Muskrat was out on the bank and actually chasing him, and she was moving surprisingly fast for such a stout person with such short legs.

"Phew!" exclaimed Peter. "She must be angry to think that she can possibly catch me. I guess I shall have to keep away from there for a while. But how was I to know anything about those babies? I got more than I bargained for. Yes, sir, I got more than I bargained for. Well, Mrs. Muskrat cant' catch me and I'm glad she can't. I wouldn't like to be very near her when she is in such a state of mind as she is now."

Of course, Mrs. Muskrat didn't chase Peter far. No one could know better than she how useless such a chase would be. She merely wanted to work off a little of her anger and to perhaps give Peter a little fright. So presently she turned back, dived into the Smiling Pool and went back to those precious babies in the snug house in the bank.

THE THOUGHTLESS PUBLIC

Trying to get the general public to do something which it ought to do, which requires little effort, which means the saving of life and the prevention of property destruction is more difficult than it might seem.

We note the appalling figures of persons killed by automobiles and in auto accidents. We read of the tremendous losses from fire, we shudder at the many who are burned to death, drowned, injured, and yet the tendency appears to be toward larger figures from year to year. And this in spite of the efforts and urgings to observe the common precautions for the prevention of these very things. It would seem as if after being informed of the frightful and needless waste of human life and property there was no personal recognition of the opportunities of profiting from such revelations.

We are told by the motor vehicle department that while there was a reduction of about 3 per cent in the number of accidents last year in Connecticut, there was the same number of deaths as in 1928, or 466. The number of persons injured increased by about 6 per cent to 13,607 and the estimated amount of property damage increased more than $409,000, to a new high total of $3,288,510. There doesn't appear to have been much heed given to the part which the individual can play in stopping this constant increase and turning it in the other direction.

Charles Lathrop Pack calls attention to the fact that 99 per cent of the forest fires which were raging but a short time ago were caused by human carelessness. We think it awful, but how much are we contributing to its prevention?

We are reminded that this is the season when millions of people are touring the country, or some part of it. It is not their object to see how many fires they can start. It is not their purpose to figure in accidents, fatal or otherwise. But how much are they going to do to prevent them?

We are witnessing the price of carelessness and heedlessness every day. We are noting what others are doing or failing to do. We are given the chance to see what ought to be done, but what isn't done. What are we, as individuals, going to do about it? Are we going to be more careful, more thoughtful of others, more considerate of the rights of others, or are we going to help boost the 1929 figures to greater heights in 1930?

COURTEOUS TRAFFIC COPS

Senator Smith of South Manchester experienced such courteous treatment from a traffic officer in this city that he was prompted to write to Mayor Robbins and commend the officer and the effort that is being put forth in behalf of strangers in the city.

We have no reason to suppose that this was an isolated instance. Others have probably encountered the same kind of treatment, made mental note [illegible] expressed themselves to [illegible] ficial and didn't con- [illegible] to do anything more. Instances [illegible] ons in such instances are much the same as human nature in other respects. We do not all treat the same situation in the same manner. Nevertheless, there is no disguising the fact that courtesy means much, that it is quite as easy to deal with situations in such a manner and that it leaves a good and lasting impression. It is the best policy.

Strangers in a city are desirous of complying with requirements. Naturally they cannot know all the rules and cannot anticipate all the restrictions. If they err in doing what they think is right, or if they seek information as to what should be done or where they want to go, there is no justification for other than a courteous response to their evident need of assistance.

Norwich gives recognition to the duty of being courteous. Its citizens desire and expect to be treated in such a manner elsewhere, and there can be no better way of showing it than by giving kindly consideration to strangers when guidance or even reminders that rules are being transgressed are being furnished. Senator Smith saw the desirability of putting his appreciation on paper. Such evidences of gratefulness are pleasing and never fail to mean greater efforts in that direction.

NEW ENGLAND AGRICULTURE

New England isn't usually regarded as an agricultural section of the country, but it is interested in it to a greater or less extent. In certain directions it is utilizing its opportunities but not so to the extent that it is going the limit. It is because of this failure to improve the chances for better agricultural development that it comes in for considerable criticism when compared with the efforts being put forth elsewhere.

President Thompson of the Federal Land bank at Springfield was one of the speakers at the New England Institute of Cooperation at Kingston, R. I., and in the course of his remarks declared that New England is well enough off agriculturally to be envied.

This impresses us as being based upon the position in which New England is located, market-wise, and the opportunities which it has to meet the requirements of the people in this section. What among the agricultural states would not envy New England this advantage?

Here are these states, equipped with all the facilities, railroads, steamships, good roads, for getting their products to the New York and Boston markets, to ten centers of over 100,000 population, and getting them there quick. It isn't necessary for them to send their goods across the country, or half way across. They are in a position to supply a much greater proportion of the agricultural demands of their own section of the country and yet they are not making the most of it.

While New England may hold an enviable position agriculturally, while it has the chance to do far more than it is doing in this direction, while its opportunities for much greater development are apparent, it doesn't appear to have appreciated them. It is importing vast quantities of goods which could be raised right here at home. It isn't even spurred on by the activities of others. It has been shown that it has many cooperative organizations but its marketing organizations lack development. Products are available but they are not gotten to market. Imports get the right of way because they are available and made attractive. We rather think that it isn't so much what New England is doing as what it can do that makes its position enviable agriculturally.

THE LONDON PACT

Slow progress has featured the treatment of the London naval agreement in the hands of the senate foreign relations committee. There will never be the claim that the committee has railroaded the treaty or neglected to give it thoughtful consideration.

After long and thorough deliberations, the committee has reached its decision and reported the treaty to the senate. Only four on the committee are found in opposition. There are reasons for believing that this small number of opponents in the committee will be borne out in the vote of the senate as a whole.

Without any doubt, if the treaty were to be brought to a vote today, it would be ratified in short order by a rousing majority. It will, of course, have to run the customary course of debate, during which the minority will strive to swing the senate to its way of thinking. The prospects are certainly not good but, with other legislation pressing and the desire for adjournment keen, the holding of the treaty for a special session will serve to relieve the situation without changing the result.

With a special session due to follow the present one, it is reasonable to expect that it will not last long. Indications point to the fact that the senate members for the most part have reached their decision as to what should be done and there are reasons for believing that the people of the country at large have, also. Such being the case, there is no excuse for a protracted special session. On the other hand, there is reason for a prompt disposal of the matter. With the senate ready and anxious to vote, with a recognized majority favoring the approval of the treaty, it would be folly to resort to any move that would prolong debate, develop a filibuster or prevent action at this time.

There is no call for preventing the senate from acting within a reasonable time, no good reason why the minority should block the majority. On the other hand, there is good and sufficient reason for getting it out of the way and hastening the time when it will be put into operation.

FAIRGROUNDS, ALSO CAMPS

In its weekly health bulletin the state department of health deals with the rules which should be enforced on fairgrounds. These concern the water supply, the disposal of excreta, the disposal of refuse, the storage and service of food and the handling of drinking beverages. These are all to the point and advisable, but it must be recognized that fairgrounds are getting few and far between. Fairs are growing fewer every year. There are now not many of the large fairs which used to feature the fall of the year with the assembly of many thousand people. Times have changed and fairs, except the small ones, are gradually disappearing.

What the department of health has to say in regard to fairgrounds might well apply in certain respects to the many camps which are established about the state or which develop from year to year. The conditions which exist at them are not known, but it is evident that they stand in as much need, if not more, of a water supply of a safe and sanitary quality as do the fairgrounds. It is important that these should be tested and purification insisted upon. This is quite as true of the locations of camping parties as of established camps.

In the disposal of excreta and refuse too much attention cannot be devoted by camp authorities. The importance of it in preventing disease and maintaining healthy places needs no rehearsal. Likewise, the handling of food and the drinking beverages which may be provided for the hundreds who are at such camps from the opening to the close of the season. With careful oversight given to these conditions, valuable preventive measures will be taken. What the department considers necessary for fairgrounds must likewise apply to camps where youth are involved.

EDITORIAL NOTES

King Carol is going to have an elaborate coronation. Somehow that seems just like King Carol.

The only regret at the adjournment of the present congress will be that much of the senate will assemble again next December.

If you will notice, most of the youngsters need no help in getting started on their long vacation.

The man on the corner says: Fixing an arbitrary height for the waist line is one thing, establishing a fixed circumference is another.

If Great Britain does suffer a billion dollar trade deficit in 1930, the democrats will probably attribute it to the Smoot-Hawley tariff.

THE MAGIC LAMP

When the family finances crashed Cecily Shane left the university and took the first job that she could find, which was that of an extra clerk through the holiday season at the Twentieth Century department store. The employment manager assigned her to the art floor, where the stock consisted of lamps, fine vases, odd bits of china and rare bric-a-brac. Cecily, who hitherto had found life one joyous, prolonged song, was introduced suddenly to a working-day world. Nine o'clock in the morning, the hour which had found her strolling across the campus arm in arm with her chum, Shay Belmont, now found her dusting stock. Being the newest in the department, she had been assigned to lamps because the lamps were the most tedious to dust. This morning as she ran her dust-cloth across a lantern-like lamp of dull bronze, she thought:

"I wonder what Shay would think if she could see me now. I wonder if she's still planning her house party. I wonder whom she'll invite in my place as a partner for Dr. Colbur Aladin."

By way of keeping back the tears Cecily augmented the motions of her dusting and rubbed the lamp very hard. It was no fun to picture somebody else as the partner of this interesting young doctor who was so rich and who had just returned from studies in Europe.

All year Shay had promised Cecily: "You're the type of girl he likes. I'll invite him to the house party to meet you." A house party at the Belmonts' was in itself a noteworthy attraction. Add to it the presence of a wealthy and most interesting young bachelor and perhaps you will understand why Cecily rubbed the lamp so hard in order to keep back her tears.

Suddenly she was aware of somebody standing beside her. She looked up and discovered an early customer in the person of a young man of distinguished bearing.

"I'm looking for something in the way of a lamp," he announced. Cecily regarded him intently for a moment. He had such kindly eyes and a manner which seemed at once powerful and helpless. Cecily fancied that he could be powerful in big situations, but rather helpless in a small crisis like that of selecting a lamp.

"We have some unusual designs," she replied, and indicated the model that she had just finished dusting.

"Do you know," he said at length, "that is an exact replica of a lantern which hangs in a niche of an old cathedral in Florence."

It was Cecily's turn to be impressed. Here was a man of refined taste, experience and culture. It was a pleasure to show him lamps. Somehow she wished that he would not buy anything that day, but would come back again.

"We're getting new models in stock all the time," she explained.

"In that case I'll not decide just now," he said. "I'll come back."

That evening Cecily spent in the library, doing research work on the subject of lamps, and she was amazed to find how many models of ancient design were combined in the decoration of modern lamps. Here were talking points by which she might deviate from the ordinary line of a clerk's chatter. On the following day she sold eight lamps, an accomplishment which attracted the notice of the manager of her department.

Toward evening the young man who had inspired this sudden interest in her work returned. Again he talked to her, looked over the stock and went away without buying. Cecily now talked with animation and intelligence to her customers, and her sales mounted astonishingly. She considered her commissions joyfully. If this good fortune continued she might save enough to return to the university next year.

Time after time the young man returned, and when he had visited the are department as often as it seemed expedient for any one to visit one particular department without making a purchase he bought the lantern which was the replica of the one in the Florentine cathedral. He topped the purchase by inviting Cecily to lunch with him, explained that he would like to talk to her on other subjects besides lamps and introduced himself as Dr. Colbur Aladin.—Chicago News.

The Kitchen Cupboard And The Medicine Chest

By Robert L. Swain, Baltimore.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Don't overlook the kitchen cupboard or the medicine chest while you are doing your spring housecleaning. Like every other cuppoard or closet, the kitchen cupboard and the medicine chest need a thorough overhauling every now and then. As you look over them you will probably find a lot of things poked away out of sight that have lost their freshness and are useless or even harmful and should be discarded for safety's sake.

The real job comes after the shelves have been cleared out and thoroughly scrubbed with plenty of water and soap, for then you have to decide what is to go back on the shelves. If you want to safeguard your family and to save yourself a lot of trouble, here are some good suggestions.

A. Stop long enough while you are working on your kitchen cabinet to label your boxes and jars or whatever you use as containers for your supplies—and to label them with good, clear lettering.

B. After labelling, separate the harmful ones, such as insecticides and household poisons, from the supplies that are used in cooking, and put them in a different place. Don't keep them in the same place with food supplies or with ingredients used in cooking, and above all, store them beyond thereach of children.

C. As to the medicine chest—don't keep odds and ends of medicine that you have had on hand for two or three years—such as old cough medicines, gargles, cathartics, patent "cures." You would not want to take a chance on their being harmful—so get rid of them.

D. There are certain supplies that you want and need to have on hand. Ask your doctor to give you a list of them.

E. Go to your druggist and get the fresh supplies. The money spent will be one of the wisest items in your budget.

Within the last six months, we have all known of accidental poisonings that have occurred because insecticides or other equally dangerous substances were somehow mixed with baking powders or with flavoring substances; because a stale medicine was used; because the label on a patent medicine was the wrong prescription for the ailment the taker was trying to cure. Very serious illnesses and even deaths have resulted from this sort of carelessness. The spring housecleaning gives the housekeeper an opportunity to check up on such supplies; to label them clearly and properly; and to store them where they will not endanger people's lives.

A YANKEE ABROAD

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

The Powerful Viceroy

LONDON—The viceroy of India is one of the most powerful of the world's great administrators, but his position is no sinecure in these turbulent days of disorder, with Mahatma Gandhi and his followers challenging British authority.

Indeed, the mere fact that the viceroy has so much power naturally adds to his responsibilities.

He is answerable to the British government in England, but subject to that control he could assume a dictatorship over the 330,000,000 people of his territory if he saw fit. The legislature of India has no powers which he cannot override.

In the case of a great emergency, such as might arise at any moment, he might find himself in a position which would necessitate his taking on the role of dictator.

Not only is the viceroy so powerful, but on state occasions he is surrounded by more pomp and splendor than any ruling monarch.

Manhandling

One of the most regal of the long line of viceroys was the late Lord Curzon, who held this position at the beginning of the century. A certain arrogance toward his fellow men was matched only by Lord Curzon's brilliance of mind.

And history gives him credit for being one of the best viceroys India ever had.

Strangely enough, while Curzon often went out of his way to wipe his feet on someone, he was the one who did perhaps more than any other to abolish the manhandling of natives by Europeans.

Time was when many westerners in Hindustan used Indians roughly on general principles. Curzon put a stop to much of that.

His Method

A government official told a story about Curzon, and the viceroy's anti-manhandling complex, in India a few years ago.

His Excellency used to ride in the saddle every morning, and was a lover of horses. One day as he stalked down the steps of the vice-regal lodge he saw that his mount, which happened to be his favorite horse, appeared to be in pain. A native hostler was holding the prancing animal.

Lord Curzon inspected the horse's head, and discovered that the native had put the curb on wrong, so the horse's mouth had been cut and was bleeding.

The viceroy promptly landed a perfect right on the point of the hostler's jaw and knocked the latter flat on his back, several feet away. The great Curzon stood looking at the fallen man for a moment, then turned to his A. D. C.

"Captain!" snapped the viceroy.

"Sir!" replied the captain, tensing his body to attention.

"Captain," said Curzon, "you know how very keenly I feel on the subject of striking natives. Don't let anything of this sort happen again!"

"Right, sir! I'm very sorry," responded the dutiful captain, clicking his heels.

For fifteen years Thomas Thomson, seventy-three, a recluse living in a hut near West Stanley, England, has slept at intervals in a coffin which he bought after an accident from which he did not expect to recover, and finds the coffin warm, though a trifle cramped.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 24—An ancient Latin maxim tells us that Old Father Time, he of the long handled grass cutter and flowing white beard, is the original aviator. He's been flying ever since he started.

And since humans took to the air, Old Man Time has seen to it that they did their piloting, mostly, as young chaps. Aviation has been held to be a young man's game. Most men of 50 or so, even army trained "prewar" pilots, are content with younger hands on the controls when they take to the air.

There is a notable exception, Colonel C. C. Culver. He is the oldster in years of the corps. Also, his flying work dates back to 1915. And at rising 57 years, he is still piloting any and all types of army ships as a matter of business and pleasure. That is his specialty. If he should do less than 150 hours a year, he told the Bystander, he would feel he was loafing.

Which accounts for the unprecedented fact that between his 50th and 57th birthdays, Culver rolled up a total of 1,100 hours of solo-pilot flight. Included were three round trips to the west coast.

Few Accidents

Culver's record shows a remarkably clean bill on accidents. He was dumped into the deep sea, to be sure, years ago when the former German warcraft were being bombed off the Virginia capes. A broken oil line on his engine sent his single seater radio control ship down.

Culver took a 40 foot salt water header with dry land about 60 miles away. He tells about it very casually. He just SOSed a flying boat, glided in that direction, took his dive and emerged smiling with neither plane nor pilot much the worse.

So the air-going activities of this young-old flier have cost Uncle Sam very little in cracked up ships. He accounts for it on the theory that lots of flying leads to little trouble. That's what aviation authorities hold. Admiral Moffatt has said that quadrupled hours in air would cut accidents in half.

Age No Handicap

And Culver has always held that useful piloting was not necessarily utterly the business of youth. He set out to prove more than a decade ago that 10 years more of flying time beyond the 40-year mark was a reasonable expectation. Now he's inclined to put it at 20 more years. Sixty year old pilots should be no novelty in a few years, Culver contends. It's just a matter of practice and good judgment.

He's a young man to look at or talk to. He's like Senator Gillett, who is 80 years young on a golf course. And when new high commanders for the air corps are to be picked, Culver may figure if actual air experience is a factor in selection. He certainly has had it.

Novo-Sibirsk

Movie houses where Russians, Tatars, Finns and Chinese view American films, are a feature of Novo-Sibirsk, northern terminus of Russia's newest railway. Electric lights light up the silent Siberian steppes in the environs of this bustling, commercial city. Grain elevators, banks and drugstores now stand where 40 years ago roamed gray wolves of the Siberian plains.

"American speed is exemplified in this Russian city of 120,000 people which has grown from a few mud huts in 1897," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Novo-Sibirsk (it appears as Novo-Nikolaevsk on older maps) is now the metropolis of the Siberian area of the Russian socialist federative soviet republic. The latter republic includes most of old European Russia and most of Siberia. The city lies in southwest Siberia on north Asia's largest river, the Ob. To the west of it stretches the Barabinsky steppe, hundreds of miles of flat, monotonous prairie. East of it, hilly wood steppe reaches to the Abakan mountains. 'Siberia's Chicago,' the Russians call the city.

"Novo-Sibirsk's main street is paved. Most of the others are not so fortunate. But they have modern names that breathe of the soviet influence. Political heroes are not unrewarded. There are Maxim, Gorki and Sverdlov streets. Octiabrskaya, or October street, commemorates the October revolution. Soviet and Communistichekaya streets may be Russian, but their names are self-explanatory.

"Distinctive public buildings are the aim of Novo-Sibirsk's architects. Tall gray structures with stripes in dark blue or some other contrasting color strike a modernistic note. They contrast with the usual colorless dwelling places, where a minimum amount of decoration is expended. Soviet clubs are fashionable. The Club of the Youthful Leninists has its own clubhouse as has the Club of the Fifth Anniversary of the October Revolution.

"'Mongrel' best describes Novo-Sibirsk's population. Newspapers are printed in Russian, Tatar, Latvian and Estonian. In the Casino, a government-controlled combination cafe and gambling house, yellow-skinned, slant-eyed Mongols sit with blonde Russian girls. Koreans and Chinese and Jews are in the assembly. A Finn or a Tatar may drive one of the automobiles or horse cabs that have such a time negotiating the muddy streets. Business offices, a postal telegraph building, the German consulate and the town museum give an occidental touch to a city with an oriental population. The leading paper with orient artlessness is called The Village Truth.

"Not for nothing is Novo-Sibirsk called Siberia's Chicago. Flour mills, grain elevators, saw mills and tanneries take care of the large trade in grain, wood and hides. Electricity runs the plants and American machinery is much in use. Brick works are kept busy supplying the thick bricks which must be used in the city's structures to keep out the winter cold of 50 degrees below zero.

"In the summer, Novo-Sibirsk's 'butter begins' begins. Trains are made up here which take butter to Leningrad and Moscow and eventually to Paris and London. From ten to fourteen times a week, the trains start out from the town with several ice-trucks carrying a few hundred tons of butter. At Omsk, Kurgan and other transit centers, new cars are added. The train is usually 25 trucks long by the time it reaches Chelabinsk, in European Russia.

"Transportation means are Novo-Sibirsk's least worry. It lies on the Trans-Siberian railway. A branch railroad has run for some time southwest to Semipalatinsk, and now this road is extended by the new line to meet the railway system of Central Asia. Another road runs southeast to Kosh-Agach on the Mongolian frontier. And steamboats ply the Ob river to the north and south."

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The New Haven Clock Company, New Haven.

The New Haven Clock company, successor to the Jerome Clock company, was developed upon foundations laid by the pioneer of American clock manufacturers, Chauncey Jerome. The Jerome Clock company commenced operations in Plymouth, Conn., in 1817. Mr. Jerome carved the wheels of wood by hand during the long winter months and traveled by wagon and ship from Maine to North Carolina in the summer to sell his clocks.

In 1821 the Jerome Clock company moved to Bristol, opening a larger factory which included the first circular saw ever used in that town. This plant was operated by water power when the streams were high. During low water periods, the company's horse trotted on a treadmill to keep the wheels turning.

The Jerome Clock company continued to produce wooden movements until 1837, when Mr. Jerome invented brass clock works. Other clock manufacturers laughed at this idea, but Mr. Jerome went to work on the brass plates and wheels and soon produced a metal movement that was superior to any clock on the market. His metal parts were not swollen by dampness as was the case with wooden wheels. Whereas a one-day wooden clock had formerly sold for $12, Mr. Jerome was now able to market an eight-day metal clock for $4. Naturally his business grew rapidly and he exported shiploads of clocks all over the world.

In 1844 Mr. Jerome, seeking a seaport, established a branch of his plant in New Haven. In 1845, when the Bristol plant burned, the entire Jerome Clock company moved to New Haven, to the site now owned by The New Haven Clock company. A small steam engine here kept the machinery turning. The Jerome company sought to expand too rapidly on small capital, and was reorganized in 1857 as The New Haven Clock company.

The New Haven Clock company believed in Mr. Jerome's policy of developing new ideas in the clock business, being one of the first to produce nickel alarm clocks (1880) and the popular "dollar" watch (1889).

Recently the company has greatly expanded its lines which now include wrist and pocket watches, alarm clocks, automobile clocks, mahogany mantle and chime clocks, office clocks, banjo clocks and electric clocks.

The plant, located at 133 Hamilton street, covers practically two city blocks, employs 2,000 workers and produces about 3,500,000 time pieces annually.

Most modern electrically driven automatic machinery and highly skilled workers now turn out from laboratory tested metals, with limits of a ten thousandth of an inch, the small clock parts which Mr. Jerome so slowly carved by hand from cherry wood in 1817.

The New Haven Clock company's sales offices are located in New York city, Chicago, Brantford, Ontario; and San Francisco.

The present officers are: Edwin P. Root, chairman of the board; Richard H. Whitehead, president; George A. Whitney, vice president; Edward Stevens, vice president; Philip H. English, secretary and treasurer; Frederick L. Bradley, assistant secretary; Frederick L. Neuman, assistant treasurer.

Gibbs—FitzPatrick

Of interest to relatives and a number of Norwich friends is the following, from a Providence Sunday paper:

In a setting of palms, white roses and peonies, an attractive June wedding was solemnized yesterday morning at 10 o'clock at St. Joseph's church on Hope street, when Miss Louise Anthony FitzPatrick became the bride of Edward Vincent Gibbs. Rt. Rev. Msgr. Peter E. Blessing performed the ceremony and sang the nuptial mass, which was followed by a reception at the summer home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Matthew T. Dunn, at Quonset Point.

Attending the bride was her sister, Miss Mary A. T. FitzPatrick, as maid of honor, and another sister, Miss Grace E. FitzPatrick, was bridesmaid. Edmund F. Murphy of Norwood, Mass., was best man, and the ushers were Matthew T. Dunn, J. Howard Gibbs, Raymond E. Flynn and John R. Flynn.

To music of the "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin," played by the organist, Henry J. Donovan, the bride entered with her brother, Walter F. FitzPatrick, by whom she was given in marriage. She was charming in a long fitted model of ivory satin, with yoke, sleeves and front panel of Poine de Venise lace, with a divided train falling from the waistline. Her ivory tulle veil in cap shape was fastened with orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of valley lilies and sweetheart roses. The maid of honor wore a long white chiffon gown with deep footing of tulle. Her hat was of eggshell lace straw, trimmed with eggshell velvet. Her bouquet was of Claudia Pernet roses and mignonette. A long white chiffon gown trimmed with white tulle was worn by the bridesmaid, and her hat was of delphinium blue horsehair with velvet trimmings. She carried Briarcliffe roses and delphinium.

During the mass, Mrs. Agnes Coutemanche Burke sang "Panis Angelicus."

Mr. and Mrs. Gibbs were assisted in receiving the guests by Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. FitzPatrick, Mr. and Mrs. Matthew T. Dunn, Miss Clara Gibbs, Miss Emma E. Fanning and the bridal party. Mountain laurel, white peonies and palms made an effective background for the reception. Guests were present from Washington, D. C., Worcester, Boston and other cities.

After a wedding trip to Lake George, Montreal and Maine, Mr. and Mrs. Gibbs will live at 17 Cleveland avenue, Worcester.

Both have been prominent in amateur dramatics and musical circles in Providence. Mr. Gibbs was heard in Norwich when he sang the offertory and the hymn during the blessing, when his cousin, Rev. Richard Fanning, now of St. Ambrose's church, Bridgeport, celebrated his first solemn mass in St. Patrick's church, Norwich, the past year.

NO CRIMINAL LIABILITY IN DEATH OF BRENNAN

Coroner Edward G. McKay makes a finding that there is no evidence of criminal liability on the part of anyone in the death of John Brennan, Jr., of Hopkinton, R. I., who sustained fatal injuries in a collision on May 15 last between the automobile he was driving and a bus of the Groton and Stonington Traction company on the Boston Post road in the town of Stonington.

In his finding the coroner says:

The collision occurred in the vicinity of what is known as "Aunt Betty's Pantry," on the Boston Post road east of Stonington. The road at this point is surfaced with concrete and runs around a long curve from a southeasterly direction; the curve is slightly upgrade toward the east. On the northerly side of the curve close to the shoulder of the highway a wall about three feet high runs adjacent to the highway starting at the easterly end of the curve and continuing about half way around the curve. The road east of the curve runs along level and straight for about 500 yards. When the collision occurred it was raining and the road was wet.

At about 6:35 a. m., standard time, the said John Brennan, Jr., left Westerly for work in Stonington. He was operating his (Graham Paige) coupe and was accompanied by Mary Cafone and Joseph Potter. All three were going to work at the same place in Stonington. Nothing out of the ordinary happened until they came to the above mentioned curve. As the said Brennan approached the curve a motor bus was on the curve headed toward Westerly. When the Brennan car was on the curve for a distance of about 100 feet the two vehicles collided very nearly head on. The cars locked and went off to the north and against the wall. As a result of the collision the three occupants of the Brennan car were seriously injured. They were immediately conveyed to the Westerly hospital where the said Brennan (died) expired from his injuries.

There were no witnesses of the actual collision other than the occupants of the coupe and the bus. One of the passengers of the coupe had no memory of anything that happened, after they had passed a point about 500 feet east of the scene. The other occupant of the bus approach and claimed that the bus turned into the path of the coupe. However, this passenger states that the coupe had not started around the curve. The driver of the bus stated that the coupe approached the bus and did not follow the curve in the road. He stated that it continued on a straight course until very close to the bus when it then started to turn to the north; the coupe then was on the southerly part of the highway.

The marks on the highway and the position of the cars afforded some indication of the course of the cars before and at the time of the collision. There were marks on the highway leading from the bus to a point about 25 feet west of the position of the cars. There were two of these marks and they led to the rear wheels of the bus. There were no marks of the front wheels. There were also wheel marks leading to the point of collision from an easterly direction. These marks were of a smaller size than the bus marks; they were on the southerly half of the highway and had a diagonal course toward the northwest. These marks measured about 45 feet.

After examining the position of the two cars and noting the damage to them it appears that the left wheel and left front part of the coupe struck the left front of the body of the bus about in front of the driver's seat. The force of the blow turned the bus towards the north and the both cars then went diagonally toward the northeast and against the wall. When they came to rest the right front of the bus was over and against the left side of the coupe. Part of the coupe and engine were beneath the front of the bus.

The evidence did not disclose any indication of excessive speed on the part of either car. The bus was seen about 400 feet west of the collision going moderately. In summing up all of the evidence including the testimony of the witnesses and the marks on the highway and position of the cars, it would appear that Brennan had come onto the curve and did not realize he was there until it was too late to turn out of the path of the bus.

I am satisfied and find that the death of John Brennan, Jr., was not caused by the criminal act, omission or carelessness of any other person or persons.

DOCTOR AND WOMAN'S HUSBAND ARE ACCUSED

Probable cause was found against Dr. William B. Casey on the charge of manslaughter arising from an alleged illegal abortion performed upon Mrs. Leona Frechette of 229 Prospect street and also against Edward Frechette, the husband of the woman, when both men were on trial in the city court Tuesday morning before Judge Arthur F. Libby. They were both bound over to the superior court. Mrs. Sarah E. Moran of 279 Main street, an aunt of Dr. Casey, supplied the bonds of $5,000 for the doctor and $3,000 for Frechette.

Frechette was arrested in the court room in the course of the trial of Dr. Casey and after a statement which Frechette made to County Detective William Lewis had been read to the court.

Mrs. Frechette died in the Backus hospital on May 2, having been taken there April 29.

Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve, who is medical examiner, was the first witness called by City Attorney Charles W. Cassidy in the trial of Dr. Casey who was defended by Attorney Thomas M. Shields. The doctor told of performing an autopsy on the body of Mrs. Frechette which showed that death was due to general peritonitis and induced abortion. He said that the operation had been the work of someone who was either fearless, ignorant or careless. In his opinion the operation had been performed by someone else than Mrs. Frechette, but he would not swear that she did not do it.

Dr. David Sussler of the Backus hospital staff testified that on the day before Mrs. Frechette died his attention was called to her in the ward at the hospital and he was told that she had been sent there by an outside doctor for possible rupture of the appendix. His examination he said, showed symptoms of an illegal operation.

David Campbell, a pharmacist at the Pitcher and Service drug store in Greeneville, testified that the husband of the woman came to the store alone on April 21 and with Dr. Casey on April 29. Both times he had a prescription filled.

Edward J. Frechette, the husband was put on the stand to testify. He said Dr. Casey had attended his wife on the morning of April 29 and in the afternoon Dr. E. J. Brophy sent her to the hospital. He testified that she had been sick for over a year and he had taken her to a New London doctor and to Dr. Clarence G. Thompson of this city, both of whom advised an operation. He told of going with Mrs. Frechette to Dr. Casey's office on April 21 and again with her on April 28. Asked about a statement he had made to County Detective Lewis, Frechette admitted he made a statement but said he was like a crazy man and didn't realize he was signing any statement.

The statement was read in court over the objection of Attorney Shields. In substance the statement was to the effect that Mrs. Frechette had told her husband about her trouble on April 21 and said she had heard that Dr. Casey could help her. Offering objection at first, Frechette later went with his wife to the doctor's office, where the doctor gave her a prescription for pills and charged a $2 fee. As the pills were not effective, the couple returned on April 28, to the doctor's office when the operation was performed. They went home after attending the theatre and that night Mrs. Frechette was taken ill. The next day her sister called at the house and finding her in great pain called Dr. Brophy who sent Mrs. Frechette to the Backus hospital. In the concluding sentence of the statement were the words, "Dr. Casey is responsible for the death of my wife, I would like to see him punished."

It was at this point in the trial of the case that Judge Libby ordered the arrest of Frechette, who was officially taken into custody by Sergeant Myron Morgan. Through Attorney Shields the accused pleaded not guilty to the charge of manslaughter.

Continuing the trial of Dr. Casey, Detective Lewis was called to the stand. He told of having secured a statement from the doctor, who denied having performed any operation but admitted having given Mrs. Frechette some pills, and taking $4 in fees. The detective repeated from memory the statement which he had secured from Frechette.

Dr. Gildersleeve was the final witness, testifying to the nature of the pills which Dr. Casey gave Mrs. Frechette.

There was no testimony for the defense, but Attorney Shields argued that no case had been made out and the accused should be discharged.

(Special to The Bulletin)

MONTVILLE, June 24.—Carl Hultin, of Uncasville, was arrested this evening by Police Officer Howard Lamphere of Montville, on a charge of reckless driving when the Ford coupe he was operating figured in a collision with a Chevrolet coach, owned and operated by John J. REAL ACTION PROMISED IN BOUTS AT MAJESTIC ROOF TOMORROW NIGHT

Jackie Burns, promoter of the boxing show at the Majestic roof tomorrow night, reported last night that everything was in readiness for the peppiest boxing card ever put on in this city. He reported that every boxer was in the best of shape and just "arin' to go. From the opening bout between Marty Owens and Alex Touret of New Bedford to the main go between Marty Owens and Aex Touraine, there is bound to be plenty of torrid milling.

Jimmy Quinn, last night in his second professional engagement, gained a clean-cut verdict over Marty Marlino of Hartford in a four-round preliminary to the Genaro-Jeff bout. Quinn boxed cleverly and was in much better shape and made a much better impression than in his first pro contest several weeks ago. If Quinn fights as well on Thursday evening against Forest as he did last night the fans will get their money's worth.

Other bouts promise to be exceptionally fast, with hard, clean-punching boys meeting in every bout. The card is made up of boys of the lighter classes, but who hit with the power of the heavier divisions. Practically every boy on the card is well known to local fans, either from the amateur records or from their professional victories.

Two of the outstanding boys are the two Tonys, Tony Catalano and Tony Ruggerio, of Providence, who went almost to the top of their divisions. Alex Touraine, former Putnam youth, is another boy who will be watched with a great deal of interest, as Touraine started as an amateur in this section of the state.

On the whole, the card looks just about as nice as any card ever put on. Reports from the camps state that each boy is in the proverbial pink and will give the best that is in him.

SINGER PROPOSES NEW RULING ON FOUL BLOW

NEW YORK, June 24—(AP)—The perplexing foul problem bobbed up again at the New York State Athletic commission today when Al Singer, who boxes Sammy Mandell for the lightweight championship at the Polo grounds here July 17, asked that steps be taken to guard against an unsatisfactory ending.

Singer offered to insert a clause in his contract with Mandell specifying that neither would accept victory through a low blow. The Bronx lightweight asked that the only punishment meted out for a low blow be loss of the round in which the punch was landed. The commission took the suggestion under advisement.

Jimmy Johnston, American manager of Phil Scott, challenged the winner of the possible return match between Jack Sharkey and Max Schmeling in September on behalf of the British heavyweight. He asked also that the commission make a ruling on Scott's rights under a contract he signed last year with Humbert Fugazy for a match with Schmeling. The German refused to meet Scott and was suspended but Fugazy later sold his rights under the contract to Madison Square Garden. The commission deferred action.

Joe Banovic, Binghamton, N. Y., light heavyweight, challenged the winner of Wednesday night's title match between Maxey Rosenbloom and Jimmy Slattery in Buffalo. The challenge was tabled.

U. S. HAS SEVEN PLAYERS IN BRITISH TENNIS

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 24—(AP)—Continuing its parade through the English tennis championship field, the United States today landed seven of its ranking men stars in the third round and advanced four of its women representatives to the second in the play at Wimbledon.

Without losing a set, Bill Tilden, George Lott, Johnny Doeg, Berkley Bell, Johnny Van Ryn, Wilmer Allison and Gregory Mangin easily brushed aside all opposition. The women invaders from across the Atlantic were not so fortunate. Mrs. Helen Wills Moody came through as expected along with the youthful Sarah Palfrey of Boston, Mary Greef of Kansas and Elizabeth Ryan, but Miss Edith Cross of San Francisco fell before the devastating drives of Mlle Josane Sigart, Belgium's No. 1 ranking player, 6-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Mrs. Moody's opponent, Fraulein Hilda Krahwinkel, Germany's third ranking player, made a good showing against the champion although after dropping the first game in each set, as is Mrs. Moody's courteous manner, the outcome was never in doubt. The queen of the courts smashed powerful drives down the lines, whenever she needed a point, to win 6-2, 6-1.

Women who appear in short sleeves on the streets of Cairo would be liable to imprisonment for "immoral" conduct under a bill presented in parliament.—News Item.

Married member of parliament arguing for the rejection of the bill:

Most honorable members of this august body of law breakers, ahem, I mean law makers: I rise to speak against this unspeakable injustice to our fair womanhood which is embodied in this proposed bill. This bill, if passed, will make us the laughing stock of the world. Not only that, but it will have its economic effect on the city of ours. Our tourist business will fall off to nothing at all. How many women from America, where sunback bathing suits and silk polo shirts are in vogue, will visit our fair city. Do you suppose for a minute that women who can pack a week's wearing apparel in their handbags will come here any more? No, of course they won't. If it is immoral to wear short sleeves, why some of those women from across the seas would have to be shot at sunrise to make the penalty fit the crime.

Not only that, but think of the hardship it is going to work on the men of this fair city of ours. Imagine a man with three or four wives having to buy material for six or eight mutton-leg sleeves. Why, that item alone in his home will keep his nose to the grindstone for years to come. One mutton-leg sleeve will take three yards of material alone, so you figure it out for yourselves, how much it is going to cost you per year if this bill passes. I appeal to your sense of economic values. And, again, there is another angle. None of you would buy Arabian horses if his legs were covered with burlap bags. You would want to see what you were getting for your money. Think it over.

This bill was drafted by the gentleman from across the Nile. He is a married man and I can see the motive in back of this preposterous insult to the descendants of Cleopatra. This man's wife is so thin she fails to cast a shadow. No wonder she urged or rather commanded her spouse to draft this bill. It is an instrument born of jealousy, and I denounce it. Only this morning I asked my wife for her opinion of the bill and what do you suppose she said? She says, "Adubol, if you vote for this bill I'm going to start a movement to have all men wear red flannels the year around." So, gentlemen, I implore you, for the sake of the city, the sake of our women and, last but not least, for the sake of your fellow men, defeat this bill. I thank you for your attention.

SMOKE SHOP DROPS HECTIC GAME TO CITIZENS; GREENE-WEISGRABER STAR

Bootsy Greene and Butsy Weisgraber, buddies on the N. F. A. team this past spring, opposed each other in the City League game at the campus last night, Boots working for the Polish Citizens and Butsy for the Smoke Shop. Although he had a slight edge Weisgraber was the losing artist, the Citizens winning 11 to 9. Butsy gave 10 bingles against his former teammates 11 and struck out five while Greene whiffed three. Each gave a free ticket.

Despite the fact that the game was crammed full of every brand of bail imaginable, good, bad and indifferent, it was real interesting and was closely contested from beginning to end.

Both clubs counted five times in the opening frame, every man on the field getting at least one lick. The Cits got their quintette of scores on two hits and five errors while the O'Brien clan plasted out five safe cracks to get their runs. The Citizens added another in the second and two more in the early fourth for a total of eight runs. In their half of the fourth the Smokers got to Boots for three clean pokes and with the assistance of an error deadlocked the count.

In the early fifth Charlie Lamory laid a one base smack up against the manual training building and on two infield outs was worked around to third. With Boots taking his cuts he sneaked home, counting before Goldblatt, the Smoker backstopper, realized what it was all about. On two doubles a single and an error, the Cits boosted their total to 11 in the sixth and final frame. The Smokers made a dying bid to again knot the count in their half of the session but the best they could do was poke across a single counter, to make it 9.

Tony West, ex-Baltimore Oriole, now a member of the State Hospital nine, grabbed off the hitting honors with a triple, double and single. Two teammates, Cimmy and Lloyd Jarvis, and Couillard and Gibbs of the Smoke Shop, were next best, with two apiece.

Ideals vs. Royals Tonight.

The Ideals and Royals, two of the City Leagues junior nines, work at the Academy campus tonight. The former has shown once to date and lost, while the Royals have yet to make an official start. The Panek-Oney clan played an exhibition game at the campus last Thursday night and, it will be remembered, nosed out the Polish Citizens by a score of 3 to 1. The service station combination played the Italian club the following night and were outslugged in one of the most weird games of the current season.

Both clubs have a collection of sluggers in their lineups and it wouldn't be the least bit surprising if tonight's affair was another hitting bee. Stecher Keller or Shaw will start on the Ideal hill and the Royal mound duty will go to either Eddie Nevins or Tommy Simcox. The latter, one of the oldest and most effective hurlers in or about the city, has not seen any service as yet this year and it is probable that he may get the call.

BENTON PROVES MASTER OF FORMER TEAMMATES

CINCINNATI, June 24—(AP)—Larry Benton pitched his second fine game in succession for the Reds today and defeated his former teammates, the New York Giants, 4 to 1. This gave Cincinnati its first victory of the series after two defeats.

The Giants made 11 hits, getting one or more in every inning but the ninth, but Benton held them when men were on base and would have had a shutout except for a high throw by Leo Durocher in the third. Critz's error aided in the scoring of two Cincinnati Reds in the second, Ford driving both in with a single.

The Reds got single runs in the third and seventh frames, making the first on Walker's double, a walk and a fielder's choice and the second on three singles off Heving, who succeeded Genewich.

HALLAHAN STARS AS CARDS TRIUMPH OVER BRAVES

ST. LOUIS, June 24.—(AP)—After allowing three runs in the opening inning, Wild Bill Hallahan settled down and held the Boston Braves scoreless the rest of the way, the Cardinals winning the second game of the series today, 11 to 3. Hallahan issued only one base on balls.

Three home runs, four triples and five doubles were made. Watkins getting two circuit blows. The other home run was by Walter Berger, bringing his total to 22 for the season and putting him in a tie with Hack Wilson of the Cubs for the National league leadership.

RED SOX SPLIT DOUBLE HEADER WITH TIGERS

BOSTON, June 24—(AP)—The Red Sox mixed a lot of poor baseball with a few samples of good play today and divided a double header with the Detroit Tigers. Boston won the first game, 5 to 4, and the Tigers took the second in ten innings, 8 to 7.

The first game was a battle of home runs with Bill Sweeney's pinch homer in the sixth providing the deciding runs. The Tigers had taken a 4-1 lead in the third on Uhle's homer with two on base, which followed two hits and an error, Hod Lisenbee allowed only five hits.

Detroit scored two runs to Boston's one in the tenth inning of the second game after the Red Sox had tied the count for the third time in the eighth. Errors and walks played a large part in the Detroit scoring as the Tigers made only six hits. A bad heave by Rhyne and Funk's sacrifice provided the winning counters. The first six runs were put on base by passes off George Smith.

WESTERLY

PARADE WILL FEATURE ST. JOHN'S DAY OBSERVANCE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, June 24.—The committee of Narragansett Commandery, No. 17, K. T., of Westerly, Capt. Gen. Fred W. Harvey, chairman, in charge of the arrangements for the St. John's Day Templar observance Wednesday in Westerly, met Monday evening at the Masonic hall. Plans were made for the Knights Templar street parade, roast chicken supper at the church school rooms of Grace Methodist Episcopal church at the corner of High street and Grove avenue and Masonic work in the commandery asylum, Masonic hall.

Past Commander David A. Lowry, assistant master of ceremonies, and a sub committee member on dinner announced that provisions had been made for the seating of 130 Sir Knights at one time at a dozen tables with two large head tables for Narragansett commandery officers and invited guests. Past Commander Arthur N. Nash, master of ceremonies, and named as grand marshal of the street parade, is making plans for the Sir Knights in white plumed chapeaux, swords and gauntlet gloves to march in column of three files over the route as previously announced. The line is to be headed by motorcycle police officers and the Westerly band, Charles O. Gavitt, director.

Following the chicken dinner the Templars have been ordered to report in full Templar regalia at the commandery armory, Masonic hall, at 7:15 sharp. In full regalia the Templars will enter Wilcox park, where permission has been secured to obtain a large group photograph before the parade is started.

Temple work will be started at 4 p. m. in the Masonic rooms by Narragansett commandery officers, assisted by Em. Sir Frank S. Congdon, prelate of Calvary commandery, No. 13, K. T., of Providence. During a recess in the work there will be held the dinner, parade and serving of cold drinks in the commandery armory before the resumption of commandery work.

Wednesday morning at the Elm street school, Junior high school department, 173 graduates will receive diplomas.

By reason of the size of the class and the lack of an assembly hall, formal exercises at the school will be dispensed with and diplomas will be awarded to pupils in their class rooms.

Awards were announced this week to pupils having won distinction in athletics during the year. Bronze medals for having successfully completed the second test were awarded Donald Brown, William Robinson, John Laing, Carrol Murano, Theodore Drew, Daniel Larkin, Ernest Greenwood, Frank Garafola, Thomas Willis, Vincent Tuscano, Paul Smith, Kurt Harriss, Elsworth Hall, Louis Vezina, Palmer Williams and Elliot Menick.

Bronze medals were also awarded the following boys who completed the third test which is a much more rigid examination and the equal of a test for High school students: Angelo Tuscano, Joseph Gingerella, Roger Donahue, Alexander Thompson, Thor Ormberg and Charles Magni.
